There were 417 lodgers and eaters at the Learned Mission during the five months of the year to date. They were chiefly men who are unfortunate and without means to get farther along the road of life without assistance. Some times that aid is financial; other times it is from physical weakness; while at still other times it is due to indiscretion. Liquor is the bane of most men who get into the mission, but there they have consideration they would not receive elsewhere and they get back on the road to health and to employment if they appreciate the kindness that is manifested toward them. A record is kept of all the facts attending the appearance of men who ask for help and that record often turns up against the fellow who returns after he has proved his infidelity and has deceived the mission and its management.

Very few arrests were made today, they being nearly all for intoxication, and those were of the unoffensive sort.

Mr. and Mrs. George Oldroyd of New York are in the city for a visit.

There was just rain enough today to make the paved streets treacherous and two accidents were barely averted in scores of cases. Had the paving been thoroughly wet much of the danger would have been removed, but the moisture made them slippery in the extreme.

Rain this afternoon put a stop to outdoor sports arranged for the day and kept the attendance at Ocean Beach down to small numbers. Concession owners at that resort are praying for a change in the weather that will bring high temperature.

Prentice Chase, who was in the police court this morning for intoxication and evading the payment of fare on a taxicab, ran up a bill of $43 for cabhire and then would not settle. He instructed the driver, named Brodie, to drive him to Saybrook and to Essex and there lunch was supplied, but Chase was not disposed to settle, so a deputy sheriff at Essex was called on to make the arrest. The sheriff turned Chase over to the New London officers.

Clifford Smith was arrested for operating an auto recklessly yesterday, but he failed to appear in court this morning to answer. Then a warrant was issued for him and he will appear tomorrow morning. Smith said he was confused over the standard and daylight time, so did not appear until the court had adjourned.

The city council met this evening, but did not stay in session, adjourning till tomorrow when the members will assemble and transact business. There were but a couple of councilors present this evening, as the understanding was that no business would be transacted tonight.

Hartford bus No. 19 and a truck of the Eastern Dairy company, which absorbed the New Haven Dairy business in this city, were in collision at State and North Bank street this noon. The bus had just left its station on the way to Hartford when the dairy company truck came out of North Bank street, the operator not heeding whether there was any vehicle coming toward him. The result was a crash, but the truck was moving slowly and the bump was not severe. The mudguard on the off forward wheel was bent, but no other damage of consequence resulted other than a scratch on the body of the bus. The truck is owned by the same company as was the truck that ran down and put Chief Rose in the hospital.

Lieut. Hickey barely escaped injury as the Memorial day procession moved this forenoon. He was mounted on a horse and was an aide to the marshal. As the procession started a trolley car operated by Motorman Stanton came down the street and bumped the horse Lieut. Hickey was riding. The animal reared, but the driver kept his saddle. The horse behaved exceedingly well and was soon brought under control.

There was a large class of offenders in the police court this morning, making a strenuous ending for the month and a bad one for the beginning of the week. Drunks and the motorcycle figured largely in the cases before the court. Three sailors from the submarine base composed a sort of flying squadron yesterday for they whirled along Broad street on motorcycles without any apparent regard for what their machines might meet coming from side streets or driveways. They tore along at a speed estimated at 35 miles an hour until Motorcycle Officer McGaskey called them to account and lodged complaints against them. Two of the accused, Herbert J. Cook and Albert DiRocci, were fined, while Jefferson Wallace was released on a suspension of execution of judgment.

Manuel Mari of Stonington operated his machine past a trolley car that was discharging passengers and on pleading guilty was fined $5.

There were seven drunks up for discipline and all received fines except in the cases of John Higgins and Prentice Chase, the latter of Waterbury. These cases were continued and the accused were released on bonds.

Sergeant Samuel Hick has returned from his vacation and is on duty again in charge of the night police squad.

Showing the scarcity of laboring work at present, a respectable appearing man showed up at the police station this evening and asked for lodging. He said he had been a weaver prior to the war, but since then had done cleaning about residences. He had applied everywhere for work, but could not obtain employment. He said his home was in Maine, but the war with Germany broke that up and he was now without a place where he had any family or near relatives. He was given accommodations in the police station.

Travel was tremendously heavy this afternoon, both by rail and automobile. The New Haven road carried a very large number of passengers and the buses were equally well patronized. At one time the section in front of the railroad station was completely choked with cars and police officers were obliged to straighten them out so that a way out for the entangled machines could be made.

People who patronized the farce Babies a la Carte last week declare it to have been the worst entertainment, so far as merit goes, that ever appeared at a local theatre. The company represented that it is to spend this week in Brooklyn and then go to New York for a run. If it does not have the run when it has been there for a few days all who saw it here will be surprised.

Joseph Vicoso, of Hartford, was taken into custody here today for operating an auto without having a license to do so in his possession.

JAMES HAWKINS' CAR CRASHES INTO A TRUCK

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 30.—Last midnight James Hawkins of 2 Jay street, was bowling along in a Maxwell touring car on Montauk avenue, coming from Ocean beach. He had a party of fellows with him. At the bridge over the tracks of the New Haven railroad his car met that of a man named Fellman, understood to be in the flower business right at the bridge. A collision occurred and the Hawkins car was wrecked. It plunged into the Fellman machine, a truck that resisted the crash well. The parties in the Hawkins car were thrown out, but not seriously injured, though Hawkins sustained some cuts and scratches. Hawkins declares that a train had passed under the bridge at the time his car reached the spot where the crash occurred and that he was blinded by the steam and smoke from the engine. He is under arrest and the police declare that something other than smoke blinded Hawkins. He is charged with reckless driving. Fellman would say nothing about the collision this evening.

Edward Daniels, for many years a member of the New London police department, is visiting in New London. He is now working at his trade as a brickmason in New York.

Jefferson D. Wallace, Albert Di Rocci and Herbert J. Cook, members of the coast guard, were taken into custody this afternoon for reckless operation of motorcycles in passing intersecting streets without reducing the speed of their machines. It is alleged that they disregarded all rules as to the pace at which they were travelling. Maurice Mari was also arrested for reckless driving of an automobile.

HELD FINAL MEETING AT SPIRITUAL AGADEMY

As a fitting closing of the official church year, at the Spiritual Academy, Sunday, Mrs. Annie H. Parker, a favorite speaker and medium, held the undivided attention of large congregations at both services. Monday evening she again occupied the rostrum and gave a message service to a spellbound congregation. This was a benefit service, generously given the society by Mrs. Parker, and proved a splendid spiritual and financial success.

On last Wednesday evening, Mrs. Elizabeth Harlow Goetz of Philadelphia, the most brilliant woman orator in the Spiritualist field, and one of the most powerful factors in the National Spiritualist association of Washington, D. C., came to the Spiritual Academy, and delivered one of her stirring addresses. The academy was completely filled, and many were standing. The enthusiasm and fire of her oratory moved her hearers to frequent applause, and many remained to greet her personally.

President Charles A. Dowsett announced her appearance at the academy in the fall again, and the appearance of several of the most prominent mediums, on week day evenings during June.

JUDGE BARNES SPEAKER AT WEST PLAIN CEMETERY

Memorial day exercises for the soldier dead in West Plain cemetery were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the cemetery. In spite of the rain about 100 people attended the programme, which was featured by an address by Judge John H. Barnes of this city. Representatives of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., present included Henry G. Peck and A. O. Fairbanks. Sons of Veterans, were escorted by a troop of Boy Scouts, Scout Leader E. C. Dunbar in charge. The flower girls were Mildred Leffingwell and Helen Clifford.

The procession passed through the cemetery pausing at each grave, where after the flag had been placed in position, the flower girls placed roses on the grave. After visiting the 25 graves of Civil war veterans the procession proceeded to Avenue C where Judge John H. Barnes delivered an impressive address on The Beauties of American Citizenship.

The programme was as follows: Singing by the Community chorus, led by A. H. Beebe, America; invocation, Rev. E. C. Dunbar; address, The Beauties of American Citizenship; singing by the Community chorus, Star Spangled Banner; Salute to the Flag; benediction, Rev. Mr. Dunbar.

Credit for the success of the exercises is due Mrs. John Ross, Miss Alice Bishop and Alfred H. Beebe.

NEW LONDON MUST PAY JOHANNA KEATING CLAIM

Judgments handed down by the supreme court in Bridgeport Monday, according to an Associated Press dispatch, included one New London county and one Tolland county decision as follows:

New London county, Johanna Keating against the city of New London. The sum of $7,126 awarded to plaintiff in superior court before Judge Christopher L. Avery for injuries suffered when she fell on an alleged defective sidewalk. No error. Decision by Justice Maltbie.

Tolland county, State of Connecticut against Joseph Poplowski. An action against Poplowski for permitting his horses to run at large upon the public highway without a keeper. One horse caused an automobile accident, and judgment was rendered against Poplowski before Judge Allyn L. Brown, superior court. No error. Decision by Justice Haines.

DUWELL'S BLOCK DANCE TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Although most of the Duwell programme planned for Monday had to be cancelled owing to the rain the block dance scheduled for Monday night will be held tonight (Tuesday) provided the weather is agreeable.

The lights are all up and everything is in readiness and rather than tear everything down it was found advisable to hold it tonight, so that the section of East Main street between the mill and Hamilton avenue corner will be closed to traffic until midnight and dancing enjoyed.

The Duwell orchestra composed of ten pieces, all Duwell members, will furnish the music.

These dances were held a few years ago and proved a huge success and no doubt the block dance tonight will attract a very large crowd.

CHILD SLIGHTLY INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Richard Watson, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Watson of No. 9 Garfield avenue, was knocked down Monday on Lausel Hill by a machine driven by Joseph Pothier of Merchants avenue, Taftville. The child ran into the rear mudguard of the machine and received abrasions and lacerations. He was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital for treatment and remained over night at the hospital. The machine is owned by Mrs. Zephrim Pothier. The child's injuries were slight.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Better Than a Cannibal Feast

Members of the Herbert E. Bradley African expedition found the natives of the Belgian Congo intensely fond of American food and willing to perform any service if they could be paid in the delicacy of their choice. This warrior, Nid Ugran, who lives in the cannibal country west of Lake Edward, loved his Horlick's Malted Milk for lunch just like an American business man. And the Horlick's package with its bright label was as attractive an ornament to him as a diamond tiara to a society leader. Mr. Bradley's pictures of African life have attracted world-wide attention.

Palace Theatre

If you would have your hair curled into a permanent wave, if you want to gnaw off all your fingernails, if you want palpitation of the heart, hysteria, general conniptions and many high nervous laughs, go to the Palace theatre this week and see the Roland West screen production of "The Bat".

The advice should be taken only by seekers for real high-powered entertainment, who are prepared to see what the tremendous resources of the famous picture can do to interpret the famous and perennial Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood stage success, which played as long as two years in one theatre with the limited staging of a legitimate show to give it atmosphere. Now in the film, all limits of a physical nature have been swept away, and the story romps along in four dimensions.

Right from the start things begin to happen—a skyscraper murder mystery, a bank robbery, then the intricate spasm of events at the Van Gorder mansion on Long Island. As in all genuine mystery plays, suspicion falls on one after another of all those in and about the premises and one man's guess is as good as his wife's until the big expose. One is led on in such openmouthed and trembling amazement that one hardly pauses to note the many dramatic and scenic devices which give the story its zest. But the speed and plausibility of incidents are so disarming that the result is an evening of complete enjoyment.

Nothing much dare be said about the plot, for fear of revealing that which is better enjoyed in the theatre. You will miss undoubtedly the most notable mystery melodrama of the screen if you do not see "The Bat." Not only will it give you thrills galore at the moment, but it will provide dinner table conversation for weeks trying to account for all that happened, in light of the denouement.

Broadway Theatre

"Stella Dallas," Samuel Goldwyn's latest production, directed by Henry King for United Artists corporation release is on the screen at the Broadway theatre for a limited engagement, the many admirers of Ronald Colman, favorite and magnetic leading man, will have an opportunity of seeing him in a characterization entirely different than any he has hitherto attempted.

As Stephen Dallas, the well-groomed and modern young business man, who, in a moment of regret, marries far beneath his station only to soon find the girl he thought he had lost, Colman is given opportunity for the greatest work of his career.

"Stella Dallas" is a story greatly out of the ordinary, with human interest galore—in fact, I might call it the epic of modern American middle-class life—not the 'Main Street' or 'Babbitt' sort of thing, but a real drama, woven about real people such as may be found in every town and city, whose problems are perhaps more complicated and more trying than those of either the higher or lower classes.

"Besides," he continued, "I consider it a rare privilege, indeed, to be permitted to work with Henry King, without doubt one of the greatest directors the industry has ever known. He seems capable of squeezing gripping drama from the simplest situation, and his human treatment of any theme is a revelation."

Colman's first motion picture work was done under Henry King as "Stella Dallas" was somewhat of a reunion.

The Academy Orchestra.

Patriotic interest is centering upon the solo numbers included in the programme for the annual concert to be given by the Academy orchestra at Slater Memorial hall on Wednesday evening, June 2. These numbers are certain to please and materially add to the evening's pleasure. The orchestra is at its best; the selections are varied, bright and worthwhile; and, there is every assurance that the concert will be a good one.

Tickets for the concert can be secured from members of the orchestra, or at Cranston's store for 75 cents each.

INJUNCTION SUIT TRIAL CONTINUED FOR TESTIMONY

Trial of the $1,500 damage suit brought by Mrs. Mary Donovan of this city against Pawel Stecewicz also of this city, was started Saturday morning before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas. The plaintiff, besides asking for damages, is seeking an injunction restraining the defendant from using the plaintiff's wal lfor a lateral support; that Stecewicz maintain a reasonable fence on his north line on Roath street and remove the wall and fence along his south line now maintained on the plaintiff's land and that the defendant cease collecting surface water and discharging it upon the plaintiff's land.

The plaintiff claims that she owns property on Roath street between which is the property belonging to the defendant. She alleges the defendant has undermined her retaining wall, causing it to cave in.

The case was continued until June 12th following the completion of the plaintiff's testimony.

Correcting Error

Through an unfortunate error in the notice of the Douglass-Ladd wedding in the Bulletin Monday morning, the groom's name was given as Everett Douglas, which caused this young man's family much embarrassment, which the Bulletin regrets. The name of the groom was William Douglass.

LEAGUE LEADERS SUFFER SETBACKS DURING THE WEEK

NEW YORK, May 31.—(AP)—Leaders of both major league circuits have been compelled to slacken their pace due to keen competition as the baseball season passes the quarter mark.

Inventory for the week discloses the shadow of Connie Mack's Athletics already clouding the Yankees' peak in the American scramble while the Cubs and Pirates are hard on the heels of the Reds, who hold the crest in the National league.

Judging from the fortunes of invading clubs in the first clash between the eastern and western contenders, the Yankees and Reds will find hard going when they take to the road soon.

The Philadelphia Americans topped their circuit for the week with seven victories out of eight games and led both leagues with 54 hits and eight home runs. It was Philadelphia that reined in the Yankees after the latter had won 16 consecutive games, the third longest winning streak in American league history. The Mackmen finished the week in second place, five honors in the week's statistics with five triumphs in seven contests. The games from the leaders.

If Cobb's Tigers carried off second Indians continued to be tossed about in the standing and wound up in a fifth place tie with the White Sox. A week ago, Speaker's tribe was camped in second place.

The Browns slump ended with Sisler's crew bagging four of six frays. Boston's Red Sox failed to register in the victory column and had six setbacks.

Art Fletcher's Phillies shared the best accounting in the National with the pirates, each team taking four of six games. The Reds broke even with four victories and as many defeats. Cincinnati jolted the Cardinals by making a clean sweep of a four game series. The Cards totalled seven home runs, the largest number for their credit.

Use of resin in the National league and the "lively ball" continued as topics for discussion. The National circuit where the use of rosin is officially approved had a total of 503 hits against 544 in the American in which pitchers are "requested" not to use the substance.

There were 27 home runs in the National and 26 in the American. Pitchers paid considerable respect to Babe Ruth's bat during the week. In one game alone the bambino was awarded four free passes.

UNEASY OVER FATE OF KIDNAPPED AMERICAN

MEXICO CITY, May 31.—(AP)—Increasing uneasiness is being shown by the American colony over the fate of John W. Shanklin, of Canyon, Tex., in the hands of bandits who gave notice that they intended to kill him last Thursday night unless a ransom of $20,000 was forthcoming.

Since Thursday, when a Vera Cruz dispatch announced that federal soldiers were ordered to exterminate the bandits who captured Shanklin, nothing whatever in the way of information has been received in Mexico City, either by the embassy, newspapers or government.

Science Finds Way to Make Pale Thin Children Plump and Healthy Quickly

New Form of Natural Food Makes Them Strong and Sturdy.

Food in youth is the most important thing. Without proper nourishment the foundation for health in after years cannot be built.

Unless children get a plentiful supply of the vital food factors such as vitamins and organic plant salts of iron, lime and phosphorous, they will not have strong bone and sound teeth.

When your children are thin, pale and listless, you can lay it to the fact that they are not getting from their daily food a sufficient quantity of these important elements of life.

You must help Nature build them up by supplying the deficiency. Everybody knows that the best natural way to give children all these vital elements is to give them good old Cod Liver Extract. But because of its nasty fishy taste and odor, many young, weakened stomachs cannot stand it.

Now, however, all disadvantages have been removed by a big advance of Science. A way has been found to concentrate all the vital elements of Cod Livers into pleasant, easy-to-take tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They are a real food help. They quickly build up frail, puny bodies and bring back the bloom of health to white, sunken cheeks.

In fact, the results from the use of McCoy's Tablets have been so remarkable in literally thousands of cases, they are now sold by Lee & Osgood Co. or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee to add at least 5 pounds of healthy flesh after 30 days' use or your money will be instantly refunded.

Protect your child's health, fortify his strength for future years. Give him the priceless gift of sound teeth throughout life by beginning treatment with McCoy's Tablets today. 60 for 60 cents.

CENTRAL VERMONT FREIGHT WRECK AT SOUTH WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, May 31—Eight cars of a northbound freight of the Central Vermont railroad, and made up of a string of 14 cars, besides the engine and caboose, piled into a heap of wreckage and tore up the tracks for about a hundred yards in a derailment at the switch about 100 feet below South Windham station at 7 o'clock this morning. The caboose remained on the track. Of the eight cars derailed five were of the gondola type and heavily ladened with track rails. Three were box cars, two of them steel, loaded with big wire rope and one with chocolates.

Wrecking crews from New London, Norwich, Palmer and Brattleboro, Vt., and an estimated 45 hour task to clear the wreckage, which is considered one of the worst in this section in some time, although there was no loss of life or of the contents of the cars. The five gondola cars suffered the most, two of them plowing from the tracks and becoming half buried in the dirt embankment. The rails ripped from the roadbed were twisted into a tangled mass. Several of the trucks on the cars were pulled off and thrown to one side. One rail was hurled into the air, piercing the stone base of the the water tower near the station. The rail missed striking the water pipe running from the ground into the tank by a hair margin, thus narrowly averting adding to the disaster by the sudden flood of the contents of the tank. The three box cars were at the end of the train, the one containing the assignment of chocolates was thrown about so that it lay diagonally across the track. The merchandise was not damaged, however.

Fortunately traffic over the line was not tied up as the accident happened after crossing the switch which connects the main line with a spur track at the station. The next train through after the accident was the boat train from New London early Monday morning. There was but little delay in switching this and subsequent trains over the spur. The engine of the freight with the six cars immediately behind and the caboose continued the journey sometime after the mishap. The freight was in charge of Engineer Klinefelder and Conductor Pingree, both of Brattleboro.

There is a diversity of opinion as to the cause of the accident. The first reason given was that the switch was split. It is said, however, that Superintendent Harris who has charge of the New London-Palmer division denied this as the cause. It is claimed he found the frog at the switch undamaged, and gave it as his opinion that some defect in the forward car of the eight derailed caused the mishap. The car in question is of the steel gondola type about 45 feet long, with capacity of 70 tons. This car like the other five of the same type was loaded with track rails, the property of the railroad. The car was but little damaged. It was the first to be replaced on the track early Monday evening.

POETRY

The Last Furrow

The Spirit of Earth, with still restoring hands,
Mid ruin moves, in glimmering chasm gropes,
And mosses mantle, and the bright flower opes;
But Death, the Ploughman wanders in all lands,
And to the last of Earth his furrow stands.
The grave is never hidden; fearful hopes
Follow the dead upon the fading slopes,
And there wild memories moet upon the sands.
When willows fling their banners to the plain,
When rumor of winds and sound of sudden showers
Disturb the dream of winter, all in vain
The grasses hurry to the graves, the flowers
Toss their wild torches on their windy towers;
Yet are the bleak graves lonely in the rain.

—Edwin Markham.

Ballade of the Primitive Jest

I am an ancient Jest!
Palaeolithic man
In his arboreal nest
The sparks of fun would fan;
My outline did he plan,
And laughed like one possessed,
'Twas thus my course began,
I am a Merry Jest!

I am an early Jest!
Man delved, and built, and span;
Then wandered South and West
The peoples Aryan,
I journeyed in their van;
The Smites, too, confessed,—
From Beersheba to Dan,—
I am a Merry Jest!

I am an ancient Jest!
Through all the human clan,
Red, black, white, free, oppressed,
Hilarious I ran!
I'm found in Lucian,
In Poggio, and the rest,
I'm dear to Moll and Nan!
I am a Merry Jest!

ENVOY

Prince, you may storm and ban—
Joe Millers are a pest,
Suppress me if you can!
I am a Merry Jest!

—Andrew Lang.

The cotton boll weevil, one of the worst enemies of American agriculture, threatens to be unusually numerous this year, according to United States department of agriculture scouts sent out against the armies of insect pests. Both in the older cotton regions of the south and in the Arizona fields the overwintering insects have been found in considerable numbers. At Tallulah, Louisiana, an examination of Spanish moss, in which the weevils usually take shelter for the winter, disclosed 280 of them to a ton of moss, as compared with 16 a ton in 1924, 230 a ton in 1923 and 137 in 1917.

A combination choral and athletic invasion of Europe this summer is planned by Northwestern university. Three hundred students and professors have been mobilized for the tour, leaving New York July 3, returning 78 days later. Dick Howell, Olympic swimming star, will double in bass. Charles Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, will take his bride on the trip and probably enter some American university on his return. The university's world-record swimming relay team will enter the 14-mile River Seine swim. The group is being organized into a chorus under the director of the Glee club. A violin and piano soloist will go along.

When Sheriff Al Smith, of Salina, Kas., enters his motor car, there is no unusual alarm, but when a stranger enters it the horn begins sounding and goes at the rate of about three toots a second. A man whose car was parked beside the sheriff's car attempted to back out and his fender rubbed the officials car. At once the horn began sounding the alarm. The sheriff rushed out to the curbing from a store, expecting to pick up a thief. "Wassa matter with that car?" asked the man in the car, trying to back out. "Nothing at all, except that it is calling me," answered the sheriff.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF MR. & MRS. FRANK R. ROBBINS

FRANK R. ROBBINS

MRS. FRANK R. ROBBINS

At their home, 157 West Town street, Norwich Town, where they have resided for the past nine years, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Robbins quietly observed on Monday their golden wedding anniversary. Their home has been in Norwich for all their married life.

A number of fine gifts in gold, flowers and fruit sent by relatives and friends made the day memorable Monday, conveying the kindly thought and good wishes of the donors. On Sunday the couple had a call from Mrs. John Collins, a niece of Mrs. Robbins, who came on from Sandwich, Mass., to bring her congratulations and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbins were married May 31, 1876, by Rev. William S. Palmer of the old Second Congregational church. The ceremony was performed at the minister's house. They resided for a short time after their marriage in the old Capt. Whaley house on Main street, but then moved to a tenement in the Chapman house, 21 Fairmount street, where they lived for 21 years. Nine years ago they moved to Norwich Town.

Mr. Robbins was born July 30, 1848, his parents, Orrin and Julia Robbins, living in the second house on Asylum street from the corner of West Main street. He learned the trade of a machinist and worked for 25 years in the C. B. Rogers & Co. shop and about 15 years in the Hopkins & Allen shop. He has suffered with asthma for years and was obliged to give up work nine years ago.

Mrs. Robbins, whose maiden name was Jennie E. Walls, was born in Danielson, March 2, 1847, the daughter of Samuel and Sarah Williams Walls. When she was quite a small girl her parents removed to this city, where her father for many years conducted a fish market where the Lucas fish market now is at 104 West Main street. She is a member of the United Congregational church but before the union of the Second and Broadway churches had been a member of the Second Congregational church over 60 years.

Mr. Robbins has two sisters living, Mrs. Billings T. Payne of Westerly and Mrs. Robert White of Willimantic. Mrs. Robbins' nearest relative is her niece, Mrs. James Collins of Sandwich, Mass.

HAS LOST FAITH IN CLOUD DIGGER'S PREDICTIONS

One local man, at least, has lost faith in the accuracy of the Clouddigger's weather predictions, which, as far as he is concerned are nothing more or less than guesses. Anyone can guess what the weather is going to be any day for it is a fifty-fifty proposition that he will be right, he said Monday evening.

"To begin with, where is the hot wave that the weather sharp from up statep redicted would sweep over us May 26, 27 and 28th?" he continued. "Attaching some faith in the prediction I hurriedly put up my screen doors and got my electric fan out of storage in anticipation of the terrible heat that was on the way to Connecticut. Instead of sweltering and gasping for breath during those three days, I wore my winter overcoat and we burned up the last of our coal supply to keep the house warm.

"Well, the much heralded heat wave failed to put in an appearance, and hasn't shown up yet. Now about the prediction for Monday, May 31st. The Clouddigger, a few days ago in one of his so-called predictions said he could see no rain in sight for that day and that it would be a pleasant day, unless there should be a sudden thunder storm. Anticipating a nice, warm, balmy spring day I dropped into a local store and equipped myself with one of the latest straw hats. I wore it Sunday afternoon, but discarded it in the evening, wearing my overcoat and last winter's hat. This didn't disturb me much, for I remembered that the weather sharp stated that there would be a frost during the early morning Monday.

"The only frost I could see Monday was in the Clouddigger's prediction, for instead of the warm, balmy day promised us there were cloudy skies and rain practically all day, and it is still raining tonight. The Clouddigger claims to be a long distance weather man so it may be that the heat wave he predicted for the 26th, 27th and 28th, was for the torrid zone and not for our part of the country. I am not much interested in what the weather is going to be in Africa or Australia. What I am interested in is what the weather is going to be in Norwich and eastern Connecticut. Let's see what the Clouddigger can do fr rthe section of the state he lives in," concluded the Norwich man.

Twelfth Birthday Party

A pretty birthday party was given by Mrs. L. L. Hayden 73 Chestnut street last Friday afternoon from 4 to 8 o'clock for the 12th birthday of her daughter Lucille. Games were played and refreshments were served in plenty.

Lucille was the recipient of many pretty presents. Those attending were Marion and Helen Pendleton, Nancy Pitcher, Doris Brown, Alice Woodman, Eleanor Freeman, Evelyn Donahue, Helen O'Brien, Francis Chapman, Ralph Liepold, Gordon Cruickshank Franklin and William Powell and Clyde Hayden.

Historic Clock Cuts Up

The dignified town clock which has told the hours for generations in the spire of the stately and ancient Congregational church at Lebanon suddenly had a clock brainstorm, the other evening. On striking the hour it kept right on, giving the townspeople a thrill, as they supposed it an alarm for a fire. As it continued—one truthful citizen declares for a thousand times — the trouble became apparent. The timepiece now refuses to strike at all, so will have to be repaired.

Jolly Social Club Met

The last meeting of the Jolly Social club was held at the home of Miss Pauline Wunderlich on Norwich avenue, Taftville. The evening was spent at sewing and fancy work. A supper was served in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wunderlich's twelfth anniversary. The next meeting will be held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Lee Roy Hill.

In addition to the list of surviving relatives published in connection with the death of Henry J. Adams of No. 7 Boswell avenue, there is a brother, Frank B. Adams of New York city, the famous "Yank" Adams, well known years ago as a finger billiards expert.

HOW DR. ROBERT P. KEEP SETTLED MEMORIAL PROBLEM

In a Memorial day editorial, Saturday's Hartford Times relates the following incident:

This year, May 30 happening to fall on a Sunday, formal observation of the usual ceremonies in most places is postponed until Monday, and everywhere, of course, the legal holiday is on that date. There is always a sense of increase in recreational privilege when a Monday holiday can add to the Saturday afternoon and entire rest of Sunday to make for many a three-day period instead of one, and give a much freer time for all.

Back in the 90's, when the late Dr. Robert P. Keep was principal of Norwich Free Academy, the boys were anxious to play ball on Memorial day and asked the doctor for the privilege. He rubbed his chin for some time in deliberation but finally decided that this should not be. "The day is too solemn and precious," said he, "to be disturbed by any such expression of frivolousness or gaiety on the part of the school." Yet early on the morning of the day, when it arrived, the late Patrick J. Rafferty, the janitor, approached Dr. Keep and inquired, "Sir, shall I hang the flag half-mast, or shall I hoist it to the top?" Again the good doctor rubbed his chin, but now concluded, "Memorial day has come generally to have such a holiday character I think you may as well hoist the flag to the top."

And so the public custom is now to give only a part of the day to the testimonials of the flowers, the visiting of cemeteries and the parades and grave services—for the rest there is scant suppression of the common effort for a "good time." We picnic and we golf and fish and play. Perhaps it is as well so. The more thoughtful and more freshly bereaved have no restriction upon the indulgence of their mood—and the lighter minded would remain light-minded even if the laws closed the lid down upon recreation tight as it used to be on the old Colonial Sundays.

AUTOMOBILES DID $33,820 DAMAGE IN NORWICH

Automobiles did more property damage in New Haven last year than in any other municipality of the state, according to a statement prepared by the state motor vehicle department subdividing, according to towns, the $2,130,877 damage estimated to have been done throughout the state during the year.

The damage in New Haven caused by 2,716 accidents was put at $214,929, while Hartford, which had more accidents, stood second in the matter of property damage, at $205,810, the estimates being made by the department upon reports of accidents submitted by operators involved, and department investigation wherever deemed necessary. The varying estimates of property damage written in accident reports by the operators are not relied upon.

Third in order with respect to property damage stood Bridgeport, with $178,727 destruction reported to have been done by 2,061 accidents. The damage done in other municipalities of the state was as follows: Waterbury, $98,242 in 1,484 accidents; New Britain, $64,586 in 836 accidents; Stamford, $63,725 in 855 accidents; Norwalk, $51,630 in 498 accidents; Meriden, $51,590 in 533 accidents; New London, $37,795 in 467 accidents; Norwich, $33,820 in 415 accidents; Bristol, $24,841 in 249 accidents; Torrington, $16,425 in 225 accidents and Ansonia, $13,218 in 134 accidents.

Most of the damage reported had to do chiefly with destruction of the motor vehicles themselves, in whole or in part, but the damage to other property is included. It will be noted that the damage per accident in cities on the main highway from Boston to New York by way of Hartford and Meriden, is larger than in most other cities.

Judge Yeomans Ill

The first short calendar sitting of the superior court, scheduled for the week end at Rockville, had to be postponed as Judge Edward M. Yeomans is a patient in the Hartford hospital. Court will open for the criminal sittings Tuesday.

MYSTIC'S NEW FEDERAL BUILDING IS DEDICATED

On Saturday evening, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, Assistant Postmaster William A. Wells, Foreman Maurice F. Kelly and a large delegation of clerks and carriers from the Norwich post office journeyed to Mystic to attend the dedication banquet and reception for the opening of the new federal building in Mystic.

After the inspection of the building, the local force, with nearly all the employes of the Westerly and New London offices, met at Odd Fellows hall where the following menu was served: Grape fruit cup, chicken pie, mashed potato, green peas, cabbage salad, pickles, celery, rolls, coffee, ice cream, cake, cigars, cigarettes.

Grinnell's orchestra furnished music during the entire evening. In addition to singers and entertainers from Hartford, W. Keigwin, a carrier at the Mystic office sang a number of solos in a very pleasing voice.

Postmaster Courtland C. Potter of Mystic made the address of welcome and although he modestly refrained from accepting any credit for the evening's celebration, it is well known in Mystic that he has worked indefatigably for years for the erection of a new post office and the betterment of the postal service there. His satisfaction at the completion of the building is the satisfaction of all the residents of Mystic.

Judge Costello of Groton was toastmaster and Postmaster Bailey and Attorney Edwin W. Higgins of this city were among the speakers. In his address the attorney told what a misnomer the term "pork barrel" is, stating that the erection of buildings or improvements under rivers and harbors appropriations are obtained only through the co-operation of the treasury department and then only after engineers and specialists in those departments see the necessity for the work.

One of the other speakers of the evening, whose talk held the close attention of his hearers was Mr. Johnson, the representative of the treasury department, under whose watchful supervision the building was erected. In addition to his inimitable manner of telling humorous negro stories, his description of the impressions held by many southerners toward their northern friends was very interesting. Mr. Johnson informed his listeners that when he left the south to cover northern territory he understood that particularly in New England he would meet a cold, distant type of American but instead, he met warm friendships, cordiality everywhere and hearty co-operation in his capacity as a treasury official.

The original bill which finally has resulted in the erection of the building was introduced about 13 years ago in congress by Congressman Higgins. The new federal building at Mystic is an example of what now appears to be the government policy in erecting buildings of the factory type instead of the ornate buildings such as were erected when the Norwich post office was built.

But the new Mystic post office building contains the latest devices for handling mails, especially parcel post matter, having equipment to give its patrons the best possible service.

FINE RECITAL GIVEN AT BALTIC ACADEMY

On Saturday evening Miss Mildred G. Lamb of Middletown, an alumna of the Academy of the Holy Family at Baltic, gave a most enjoyable recital in the Academy hall, where were gathered the students, the Sisters and a number of visiting friends. Her readings were pleasantly interspersed with vocal selections by Mrs. Alice McHugh, also of Middletown.

Every number of Miss Lamb's program brought a storm of applause. So varied a selection gave ample proof of the talented reader's ability in any line of dramatic art, whether Shakespearean classical, or the humorous impersonation of a shop girl at the movies. Mrs. McHugh's vocal selections were splendidly rendered in a voice at once powerful and beautiful.

The program was a follows: Morning, Stanton, Mrs. Alice McHugh; Group one, Miss Lamb, Soul of the Violin, M. M. Merrill, Seventeen, Booth Tarkington; Marchita, Schertzinger, Mrs. Alice McHugh; group two, Miss Lamb, Rosa, T. A. Doley, Streets Piana, W. Irwin; Danny Boy, Weatherly, Mrs. Alice McHugh; group three, Miss Lamb, Shakespeare, Macbeth, act one, scene five, As You Like it, act three, scene two; The Star, Rogers, Mrs. Alice McHugh; group four, Miss Lamb, impersonations, Lucille Gets Ready for the Dance, Peach Pie, Supposing, "Aw Shoot"; closing, Joyce Kilmer selection.

All who were present declared it one of the most delightful evenings ever spent at the academy.

Miss Lamb is rapidly rising in her profession, and is in frequent demand for recitals. She is also the Story Teller for "Children's Hour" at the public library in Middletown; besides, she is a very enthusiastic and successful teacher in one of the city schools of Middletown.

Alienation Suit Was Tried

At the Saturday session of the court of common pleas in this city the trial of the $1,500 alienation suit brought by Vincenzo Laviano, Norwich, against Louis Plotnky, Preston, was started before Judge Charles B. Waller. Judge Waller took the papers, reserving decision, after stating that the evidence as presented by the plaintiff was very scanty on the issues alleged.

Danger Signals of High Blood Pressure

"Dizzy spells, hot flashes, pains in the head, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness usually indicate high blood pressure," warns physician who found treatment to reduce it.

These are symptoms which show an accumulation of poisonous waste matter in the system or that one or more of your organs has weakened and caused the heart to be overtaxed. Check it at once for it is known high blood pressure brings on hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, Bright's disease, and often sudden death.

Nogma, a harmless purely vegetable medicine and a physician's prescription, reduces blood pressure so surely it is regarded as a great medical success. Often one bottle brings prompt relief. Ask for Normo for high blood pressure. For sale by Lee A. Osgood Drug Store and all other good druggists.

MADE CADET SERGEANT AT MANLIUS SCHOOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

MANLIUS, N. Y., May 31.—John H. Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Barrett, of Norwich, Conn., has been promoted to the rank of cadet-sergeant at the Manlius school, near Syracuse, New York. Cadet-Sergeant Barrett is spending his second year as a member of the reserve officers' training corps unit, maintained at Manlius by the war department, and during the major portion of that time has been attached to Company B, one of the school's crack rifle companies.

His devotion to duty and constant regard for school regulations are two factors which have combined to clear the way for Barrett's rapid rise in the ranks. In the Manlius academic and athletic worlds he has shown the same desire to forge ahead, and his work in both branches of school life at Manlius has been commendable.

Cadet Barrett is a member of the senior class and expect to matriculate at Cornell university upon the completion of his preparatory course at Manlius.

RAISING SEEDLINGS ON STATE HOSPITAL GROUNDS

Walter O. Filley, state forester, in charge of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, at New Haven, called at the Chamber of Commerce here last week in order to have some publicity regarding the forestry planting on the Norwich state hospital grounds. He says that through the co-operation between the Connecticut experimental station and the Norwich state hospital together with that of the federal government financial aid has been secured through the United States forest service to produce forestry planting stock for the use of Connecticut farmers. Over 350,000 seedlings, which included white pine, red pine, Scotch pine, white, spruce and balsam fir, have been set in transplant rows by the inmates of the Norwich state hospital. Next spring these seedlings will be distributed to farmers at cost price by the forestry department of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station at New Haven. Nearly two acres have been planted to these seedlings and nearly five weeks' time was consumed in planting them. A. B. Cooke of Groton has been in charge of the work. This is a regular part of the forestry development programme by the state of Connecticut.

WOMAN COULD NOT SLEEP

Her Mother-in-Law Knew A Remedy

Mrs. Belle Thompson, of Georgia, was in a very weak and run-down condition for four years. She had great difficulty in getting to sleep at night and even then did not sleep soundly. She would wake up again and again. Besides this her appetite was poor. "My mother-in-law told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash," she writes. "I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I was not the same woman at all. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does me more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."—Mrs. Belle Thompson, R. 2, Roseville, Georgia.

HEATED DEBATE ON FRENCH WAR DEBT IN THE HOUSE

Representatives Collier and Rainey, Both Democrats, Led the Attack Against the Settlement—Representative Tilson, the Republican Leader, Served Notice That He Would Press For Action Today.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The house engaged today in heated debate on the French war debt settlement which was taken up after its opponents had won an initial skirmish by blocking an attempt to force a final vote on ratification before night adjournment.

Representative Tilson, the republican leader, however, served notice he would press for action tomorrow, explaining he was anxious to send the bill of ratification as speedily as possible to the senate where stiff opposition is expected.

The settlement, negotiated by the American debt commission, proposes funding the debt of $6,847,674,000 in principle and interest, over a 62-year period. Initial payments begin with $30,000,000 annually for the first two years, gradually increasing thereafter.

Representatives Collier, of Mississippi, and Rainey, of Illinois, both democrats, led the attack against the settlement on the grounds that it was not based on France's capacity to pay, Rainey contending that the ways and means committe in recommending acceptance of the agreement had only a statement from Secretary Mellon, head of the debt commission, to substantiate its action.

Mr. Rainey said the agreement was approved at a committee meeting of two hours and 15 minutes duration while other house committees pondered for months to obtain information on small claims against the government.

Proponents of the settlement, including Chairman Green, of the ways and means committee; Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, a member of the debt commission, and Representative Mills, republican, New York, rose vigorously to its defense.

Reviewing the economic condition of France, Mr. Green contended that country was taxed to the limit and that the terms of settlement were as favorable from the American standpoint as could be obtained at this time.

Mr. Burton said the terms would have been more favorable to the United States if there were assurance that Germany would meet all reparation payments.

He defended the French Moroccan policy, contending expenditures in that direction could not be curtailed, as France was defending its flag as America would under similar circumstances.

Mr. Mills told the house, that the American people would ratify it 'not simply because it is just to us, but because in their hearts and conscience they believed it to be fair to France."

Describing its terms as "moderate" he said that while he believed the agreement could be justified on a "strictly commercial basis" that if it could not those who doubted its commercial soundness should "throw in the scale those spiritual values which are as essential to the life of a nation as they are to that of an individual."

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO THE WOMEN'S CLUBS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 1 (AP)—President Coolidge in a message tonight read before the General Federation of Women's Clubs, urged on the women the importance of their deliberations on the American home "The greatest single factor in our national life."

His message came as a part of an evening program devoted to the work of the juniors, the "young people" of the general federation. The message follows:

"It is with satisfaction I have learned the 'American Home' is to be the keynote of the program at the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

"Character developed in the early and formative period of the child in a very great measure determines that child's spiritual, moral and social reactions in after years. The home, then, must be considered as the greatest single influence in our national life. Whatever may be done to broaden and to enrich our home life is a vital contribution to the welfare of the country. It will be felt not alone in our private and social relations but in our public service and our national institutions as well.

"Will you please extend my greetings and best wishes to the members of your organization in convention assembled, and say to them that I am sure their deliberations will be productive of much good."

TWENTY DAYS, $100 FINE FIRST OFFENSE OF DRUNKEN DRIVER

HARTFORD, June 1.—(AP)—Declaring that drunken driving by motorists was one of the most serious menaces the state had to contend with in this age, Judge Leonard J. Nickerson sentenced a New Haven man, Frank B. Smith to pay a fine of $100 and costs and serve 20 days in jail for the first offense, at the opening of the criminal superior court today. The man had appealed a sentence of $100 and five days from the lower court which he thought was excessive. Smith, through his lawyer, Harry Tolver, of New Haven, said he stopped as soon as he could.

BORAH TARGET FOR WET LEADERS IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—New skirmishes in the prohibition war were engaged in today at the capitol while a senate judiciary sub-committee was battling without immediate success over the legality of President Coolidge's order authorizing the employment of state officers as prohibition enforcement agents.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, found himself the target for some of the wet leaders in the senate as a result of his Sunday address at Baltimore declaring against state prohibition referendums and warning that candidates for office could not hide behind them to avoid declarations on the wet and dry issue.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, declared in a statement that the resubmission of the Eighteenth amendment as suggested by Senator Borah would accomplish nothing. He proposed that the wets and drys get together on an amendment that would provide some opportunity for a possible solution of existing conditions.

For his own part, Senator Borah declared that he would carry on the campaign begun at Baltimore on his own initiative and responsibility at such times as opportunity might present itself.

TWO WASHINGTON IRVING PASSENGERS ARE MISSING

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—A woman and her 3 year old daughter, passengers on the flagship Washington Irving, of the Hudson River Day line, which sank today in the Hudson river after a collision with a steel oil barge, had not been located tonight by officials of the line checking the passenger list. All other passengers and crew were reported safe.

The missing passengers are Mrs. Lynn A. Hoag, and her daughter, Mary, of New York, two other children of Mrs Hoag who were with her were put ashore when the steamer reached the pier in Jersey City opposite her slip. There were 200 passengers and a crew of 150 on the vessel.

The disappearance of the mother and child was discovered when the two other children were found wandering about the Jersey City pier crying for their mother. It was said the father was attending the American Pediatric convention at Niagara Falls, Canada, and that his wife and children were to meet him in Buffalo.

STEAMER RAMMED AND SUNK IN HUDSON RIVER

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Emerging from an impenetrable wall of fog today a big steel oil barge, one of a pair under convoy of the tug Thomas E. Moran, rammed and sank the steamer Washington Irving, flagship of the Hudson River Day line so quickly that 350 persons aboard had barely time to escape with their lives. No one was seriously injured. There were 200 passengers aboard and a crew of 150.

Through the seamanship of Captain David H. Deming, veteran skipper of the giant excursion steamer, the largest river passenger boat in the world, all on board were landed at Jersey City, a few minutes before the vessel settled in 35 feet of water.

The Washington Irving had just started on her daily run to Albany and had reached a point approximately in midstream from her North River pier, when the collision came. The steamer began to settle at once. Captain Deming signalled for full steam ahead and steered for the New Jersey side of the river. The whistle of the river boat blowing the short blasts of the distress signal, tugs and ferries hove alongside and took off some of the passengers.

Although the pumps failed to keep pace with the inrushing waters, men in the engine room and all other members of the crew remained at their posts until within a few feet of the shore at Jersacy City. Here the boat settled and improvised gangplanks permitted the passengers to walk ashore.

The excursion steamer's band performed an important part in preventing panic among the more anxious passengers. Immediately the danger was realized the band struck up jazz tunes which did much to reassure hysterical persons.

Officers and crew of the Washington Irving upheld the traditions of the sea and did not leave the ship until all passengers were safely ashore. There were complaints, however, that some male passengers forgot the code "women and children first" and had to be restrained by the ship's officers.

The Washington Irving is a steel "side-wheeler," of 4,000 tons, launched in 1913 and based on present costs, valued by the company at $1,000,000. She had a passenger capacity of 6,000.

The steamship company is confident the vessel will not be a total loss. An attempt to raise her from her resting place over the Holland tunnel was started today and it is planned to float the vessel into a dry dock and to begin repairs at once. The extent of the damages, which are below the water line, could not be determined.

Thomas L. Moran, head of the towing company operating the tug, blamed the fog for the accident. He said Captain Andrew Borck, who had charge of the tug, is thoroughly competent and familiar with the harbor waters.

The barge which sank the excursion steamer was itself damaged to the extent of about $8,000, it was said by the Seaboard Shipping corporation, the owners.

HARTFORD, June 1.—(AP)—Former State Senator Elizur Stillman Goodrich, 92, in Hartford and vicinity more than half a century; president of the Hartford and Wethersfield Horse Railway company 1864-1906; president of the Hartford and New York Transportation company, 1885-1906; and a man remarkable for his vitality and energy, until four weeks ago, though in his 92nd year, died at his home in Wethersfield today. Death was due to the infirmities of old age.

Mr. Goodrich was born in Wethersfield, December 28, 1834, a son of Elizur Goodrich and Jerusha W. (Stillman) Goodrich. He was a descendant of William Goodrich, of England, who settled in Wethersfield in 1635 and was a representative in the general court in 1662.

SUPREME COURT TO TAKE UP RHODE ISLAND CASE

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—The supreme court will give special consideration to a case from Rhode Island, involving the right of the federal government to confiscate vessels and vehicles seized by state officials while transporting liquor.

Agreeing with government counsel that the point should be settled as soon as possible the court decided today to hear the case on October 4, ahead of the regular order.

The proceedings involve the "Ray of Block Island," a Providence motor boat seized by the police, and turned over by them to the federal authorities. In this and similar cases the decision of the lower courts are conflicting.

Day in Jail Sentence For Newspapermen

Fi[illegible]nalized in Baltimore Contempt of Court During Whittemore Trial.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 1.—(AP)—Labelled as the products of a "journalistic system," which conceives its duty to its employer and its reading public as above the law, five newspapermen were sentenced to a day in jail by Criminal Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne today.

Harold E. Elliston, managing editor of the Baltimore News, in addition to the jail sentence, was fined $5,000.

All were cited for contempt of court in the publication of court room photographs of the Richard Reese Whittemore murder trial on May 19.

Besides Elliston, those involved were Harry Clark, city editor of the News; Earl C. Deland, managing editor of the Baltimore American, and William Klemm and William Sturm, photographers employed by the News and American.

Judge O'Dunne, although stating that in his opinion his judgment was not appealable, granted permission for an appeal to the Maryland appellate court to determine the point, and released the defendants on their own recognizance. The case probably will not be argued before fall.

"The theory of my sentence is about this," Judge O'Dunne said:

"That all of these defendants are but the product of a journalistic system which looks upon its conception of duty to its employer and its reading public as above the law.

"The person highest in authority in this jurisdiction to whom the trial of personal responsibility, as far as disclosed by the record in this case, is Mr. Harold Elliston, managing editor of the Baltimore News, one of the Hearst newspapers in this community. They are but the product of a system.

"As the dignified affairs of the legal forum were shifted to the commerce of the street for the benefit of the Hearst International Reel Corporation, with its world wide distribution, it may not be too much to expect that the system and the syndicate of which he but a local operator, will pay the fine, and in that commercialism will be robbed of its chief incentive to make profit out of the administration of justice in defiance of the orders of the court."

Judge O'Dunne added that the testimony of all defendants had been "characterized by the utmost frankness and candor," and "the profession of journalism might point with pride if this fact if it could be thought that it was due to habits begotten of long journalistic training. Personally, I must attribute it to their own integrity rather than to habit formed by their professional careers."

"Courts must view with alarm the journalistic morals which find expression through Mr. Elliston, the managing editor of a great paper, that his duty to his readers and to his employer comes ahead of his duty to the courts of the land—without the protection of which the acquisition of wealth is insecure," he said.

The news published pictures taken in the court room in afternoon editions of May 19, the opening day of the trial. The American published the same pictures the following morning. Judge O'Dunne, shortly after the opening of court, had forbidden, in a formal order, from the bench, the taking of photographs. He confiscated a plate from Klemm's camera, later finding it to be blank, he said. Counsel for the newspapermen argued that the taking of the photographs has not created a disturbance, and that Judge O'Dunne had not been aware they had been taken until he saw them published. Whittemore was convicted of first degree murder on May 21 and is now awaiting supreme bench decision on a motion for a new trial, due tomorrow.

ELDERLY MAN HELD FOR KILLING TWO WOODCHOPPERS

RUTLAND, Vt., June 1.—(AP)—A 60-year-old farmer of powerful physique admitted to police today that he struck down with his fists two brothers found dead in his barn, Randall Tubbs, the farmer, was held on a technical charge of murder. Having injured one arm in the fight, he hunted up his son and was driven by him to Rutland to be treated. the police were told. They asked a physician to come to the farm and attend to the injuries of the two men. The doctor made the trip but also notified Sheriff Henry R. Adams who also went to Tubbs' with some deputies. OVERWHELMING VICTORY FOR BRIAND IN FRENCH CHAMBER

PARIS, June 1.—(AP)—The Briand ministry, aided by a powerful outburst against his political opponents by the premier himself, today weathered the second storm within a week and obtained an overwhelming vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies.

Premier Briand, defying the radical members of his own majority, refused to discuss the financial situation at the present time and on this issue gained the vote of confidence. He declared he had had enough of the present parliamentary tactics and would abandon the helm unless he were left in peace to work out the financial salvation of the country.

The premier brought a safe majority of the chamber through a burst of eloquence savoring of his old time oratorical triumphs. The vote was 313 in support of the government to 247 against. This consisted a clear majority of the entire chamber of 21 votes and was a majority of 168 of those voting.

The radical party was unable to agree on a line of action, and at the last moment split into three factions, some voting for the government, some against and a large group abstaining.

"There have been enough of these repeated attacks," the premier exclaimed to the chamber. "The government refused to allow itself to be bled drop by drop until it falls from anemia, let those who have no confidence in it come into the open and say so."

The premier refused even to discuss the financial programme now or to fix an early date when he would come before the chamber with new financial measures. This aggressiveness and stubbornness of resisting a considerable [illegible] majority surprised the leaders of the movement to overthrow the cabinet. It brought him stout support from the moderate and conservatives.

The impression tonight in political circles was that Premier Briand will remain at the helm until financial restoration is completed and that he will then retire.

PONZI ASKS DELAY IN COURT PROCEEDINGS

BOSTON, June 1.—(AP)—A delay in court proceedings was asked tonight by Charles Ponzi, one time financial "wizard" who was defaulted in the superior criminal court here today.

Under sentence of from seven to nine years as a "common and notorious thief," Ponzi failed to appear in court for re-sentencing after the failure of his appeal to the state supreme court. Judge Frederick W. Fosdick ordered him defaulted and the state took steps to sue Mrs. Bernilde B. Malaguti who furnished bail of $10,000 for him last July 13.

Judge Fosdick tonight received the following telegram from Ponzi in Jacksonville, Fla.:

"Bondsman's telegram received this 4 p. m. Officially notified me for first time as to court order. May I have 10 days delay for appearance? Am under bond here and need consent to leave state. Also must settle my affairs. Please wire me your orders collect."

The wire was signed Charles Ponzi. Judge Fosdick declined to state what his course would be.

FIVE YEARS IN PRISON AND $10,000 FINE FOR BOOTLEGGER EVADING INCOME TAX

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—Charles J. Steinberg, the first bootlegger to be prosecuted for failure to pay income tax on the profits of his illegal profession, must spend five years in the federal prison at Atlanta and pay a $10,000 fine, by order of the circuit court of appeals, which today rendered a reversal of its previous decision setting aside conviction.

Steinberg, a lawyer and wholesale druggist, was acquitted in 1925 of defrauding the government by liquor withdrawals and was then indicted for perjury and filing false income tax returns. He was charged in the indictment with paying a tax of only $424.53 in 1920-21 whereas it was said he should have paid $540,000 on a "drug" business, said to have been actually a bootlegging enterprise, aggregating $1,500,000.

His private memorandum book was produced showing records of graft payments of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and indicating that $750,000 had been paid a former secretary in the office of the federal prohibition director in Washington. At his trial revenue agents testified the defendant had told them this money had been paid to J. G. Caffrey, secretary to former Prohibition Director John F. Kramer.

He was found guilty of defrauding the government and sentenced in 1925 but the sentence was set aside.

United States Attorney Bruckner then moved for reconsideration, which was granted and resulted in affirmation of the original sentence today. Mr. Buckner said today there are numerous similar cases pending and if the first decision of the appellate court had been upheld a "legal jail delivery" might have resulted.

BELIEVE BOMBING RESULT OF SACCO-VANZETTI CASE

Home of a Relative of the Star Witness Against the World Famous Socialists Was Dynamited—Wrecked Farmhouse Near Bridgewater, Mass.—Family of Six Narrowly Escaped Death—Precautions Have Been Teen Taken to Protect Judges, Attorneys and Witnesses in the Celebrated Case.

WEST BRIDGEWATER, Mass., June 1.—(AP)—While Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, world-famous socialists and convicted murderers, awaited the expected imposition of the death sentence, a relative of the state's star witness was made the victim of the dynamiters. The home of Samuel Johnson, brother-in-law of Mrs. Simon Johnson, was bombed today, and only because he and his family slept in the unscathed part of the farmhouse, did they escape death or serious injury.

As a result of the bombing police guards tonight protected the homes of persons who played a leading part in the trial. While state authorities sought the dynamiters, precautions were taken to protect from further outbreaks judges, attorneys and witnesses concerned in the celebrated case.

A heavy charge of explosive, detonated while the family was asleep, wrecked the farmhouse in which Johnson lived. The farmer, his mother, wife and four children narrowly escaped death, it was believed.

State detectives said the dynamiters had entered the cellar by a bulkhead and placed the explosive by the cellar wall at the southeast corner of the house. So far as the police could determine, Johnson has no personal enemies. The explosion was heard for many miles.

The theory that the dynamiting was a result of the Sacco-Vanzetti case was based by state authorities on the fact that Mrs. Simon Johnson, wife of the farmer's brother, brought about the arrest of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vahzetti after a holdup in South Braintree in 1920 in which a paymaster and guard were shot to death. An automobile believed by the police to be the car used by the holdup men was left at a garage conducted by the Johnson brothers. On May 5, 1920, Michael Boda, accompanied by Sacco and Vanzetti, went to the garage to claim the car. Mrs. Johnson notified the police and Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested. Boda escaped. At the trial the woman was one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution.

The home of Simon Johnson, some distance from that of his brother was guarded today in the belief that the avengers had mistaken Samuel's home for that of Simon. District Attorney Winfield M. Wilbar of the Norfolk-Plymouth district who has been active in the prosecution of Sacco and Vanzetti, came here today to investigate the explosion. At his request the Brockton police stationed guards about the Wilbar home, which is in an isolated part of Brockton.

The wrecking of the Johnson home here caused a renewal of precautions in Boston and Worcester to guard officials who took a prominent part in the Sacco Vanzetti trial. In Worcester special police guards were placed at the home of Judge Webster Thayer who presided over the superior court, who presided at the trial and at that of Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the supreme court. The latter tribunal recently overruled bills of exceptions to the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti at Dedham in 1921, and sustained the verdict of the trial jury. In Boston guards were stationed about the courthouse.

State and Boston police heads refused to make public the details of the precautionary measures which were being taken in various parts of the state, but admitted that these were comprehensive. Neighbors of the Johnson family told of two automobiles having been seen speeding away in the direction of Brockton before the explosion. The police announced that a certain man was being sought for questioning in connection with the dynamiting, but refused to name him.

GIRL PEEPING IN CIRCUS WAS FATALLY INJURED

BRIDGEPORT, June 1.—(AP)—Struck by a hoe thrown by an employe of the Sells-Floto circus as she peeped under the canvas wall of the tent, Helen Bonkowski, 9 years old, of 314 Pine street, was fatally injured shortly after the opening of the night performance.

She was rushed to St. Vincent's hospital, but died on the way.

J. D. Newman, general agent of the circus, said the employe, one of the regular negro "canvasmen," had been adjusting the supports to one of the sections of seats, working under the seats while the performance was going on, and that he tossed the hoe aside and as he did so, a boy raised the tent wall and the girl thrust her head inside. The hoe struck her with great force.

Captain Charles A. Wheeler, of the third precinct of the police department was on the circus ground, and immediately sent in a call for all available policemen, to be prepared for possible disorder.

Nicholas Bunkocski, 12 years old, who was with his sister, said that they were on the outside of the circus tent with a number of other children. Some older boys were playing pranks, and one of these, according to Nicholas, saw the shadow of a man against the tent wall. The boy kicked the man inside the tent, and an instant later, Nicholas said, the hoe came hurtling out. It struck the girl on the head, and after knocking her down, glanced off and struck a boy, Frank Dessan, injuring his shoulder.

Three circus employes were taken in custody for questioning by the police within a few minutes after the fatality, but were released. The man who threw the hoe escaped, and police were making a search of each of the 32 cars in the circus train to see if he might be in hiding in one of them.

PRESIDENT LYNCH WAS DEFEATED IN I. T. U. ELECTION

INDIANAPOLIS, June 1.—(AP)—Charles P. Howard, of Chicago, heading the "progressive party" of the International Typographical union, apparently has been elected president of the organization on the face of virtually complete returns, received by mail from last Wednesday's election.

James M. Lynch, for more than a quarter of a century a prominent labor leader and for many years president of the Typographical union, went down to defeat, as head of the administration party.

Dissatisfaction over the administration's action in advancing the age of eligibility for the union's old age pension from 60 years to 65 years, and requiring all members should pay a minimum pension and mortuary fund assessment of $1.50 monthly, caused opponents of Lynch to center their attack on him, it was said by administration leaders today. J. W. Hays of Minneapolis, secretary treasurer and Seth R. Brown, first vice-president, of Los Angeles, both administration party candidates, were re-elected.

The outcome of the contest for second vice-president between Austin Howson, New York, "administration" and George Bentley, New York "progressive," is still in doubt.

ELINOR M. PATTERSON WEDS R. S. CODMAN, JR.

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—The marriage of Elinor M. Patterson, of Chicago, who left social activities for the stage, to Russell S. Codman, Jr., of Boston on May 25, was announced tonight by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Medill Patterson, of Chicago.

It was learned that the marriage took place at Putnam, Conn., but the announcement, made through the New York Daily News of which Mr. Patterson is part owner, gave no further details.

Mr. Codman, whose father is a financier, is a graduate of Harvard university, of the class of 1919. Mrs. Codman made her stage debut as the nun in the Chicago presentation of "The Miracle," alternating in the role with Lady Diana Manners and the Princess Maria Carmi Matchabelli.

For almost a year Mr. Codman has urged Miss Patterson to abandon her stage career and to cancel her contract with Morris Gest.

Mrs. Codman Jr., explained last night how the compromised agreement was reached. She said that perhaps her husband was right and that a domestic career came before a theatrical one.

"Of course the new contract with Mr. Gest is very much in the air. Mother and I are sailing on June 12 and we are going to spend August with Mr. Reinhardt at Salzburg," she said. Mr. Reinhardt is a German theatrical producer. Mr. Codman will not accompany his wife abroad.

The long and steep grade at South Coventry on the highway leading from that village to North Coventry was the scene of an automobile collision in which one car was badly damaged, another slightly and one man, William Wood, of 250 Potter street, South Manchester was injured, during the rainstorm Monday night. Wood was riding in a Ford car owned and operated by Earl Van Sicklin of Maple avenue, Unionville, which was coming down the grade. In the entrance to the road leading to Coventry lake, about the middle of the hill, was another car, owned and driven by Flora Kaplan of West Hartford. This machine backed out of the side road into the main highway just as the Ford was approaching. In an attempt to avert a collision Sicklin applied his brakes and the machine skidded and crashed into the rear of the other car, demolishing a rear fender and a portable trunk. The impact caused the Ford driver to lose control of his machine and it speeded across the road up a bank and then rolled backwards turning over on the highway. Wood was thrown against the windshield and he sustained a three-inch cut on his head and painful lacerations about the neck and shoulders. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital here where it was at first feared that he had a fractured skull. The Ford car was wrecked. The accident was investigated by State Policemen Walter Hardisty and Clifford Willis of the Stafford barracks. At the conclusion of his investigation the former stated that court proceedings would result. was granted a separation from her hus...

There are many citizens of the town of Ashford who feel that the selectmen of Ashford were given a plain mandate at the town meeting last October to adopt a plan for the improvement of the local highways and carry it out. The appropriation for highways was increased from $3,500 to $5,000 by special vote after full discussion. It was later announced that a well known resident had offered to add $1,000 to the $5,000 appropriation as soon as it appeared that the appropriation would be spent in some efficient plan it does not appear, however, that the present board of selectment are carrying out this mandate. According to people there it is known that the state highway department is willing to give the town the benefit of its course and experience, and it also suggested that co-operation can be had with the experience of neighboring towns such as Eastford, Union, Mansfield, and Willington. It is hoped that the present board of selectmen will "get a move on" at an early date, according to the opinion of residents, who feel assured that a strong public sentiment will approve the adoption of some constructive policy of highway improvement.

There will be a meeting at Knowlton Memorial hall next Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock to consider plans for the proposed Ashford Foundation. Although primarily a meeting of the prospective incorporators, all residents of Ashford and former residents as well as descendants are invited to join the foundation.

COLCHESTER

Memorial day was the quietest one that the town has ever known. There was nothing going on. It was the first time that the day passed without memorial services of some kind. There was no decorating of graves or monuments or exercises by the schools. There are no veterans left. The day in the past was looked forward to as a day when the veterans and their friends would gather and exercises would be held and the graves of the soldiers were decorated. The American Legion post would turn out and decorate the graves of their departed members, but this year nothing was done to commemorate their passing away.

The day was stormy and there being no exercises, many went to nearby cities and towns and attended exercises there.

Miss Marian Wickwire was a guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Wickwire on Hayward avenue the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey and children of New Britain, were guests of Mr. Bailey's parents on South Main street Sunday and Monday.

Edgar A. Carrier of North Westchester was a caller here Monday.

Jeremiah Wilcox, of Fitchville, formerly of this place, was calling on friends here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hammond and daughter of Springfield, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Willard Saturday.

Oliver Woodhouse lodge, Knights of Pythias, met in Pythian hall Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance. The nomination of officers for the ensuing term was held.

Isaac Neleber of New York was visiting relatives in town over Memorial day.

Gilbert J. Murray was a business caller in Norwich Tuesday.

A number from town went to Norwich Tuesday to get naturalization papers.

HANOVER

The May missionary meeting was held in the parish house Thursday afternoon when a fine programme was given by the leader, Mrs. Henry Hazen. Mrs. Frank Doyle and Mrs. Thomas Bamford were hostesses.

New Steam Boiler

A steam boiler of revolutionary design has been produced by a German engineer inventor, Bernhard Becker. When stripped of its insulation it is a cubical box only about 12 inches on a side, but its inventor claims it can produce more than 600 pounds of steam an hour and get up a pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch in five minutes.

DANIELSON

MISS KONGER TO BE GUEST OF DANIELSON GIRLS' CLUB

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 1—Miss Barbara Konger, prominent in Girls' club work in Connecticut, will be a guest Thursday evening at an invitation dance and party arranged by the Danielson's Girls' club, the affair termed a spring frolic. For those who do not wish to dance, other diversion and entertainment is to be provided. Members of the club have planned a special decoration and arrangement of the hall for this occasion.

Aeroplanes that have been soaring over Danielson almost daily for a week past forecast the coming of the Boston-New York aerial mail service by the Colonial Airways, Inc., the first of the coming month. One of the mail planes will pass over Danielson each morning and each evening and will become a familiar sight. Pilots that have been guiding machines over Danielson the past few days have been flying more than ordinarily low, something that has led many here to assume that they have been trying to familiarize themselves with the character of the country. The development of the proposed emergency landing field on the borough farm off Dyer street has not been undertaken as yet, but it is a matter that in all probability will receive attention during the warm weather season.

All deposits made in our savings department before June 5th, will not only receive interest from June 1st, but will commence to have their interest compounded on deposits made prior to June 1st. The Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn.—adv.

It may be necessary to further restrict parking on Main street, in the section between Academy and Main streets, where lines of machines on each side of the street leave but a narrow way through which traffic to squeeze. A suggestion has been heard that parking being limited to one side of the street in this section, but the matter has not formally been presented to borough officials for consideration.

Egg prices are on the upward trend again. Poultrymen are now getting a higher price than the minimums of 30 and 33 cents that were touched for the season a few weeks ago. Thousands of dozens of eggs go out of this district every month for city markets.

Three weeks from next Thursday will be graduation day for the members of the senior class of Killingly high school, with class day exercises in the afternoon and graduation in the evening. The class reception and dance will be on the evening of Friday, June 25th.

The rapid development of L'Homme street has proved one of the surprises that former residents who visited here over the holiday season experienced. In almost equal measure this development has been a surprise to numbers of Danielson people who have only recently happened to visit this street, where a number of fine homes have been constructed.

Herbert Pepler won the handicap match cup in the Memorial day play at the Putnam Country club from Victor Anderson another Danielson man who was left to contest after fourteen of the sixteen entrants had been eliminated. A large gallery saw the match and followed it with interest. The holiday events at the club began with a dance last Friday evening and made a gala period for the members and their guests. A dinner was served at the clubhouse Memorial day.

Miss Nellis Sullivan of Hartford has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

Remnants of the traffic that crowded the state highways here for three days continued to roll through on Tuesday.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank, Mrs. Bard and their son Sidney were at Waterbury Tuesday to attend the graduation of Miss Betty Bard from St. Margaret's school.

Herbert J. Barnett and Wellington E. Bitgood are among the members of Masonic bodies from this part of the state who have been attend the opening of the sesqui-centennial in Philadelphia, motoring to that city.

Changes that have been made in the threading of hydrants and hose in Danielson and surrounding towns now make it possible for apparatus from these towns to assist in any of the towns in case of emergency and calls for help.

Game officials are again calling attention to the fact that it is illegal to catch and retain yellow perch that are under seven inches in length. When perch under this length are taken they must be returned to the water.

Members of the Danielson Girls' club are preparing a program of special interest for their meeting on Thursday evening of this week.

It is a matter of great satisfaction that motoring accidents over the holiday were so few and so comparatively inconsequential in this and nearby territory. Considering the traffic density, the record was particularly good.

The several thousand apple trees in the Lapsley orchards on the Brooklyn-Pomfret landing road are now well past their period of bloom, although many of the trees are still with blossoms.

A team of boys representing a school in Arctic, R. I., came here on Memorial day for a baseball game with a team of St. James' school, the visitors winning a victory after a closely contested game.

So heavy was the riding on the Providence-Hartford coach line through here during the holiday period that double-header trips were quite common, one big machine following closely after another.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Salmon of Brooklyn announce the engagement of their daughter Gladys E. to George F. Holmes also of Brooklyn.

The Roundabout club will meet on Thursday with Mrs. Walter Anderson of Broad street.

Not enough rain came down in the Memorial day fall to make up the shortage created in the past two weeks and a half.

Louis S. Ingalls, who recently underwent a surgical operation at a Worcester hospital, continues to regain his strength and is well on the road to complete recovery.

Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks are planning to attend the Ladies' night session in Putnam on Friday.

Only a fortnight remains before the beginning of the long summer vacation for pupils in the graded schools of the town of Killingly.

There was an exceptionally heavy demand here for sets of flags to be affixed at Memorial day to radiator caps of motor cars.

A special train from the Boston and Maine road carrying Shriners from Maine to Philadelphia passed through Danielson.

Miss Sarah Higgins of Pawtucket, a resident here years ago, has been a guest of friends in town.

Though June is here heaters continue in use in numbers of the homes in Danielson.

Frederick Lahaie of Stamford was a visitor with relatives here over Memorial day.

Because of construction work being done between Chaplin and Willimantic that state highway route is being avoided by a considerable amount of traffic that ordinarily would pass that way.

New metal fencing is being put in position along the eastern frontage of St. James' cemetery to replace a fence of wood that had been there for many years. The new fencing will add to the present well kept appearance of the cemetery.

Still enthusiastic trout fishermen continue to indulge in visits to brooks in this territory, but with no great yield of fish, which appear to be very scarce.

A small cottage for Hollis Young is nearing completion on the southerly side of the Danielson-South Killingly highway.

There is something wrong with the small boy who isn't strenuous.

PUTNAM

A truck belonging to F. S. Bruce, which was parked near the top of the hill on School street, suddenly decided to coast. It went down Front street past the silent cop, passed under the railroad bridge, knocked down a "No Parking" sign, bumped into a car near the Chinese restaurant and came to a standstill against the curb. Practically no damage was done.

Miss Edmear Guy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zito Guy was recently surprised with a Steinway baby grand piano by her parents. Miss Guy is 16 years old but is a very talented musician and was recently presented in a piano recital by her teacher. Those who have heard Miss Guy have been delighted. Miss Guy is a member of the senior class of the Putnam high school and is one of the honor pupils.

THE SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

It will be 150 years ago the fourth of July that the Declaration of Independence was adopted and marking the beginning of the United States of America. It was the beginning of the struggle for American freedom and it was made in the city of Philadelphia.

In 1876 there was a great international exposition in the Quaker city in observance of the centennial, a celebration that was in keeping with the occasion and in which there was a participation from all corners of the country, a great patriotic demonstration and a remarkable disclosure of the progress that had been made in this country during 100 years.

This, the 150th anniversary of that great event cannot go unnoticed. Philadelphia is the place for it and in that city there has been opened this week the sesqui-centennial to continue for several months and to emphasize the advancement in the past 150 years.

There are those throughout the country who, as young people, participated 50 years ago in the centennial. That they will be eager, along with the millions of others to grace the present occasion, is to be expected. They will not only have a chance to look what the various exhibits show in the way of progress but they will have a chance to experience what great strides have been made in the means of getting there, transportation service, means of handling the crowds and in the growth of Philadelphia itself. That city is the center of great historic interest and none of the great treats of that patriotic shrine will be missed by the exposition crowds. Philadelphia is furnishing one of the big reasons this summer for seeing at least that part of America first, and with the anticipated visits from quarter of the country's population that city is prepared to do some entertaining.

ENFORCING REGULATIONS

Every now and then a judge finds it necessary to indicate that the time has come for the abandonment of the easy methods of the past and the adoption of more drastic measures to obtain greater respect for the law.

The latest warning comes from Judge Bartlett of Detroit, who is to sit at the head of the traffic court in that city for the next six months, and who seeks the cooperation of the citizens in this manner:

"I hope the citizens of Detroit will assist me, as they have done in the past, in my attempt to lessen the appalling death rate from automobile accidents in this city. * * Rich and poor may expect the same treatment. No guilty man that is brought before my court can expect leniency simply because he may have influential friends. I shall endeavor to be fair in every case. I shall give them the benefit of every doubt—but one who wilfully drives at high rates of speed through the streets at busy hours is going to jail."

That seems to be a fair enough proposition. Judge Bartlett talks as if he intended to do what he says and as if he knew the necessity of such action. He knows what has been produced by other methods and that they have not been an encouragement to respect for regulations. Like the boy squeezing under the circus tent, every time it is possible to get away with such methods the stronger is the disposition to tell about it, to repeat and to grow generally lax in obeying restrictions.

There is no excuse for the wilful violator. He is dangerous and he sets a bad example for all others. If a few are going to be tolerated it is a gross injustice to prosecute others, but with those depended upon to enforce the law doing their duty regulations will accomplish what they are expected to. And there is no more important part of the enforcement machinery than the judge.

THE BORAH ATTITUDE

Speaking in Baltimore in behalf of constitutional government and the Volstead act and against the idea of referendums on the question of prohibition Senator Borah asked these questions: "Shall we live up to and enforce the provision of the Constitution until in the orderly method pointed out by the Constitution we see fit to change it? Can we enforce the law which we have deliberately made? The supreme test of a free government is the right of the people to write and unwrite its constitution and its laws. The supreme test of good citizenship is to obey the constitution and the laws when written. To disregard our Constitution, to evade it, to nullify it, while still refusing to change it, is to plant the seeds of destruction in the heart of the nation—is to confess before the world that we have neither the moral courage nor the intellectual sturdiness for self government."

As far as enforcement is concerned he cannot fail to know the situation, but he indicates that he is opposed to state referendums, and of course he is not alone in such a stand. He opposes them because they actually accomplish nothing and make it easy for candidates. He probably is aware of the fact that candidates and even officeholders are striving to represent the sentiment of the people. They are engaged in a gigantic piece of guesswork in many instances. They may guess right and they may guess wrong, and there are all kinds of flares sent up claiming one thing and another. In various states now there are claims that both the drys and the wets are in the majority, and the argument may be endless because there has been no expression directly on the matter.

The state referendum may accomplish nothing so far as changing the Constitution. It may show wet or it may show dry, but it is quite evident that it would overcome the practice of judging the sentiment of the people on the basis of a certain personality nominated for or elected to office not for one but for perhaps a dozen reasons.

STEAMERS IN THE FOG

With the grounding of a Fall River liner and the sinking of a Hudson river boat, each with hundreds of passengers, investigations can be expected to be immediately started to determine the cause and responsibility.

In each case there was dense fog and it will be noted that the head of the towing company whose tug was guiding the oil barge that rammed the Hudson river boat was quick to place the blame upon the fog.

Fog has always been a serious menace to navigation. It creates conditions which make navigation extremely ticklish especially in congested waters, bordering almost on chance taking, and yet there are very few days or nights when water transportation is stopped because of it. By the aid of the compass, if the reckonings are right and nothing lies in the path, vessels make their run under reduced speed and come close to schedule without seriously inconveniencing their passengers many of whom think that no such obstacle should be allowed to interrupt the schedule.

There are times however, whether through accident, wrong reckoning or the fault of others, when something goes wrong and serious consequences follow. The investigators must determine where the fault was in the case of the Priscilla, whether the grounding would have occurred had there been no fog and whether navigation under the circumstances was proper, and so the case of the Washington Irving it must be determined whether the fault for the collision can be placed on the fog and no one else. There is too much at stake in the lives of those who were being transported for the taking of undue chances or the disregard of proper safety measures.

THE FRENCH DEBT

Committee reports, even though they are decidedly one sided, do not always mean that they are going to be quickly adopted in congress. Invariably a favorable report can be expected to be supported but there have been cases where it has been turned down.

No small amount of interest centers on the action of the lower house of congress relative to the favorable report of the ways and means committee for the ratification of the French debt settlement plan. The debt settlement commission has gone thoroughly into the question and placed its stamp of approval upon the arrangement, quite the same as it has done in each of the other plans. The house committee, with one exception, has been able to find nothing the matter with the manner in which the commission has treated the problem. It in fact endorses it, recognizes the need of the settlement and appreciates the benefits which will accrue to this country under it, even though France doesn't pay the last cent of interest that might be exacted.

It rests with congress to indicate its approval of what has been done and it is to be sincerely hoped that the confidence displayed by Floor Leader Tilson indicates what may be expected in the way of action by the house. It is time for it ever though there's no telling what the senate will do.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: The bathtub is all right in its place even if it has recently become notorious.

It may be a short season weatherwise for the mosquitoes but if style means anything it ought to be a merry one.

How eager congress is to do business is shown by the way it rushes into discussions about most everything else.

The shooting of four convicts who tried to escape in Arkansas will cause others to hesitate before visiting similar treatment.

While tidal conditions are to be studied by setting 10,000 bottles adrift at New York, thirst conditions will be indicated by the opening of a still larger number.

PERENNIALLY HOPEFUL

"I think I'm going to get engaged again," declared the perverse young man who always went contrary to rule. "It doesn't seem natural not to have letters in my mail Monday mornings saying: 'Dear sir, unless the November installment on diamond ring purchased of us last summer is paid in six days something is going to happen sure as fate!'

"I miss being called to the telephone right in the middle of a talk with my boss, who hates to be interrupted. This freedom is not what it is cracked up to be and so I am sort of looking around!"

"I can't believe it," his astounded roommate informed him. "Have you forgotten how you came in here a month ago with a harsh, cynical laugh, tossed a jewelry box on the dresser among the cigarette ashes and stated that you were through with women? You whistled and chortled joyously as you tied your ties the following week and happily planned all the things you were going to do or weren't going to do because your time was entirely your own.

"You said," the roommate continued, "that now it was all over, you could see you had been rescued from a hideous fate because the longer you considered Irene the more faults you could find in her tending to discount matrimonial happiness! Remember?"

"Nope," said the perverse young man. "But the longer you think of any woman the more astounded you are at the idea of marrying her! When a man is getting engaged he doesn't think. All he knows is that the most marvelous little creature that ever brightened this earth is smiling upon him.

"During that period that girl is positively everything that she makes her mind up he shall believe she is and that is a plenty. There are no limits to a girl's honest opinion of herself, and consider how happy the young man is in thinking that at last he has found a girl who is cream-puff, angel-to perfection! He may have been bitterly deceived by Kathryn, Babe and Julia in the past, but this time he is positive that Armelia is the glowing exception.

"Never would a girl like her turn jealous, selfish, extravagant and frozen hearted, no, no! Not much, he tells himself, would she turn him down, caring for him as she does, in favor of a new man with three cars and a millionaire father with severe heart trouble! No, the dear girl is the one woman in the world with a mind above mundane things—and help, how the jolt shakes his back teeth loose when she tells him suddenly it has all been a mistake and she has met her fate in Sally's cousin from Buffalo who can dance the Charleston to perfection!

"I've been sort of engaged a number of times and I have agreed to the plan of at least four different style living rooms and china patterns and vowed that each was precisely what I always had dreamed of and I have been amazed to find that I had fallen out of love with the first girl all by myself, that the second fell out of love with me, the third met the son of the rich man with delicate health.

"And you know Irene! It was sort of a spontaneous, united blowup with us, both sides winning! We shook hands and parted, each nursing a black eye, so to say. However, why should these annoying experiences bar me from being perfectly happy when there are so many lovely girls in the world—"

"Hm" the roommate commented. "Who is it this time? I sh'd think you'd learn after a while! I suppose she is a beauty, has a wonderful disposition, doesn't rouge or smoke when you're around, makes her own clothes and can bake cake—"

"Say, how'd you meet Edith?" demanded the perverse young man in great surprise. "Why, you're hit her off to a 'T'! There never was a girl like her! She—"

"Go away," the roommate said in extreme resignation. "There ain't no help for the ones like you, not a lick! Boy you deserve all you're going to get, I'm telling you!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Cornelius Vanderbilt, the boat Boy the Railroad King

A 16-year-old boy went around the wharves looking longingly at the sailboats. He asked how much they cost, where he could buy one, and which kind was better. He already knew all about boats, for he had sailed them since childhood. "If I had a boat I could do something," he said. Cornelius Vanderbilt got his boat—and he did something. It set him on the way to such an undreamed of fortune that his son was able to uproot the ancient Pharos of Egypt where it had stood for thousands of years and setting it up in Central Park. There is no telling what a boy can do if you only give him a boat—or a chance.

The Vanderbilts were Dutch people who had come with others to Brooklyn. A generation or so before Cornelius was born they had moved over to good old Staten Island where they could smell sea breezes and imagine they were back in Holland. Cornelius, like all Staten Island boys of that day, was a true boatman. He bought his own boat, and pleasant days and bad days alike saw him sailing all over New York harbor on all sorts of commissions. He bought other boats and hired men to sail them. Then came his really great idea. Men who succeed always look into the future. Fulton had invented the steamboat, and young Vanderbilt saw that sailboats might as well go out of business. Others, more conservative, didn't see it. Cornelius sold his sailboats and went into the steam business. He rose to the proud position of captain of a ferryboat—and what boy wouldn't like to be captain of a ferryboat? Then he played the old game all over again. He ran one boat and hired others to run other boats. Soon he had as many boats that he owned almost every one in sight. People called him "Commodore." By the time he had reached middle life New York harbor was too small to hold him, so he reached out into the ocean and sent ships over to Europe, up and down the coasts, and out to the Pacific. When he was beginning to be an old man he found the ocean too small. So he turned to the railroads and developed great lines that carried freight and passengers as his first little sailboat had done. When he died at 83 he controlled most of the great railroads of the United States, and he left to his family something like a hundred million dollars. All his life he had played one game, carrying people and freight, but he had played the game for all he was worth—and that's the only way to play any game.

Little Talks on Thrift

THRIFT EDUCATION

It is of special interest and importance to note that a national conference of educators has been called to meet in Philadelphia this summer for the purpose of furthering the thrift educational movement in this country.

Reports will be submitted on the progress that has been made in the work of teaching thrift in the schools, and plans will be developed for still further developing this great movement.

It is appropriate that the conference will be held in Philadelphia—a city so closely affiliated with the career of America's great thrift apostle, Benjamin Franklin. It is appropriate, too, that this conference, coming as it will on June 29, will be on the eve of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of our nation. Good thrift is good patriotism and any man who practices it contributes directly to the upbuilding of his country.

It will be interesting to learn just how far the work of teaching thrift in the schools has progressed. It was started at the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco in August 1915 when the international congress for thrift sent resolutions to the National Education association, recommending the advisability of teaching thrift in the schools. Accordingly, the national committee on thrift education was appointed as one of the standing committees of the national council of education.

During the intervening 11 years, the work has progressed—somewhat slowly at first, but always steadily—and now moving forward with tremendous momentum.

As we all know, lessons learned in childhood take a much stronger hold upon us than those acquired later in life. No person is too old to learn to practice thrift, but it is thrift of effort to concentrate our educational activities on children and young people.

Let the teachings of thrift in our schools be given every encouragement. By doing this we are laying a most substantial foundation for the future progress of our country.—American Society for Thrift.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

To those who understand the important part that has been played in the development of the New York Zoological Park by Dr. William T. Hornaday, for the past 30 years its director, the announcement of his retirement causes regret. Under his direction the park has become one of the finest institutions of its kind in the world. Dr. Hornaday also has been an insistent and successful champion of state and federal laws creating game preserves and protecting wild things. To him quite as much as to any man in the country not in official life is due the saving of creatures that otherwise were doomed to extinction under the attacks of "sportsmen" and commercial interests. Prior to settling down in New York, for a constructive and administrative task, Dr. Hornaday explored the world far and wide, as a collector for museums and as an expert in the employ of the nation.

CHILD TRAINING

ENGINE TROUBLE

Lucy Chandler Fuller

"Buzzzz," went the engine of Johnnie's imaginary automobile, "Buzzzz." "Must be out of gas," said Johnnie as he climbed out of the big rocker and looked at his gage—a large leather button at the back of the chair. "No, that's not it," mused the boy as he climbed into his make-believe machine. "Buzz," went the engine again as he put his foot on a spool—his starter.

"Come to supper," came a voice from downstairs.

"What can be the matter?" asked Johnnie aloud as he got out this time to investigate his oil.

"Johnnie, don't you hear Mother calling you?"

"Oh, how dumb!" ejaculated the boy as he climbed back into his car. "I never turned on the switch." "Buzz—chug—chug—chug," sounded the engine as he turned an imaginary key and put his foot on the starter.

"Johnnie, if you don't come now, you won't get any supper," came the voice again.

"Now she's going fine," sighed the lad as he turned the steering wheel—an embroidery hoop which he held in his hands.

For some little time, Johnnie drove his car through imaginary towns, up hills and across rivers. "Better get some supper here," he said at last as he stopped his rocker before a make-believe inn. The word "supper" seemed to bring something to his mind and he jumped and trotted downstairs at breakneck speed.

As he entered the dining-room, his mother and father were just finishing their dessert, and neither seemed to notice that he was there. He slid into his chair and at last ventured, "I'm hungry." Two big tears suddenly made the table look "blurry." "I'm hungry," repeated Johnnie and the tears started on their course down two rosy cheeks.

"I told you that if you didn't come you would miss your supper," quietly affirmed his mother.

"I want something to eat," cried the child and there were anger and rebellion in the tone.

"You know Mother always keeps her word. If you are going to act like that, you had better go right to bed."

At that suggestion Johnnie jumped down from his chair and threw himself on the floor, kicking and screaming. After a moment's hesitation the father picked up his son bodily and carried him up to bed, undressed him and left him to sob himself to sleep.

"Wasn't I right to stick to my word?" tearfully asked the mother as Johnnie's father joined her in the library.

"Perfectly," was the sardonic reply.

"Why did you say that so sarcastically?" asked the wife.

"Because," replied her husband, "to my mind you never should have given your word. It was a foolish threat. What was the boy doing when you called him?"

"Making an unearthly noise—running an automobile, I think."

"Poor kid," said the father, "I guess we are the ones who should have been punished. He probably was having engine trouble and likely was scarcely conscious that you called him."

"But we couldn't keep supper any longer for him."

"No, but we could have used a bit of imagination, ourselves. Why didn't we suggest that he come down and call up a garage man to come and repair his car while he ate his supper?"

"Do you suppose that would have worked?"

"I not only suppose but I am sure of it. He was simply too engrossed in his play world to respond to your call. Of course, he must be taught consideration for other people and also that any command given by either of us must be obeyed by him without question but for this very reason we must treat him with consideration and issue commands sparingly and judiciously."

"Poor Johnnie," sighed his mother.

Stories That Recall Others

Right About Face

A little fellow ran to his mother one day after he had been reading a sign and said:

"Oh, mother, any little boy or girl who turns his back on that building will be fined $25."

"Oh, surely not, dear," said the mother.

"Well, I read it, mother."

"Well," said mother, "tell me just what you read."

"It said 'Any one defacing this building will be fined $25.'"

Real Assistance

An understanding partner is a real help at a dance, in the opinion of one of the fellows who attended a sorority affair held recently. During the execution of a strenuous dance her "store hair" used to conceal the bobbed locks became lose and threatened disaster.

"My hair, it's falling!" she gasped. With that, the young man caught the wayward tresses as they slid down her neck, stuck them in his coat pocket and continued the dance.

Ladies! Ask Yourself These Questions:

Are my Furs protected where they are Stored?
Are they subjected to the heat and danger of Fire in some attic at home or in an upper room on Main Street?
If lost or damaged by Fire can their Temporary Custodian pay for them or must I lose their value?
Will the heat of June, July and August dry up the pelts, make them brittle and cause them to shed?
The above method of Storage is being sold here at cheap rates by Merchants without a conscience.

Our Cold Dry Air Storage is the only safe method. Your Furs are cleaned by Vacuum process, hung on separate hangers in a temperature in which nothing can live, thoroughly insured, protected and returned in better condition than when received.

Johnny Chuck Sulks to Himself

'Tis well that sulky folks should be Quite by themselves, we all agree.
—Old Mother Nature.

Johnny Chuck waited around outside his old home. He was waiting for Polly Chuck to come out. But Polly didn't come out. Johnny was tired. It was a long trip for any one with such short legs as Johnny's to cross the Green Meadows from the Old Pasture to the Old Orchard. He didn't dare try going down inside his house again, for he knew that Polly Chuck had a very quick temper and would promptly drive him out. So at last he decided there was nothing to do but to go over to the old stone wall and see if he could find a place under the old wall where he could live for a while, or at least where he could spend the night.

Now the old stone wall is a wonderful place. Petter Rabbit would tell you that. So would Striped Chipmunk and Chatterer the Red Squirrel. There is always a place to escape from enemies. Johnny Chuck was big and stout, even though it was early summer. He found that certain holes between the stones that he used to slip through easily, he couldn't get through now. But he soon found a place where a little digging would give him a safe retreat, and he promptly did that little digging. Once down under the old wall he made himself a comfortable bed for the night, and by the time the Black Shadows came creeping down from the Purple Hills and across the Green Meadows to the Old Orchard, Johnny was curled up fast asleep.

"What!" gasped Johnny. "You're not glad to see me?"

Johnny is an early riser. He was up at sun-up the next morning and poked his head outside for a look about. The first thing he did was to look across to his old home. Polly Chuck was sitting on the doorstep. Johnny started right over there. Perhaps Polly wouldn't be so ill-natured on such a nice morning. Polly saw him coming. She turned to face him.

"Good morning, Polly, my dear," said Johnny in his pleasantest manner as he drew near.

"Morning," replied Polly, but her voice wasn't any too pleasant.

"Aren't you glad to see me home?" asked Johnny.

"No," replied Polly.

"What?" gasped Johnny. "You're not glad to see me?"

"No, I'm not glad to see you," retorted Polly. "I don't see why you couldn't have stayed away a while longer, instead of coming back to bother me at just this time. Where did you spend the night?"

"Over there, in the old stone wall," said Johnny.

"Well, you just along back there," replied Polly, "and when you get back there, stay there. I just don't want you over here."

Johnny saw that Polly meant it. He hesitated a few minutes, then turned and went back to the old stone wall, and there he sat down to sulk. Never in his life had he been more put out. It wouldn't have been so bad had he known how to account for it. But he didn't know how to account for it. He felt very much aggrieved, and so he sulked. It was a beautiful morning, but Johnny saw no beauty in the morning. Everybody seemed to be happy and busy but himself. There was nothing for him to do but sulk. At least, that was what he seemed to think. Striped Chipmunk came running along the Old Stone Wall and spoke pleasantly. Johnny didn't even turn his head to look at Striped Chipmunk. The same thing happened with several others who happened along. Why, he wouldn't even speak to Peter Rabbit.

HOW MANY WOMEN GET UP SINGING

Two Women Find Health Essential to Happiness

MRS. BELLE THOMPSON
ROUTE 2, ROSSVILLE, GEORGIA

Springtime streamed in through the open windows. The green fields of Georgia were basking in the sunshine. Somewhere a bird was trilling. It was a day to be happy.

But the pale woman at the table sighed and pushed away her plate. Nothing tasted right. She couldn't eat much. She couldn't sleep well, either. She was so weak, it was hard to do her work. When the baby cried, she wanted to cry, too.

She had not been well for four years. Her husband watched her with a man's helpless expression. But his mother knew a remedy.

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, Route 2, Rossville, Ga., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Another Happy Woman

Decatur, Illinois.—"I took your medicine for weakness. I would sometimes have to hold myself up with my hands. I was this way for five years, off and on. I read in the newspapers where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped a lot of women, and I thought I would take it. I am now getting better so fast that every month I can feel a difference. My work now is cooking. If you like, you may use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to help you boost your medicine."—Mrs. Irene Reed, 838 Greenwood Ave., Decatur, Ill.

This dependable medicine has been in use for over fifty years.

TILDEN PLAYS SLOW GAME IN CONN. TENNIS

NEW HAVEN, June 1—(AP)—Playing a slow defensive game with only a flash of championship tennis now and then, William T. Tilden, 2nd, world's champion, advanced to the fourth round in the Connecticut state tennis championship tournament here today. A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., easily defeated two opponents advancing to the third round.

The tournament was late in starting due to the weather and some of the sets were played while a light drizzle fell.

The match attracting the most atten was that between Tilden and Lee H. Wiley, of Hartford, won by the champion 6-2, 6-3. Tilden toyed with his opponent, whom he kept running from one end of the court to the other, without extending himself. Wiley played gamely throughout the match and at times showed form which brought applause from the spectators. Only seldom was it that Tilden crashed through his opponent's defense with a cannon ball volley of his championship style.

The summaries:

First round:—F. H. Duggett, New Haven, defeated H. L. Wieland, Yale, 6-1, 6-0; John Verrill, Yale, won by default; Samuel Snider, Hartford, won by default; E. Sutton, Waterbury, defeated H. H. Corbin, New Haven, 6-0, 6-2; T. M. White, Yale, and F. H. Fisher, New Haven, both defaulted; A. H. Chapin, Jr., Springfield, Mass., defeated George F. Robinson, New Haven, 6-1, 6-1; E. L. Hopkins, New Haven, defeated Leonard B. Clark, Yale, 6-2, 6-4; Persons, Worcester, Mass., defeated Goodyear, Yale, 6-4, 7-5, 11-9; Samuel Snider, Hartford, defeated Carl Taylor, Beaver Hills, 6-1, 6-0; Frank Smith, Waterbury, defeated Williams, New Haven, 6-1, 8-7; Reimer, New Haven, won by default. The other players in the first round drew byes.

Second round—R. F. Leighton, New Haven, defeated A. W. Merriam, Farmington, 6-0, 6-4, 6-4; Tilden defeated Wiley 6-2, 6-3; A. T. Mahan, Yale, defeated Henry R. Day, Yale, 6-1, 6-2; Captain Watson, Yale, won by default; Kingdon Jackson, New Haven, defeated Francis B. Comstock, New Haven, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0; J. B. Morse, Jr., New Haven, defeated Thomas W. Hackett, New Haven, 6-2, 7-5; E. L. Hopkins, New Haven, won by default; Joseph T. Taurston, Hartford, won by default; Reimer, New Haven, won by default; E. Hopkins, New Haven, defeated C. C. Chaffee, Providence, R. I., 6-4, 7-5; Sutton defeated Verrill, 6-2, 6-3; Chapin defeated Snider, 6-3, 6-0; A. L. Hopkins, defeated Bowsett, 6-2, 6-3; Frank Smith defeated Persons, 6-0, 8-6; Hyde defeated Norris, 6-2, 6-1.

Third round—Tilden defeated Morse, 6-2, 6-4.

When it came time to bring festivities to a close the Eagles gave three rousing cheers for the Foresters and voted them royal entertainers.

RAINFALL IN MAY WAS MODERATE AMOUNT

The Monday rainfall was a slight one, giving only .15 of an inch, according to the measurements at the water office, and the total for the month of May was 2.16 inches. This was only a moderate amount and merely served to keep both Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs at about the same level at which they started the month.

Fairview is at full pond and Stony Brook is one foot, three inches above the old high water mark before the five foot addition to the dam was made. There seems to be little prospect this year that Stony Brook will fill to its new high water mark.

IMPROVING GROUNDS AT NORWICH EAGLES' HOME

The building committee in charge of the new Eagles home on Cliff street having made extensive improvements on the interior of the building have started now to beautify the grounds around it.

Workmen are seeding down the lawn and placing hedge along the walk. Also two flower beds have been planted and soon these grounds will become one of the attractive spots in the business center.

NORWICH POLICE MADE 87 ARRESTS IN MAY

Arrests made in May by the Norwich police numbered 87. Intoxication and breach of the peace, as usual, were the principal causes of arrest.

The police record of arrests for the month was as follows: intoxication 43, breach of peace 23, resisting officer and driving while under influence of liquor 4 each, violating city ordinance 3, and the following one each: Burglary, insane, vagrancy, cruelty to animals, defrauding restaurant, issuing fraudulent check and avoiding responsibility.

ASSEMBLING MACHINERY FOR WORK AT DEEP RIVER RESERVOIR DAM

The preliminary work on the site for the dam for the new Deep River reservoir which the city is to build in the town of Colchester, is already in progress and Louis Petrosi of Hartford, the contractor, is assembling the machinery and already has some at work on his $154,420 contract.

The machinery is arriving by rail at Colchester and is being carted from there by motor trucks to the dam site where it is to be used. There is a stone crusher, two compressors and a steam shovel, the last named being already in use for stripping the dam site of black loam, dirt, etc., this part of the work being nearly finished. Six teams are at work in carting and distributing the dirt.

The stone crusher is to be set up at a ledge which is on the reservoir land owned by the city water department and all the rock needed will be taken from there. The work will call for about 5,000 cubic yards of stone to be blasted and crushed, some of which will be used for the paving on the slopes of the dam. A road will be built from the ledge to the site of the dam so that the crushed stone can be carted by teams from the crusher to bins which will be erected at a point convenient for the work at the dam.

Eight wood choppers are now at work in the basin of the reservoir, clearing this of the growth of trees which will have to be removed.

Four shanties for the workmen have been built and a telephone line is to be run from the road to the dam.

About 250 pieces of the interlocking steel piling which will be used have arrived, each piece 25 feet long, 14 inches wide and weighing about 1,000 pounds.

Nearly all of the 815 pieces of 30-inch iron pipe, which was the last shipment to be received, have been delivered along the pipe line by Harry B. Ford, who is doing this work, and another shipment of 1,000 pieces is expected now any day.

SECRETARY HAMMOND AND HIS WIFE WERE INJURED

James G. Hammond, secretary of the New London chamber of commerce and Mrs. Hammond, escaped with minor injuries when their car was struck and extensively damaged Saturday night by an automobile operated by David P. Jones of Brooklyn, N. Y., at Moosbrokers corner, Waterford.

Mrs. Hammond sustained a bruised head and a wrenched hand. Mr. Hammond was slightly bruised as were the occupants of the Jones car.

Jones was fined $25 and costs in the Waterford court Monday afternoon on a charge of reckless driving.

Jones was driving toward New London when he passed State Policeman Fred Caron near the Rotisserie inn at an alleged excessive rate of speed. The state policeman put chase after the man and said he rode alongside of the driver for nearly a mile, going at the rate of 60 miles an hour before Jones stopped his car at Moosbrokers corner.

Jones was placed under arrest and ordered to turn his car around to go to Judge Frederick N. Dimmock's house to file bond for appearance in court. In turning around he shot his car to the left of the road and evidently did not see the car operated by Mr. Hammond proceeding to the left. The two cars came together with considerable force, resulting in the Jones car with nine occupants shoving the lighter Hammond car off the road.

BEACON AT CLIFF STREET SMASHED BY AUTOMOBILE

The flashing beacon that has done faithful duty as a traffic guide at Main and Cliff streets, met its Waterloo about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning when it was reduced to wreckage by a Nash touring car driven by William Hyman of No. 8½ West Main street. Mr. Hyman was driving toward Franklin square and his machine, caught on the wet and slippery trolley rails, sending the touring car crashing into the beacon. The whole upper part of the beacon was knocked off and the base was pushed some feet along the street.

The machine was extensively damaged about the front end, the axle being sprung, etc. Police officers moved the base of the beacon to the gutter and picked up the damaged upper part in order to clear the street for traffic. Mr. Hyman escaped injury.

THAMES VIEW SUMMER HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the summer residence of Edward Holman at Thames View, Waterford, this forenoon, together with all of the furnishings and household effects. The blaze burned briskly, and fanned by a strong wind, quickly reduced the building and contents to a mass of smouldering embers.

Holman and his family came to this city about 10 o'clock and while they were in New London the fire occurred. Residents near the Holman house discovered clouds of smoke issuing from the house shortly before 10:30 o'clock and in the absence of fire fighting facilities there, the fire headquarters here was requested to send aid. Before the firemen arrived, however, the flames had broken through the roof of the building and when the Nameaug Engine company reached the fire the building was doomed to destruction. The firemen remained until the building had been consumed, so as to be of assistance should sparks from the blaze ignite other structures, which were for a time threatened.

The Nameaugs, Northwests and Thomas Hose companies arrived just in time to save the Edmund Dickinson house next door to the Holman place.

Both places are insured. The loss on the Holman house is estimated at $10,000 and the damage to the Dickinson house about $500.

ENTERING 30TH YEAR AS NOANK MAIL CARRIER

John K. Ashly, the veteran mail carrier of Noank, has just completed 29 years of faithful service in the employ of Uncle Sam but says he will go on the retired list at the end of another year. The village of Noank will miss him, going about his daily work with his mailbag on his back.

Mr. Ashly was sworn in to the service, May 27, 1897, under the office of Dr. James Weaver, to make his round trips between the railroad station and the post office. He has served under six different postmasters, William G. Rathbun, Roswell Sawyer, Edward Andrews, Allen Rathbun, Frank Williams, and the present postmaster, Claude Chester. Two of these are dead, William and John Rathbun.

Carrier Ashly has a green cart that is nicknamed Studebaker, Jr., but in the summer time a truck to help out his little green cart which is not big enough to handle the summer rush when his deliveries include Groton Long Point. The most mail he has carried has been 200 bags in a week at the Christmas season, and 40 bags in a day.

In all kinds of weather he has never missed a mail or been late at the post office, although one time when his alarm clock failed to awaken him, he overslept and had to do a fast mile to the office and back again to the railroad station where he was just in time to get the mailbag on the train.

The distance from the railroad station to the post office is 94 rods. Mr. Ashly cannot tell how many pairs of shoes he has worn out in the 29 years but he estimates that he has walked 35,000 miles in that time.

Twice in one day he came near losing his life at the railroad station. This was in one of the worst storms of the winter, a blinding snowstorm, when he did not see the train coming from New London as he was putting the mail on the train for New York. The mail clerk pulled him into the car just in time to save him from being struck by the New London train. The second time he was saved by the track walker who shouted at him in time for him to jump to safety. John says he was saved because his time hadn't come.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE HAD PARK PICNIC

A large group of young people from the Central and First Baptist churches, the former entertaining the latter, spent a most enjoyable time Tuesday evening on a picnic in Mohegan park. Miss Amie Marsh was in charge of the affair, and the fire for the weenie roast was built by Floyd Lambert.

A most enthusiastic and exciting baseball game was the feature of the evening, culminating in a score of 25 to 14. The winning side was captained by Aubrey Brown who acted as pitcher, with Arthur Armstrong, catcher; Howard Nielson, first base; Donald Royce, second; Mildred Cass, third; outfielders, Frances Buehnell, Marion Browning. Their opponents were Howard Ludlow, captain and pitcher; Ledlie Pitt, catcher; Lawrence Browning, first; Helen Denison, second; Dorothy Spencer, third; outfielders, Marion Royce and Elaine Wilson; pitcher and outfielder, Floyd Lambert.

A flashlight picture of the whole group was taken by Lawrence Browning, after which the party returned to the city, voting the affair one of the most enjoyable of its kind ever held.

MRS. AUSTIN WINS MEDAL IN CONN. QUALIFYING ROUND

NEW BRITAIN, June 1—(AP)—The ninth annual championship tournament of the Connecticut Women's Golf association opened with 81 players who braved the weather and a heavy course for the qualifying round at the Shuttle Meadow course here today. Mrs. G. L. Austin, of Hartford, with a card of 88, won the medal for the lowest gross score. Her card was considered especially good because of the heaviness of the course.

Of the 81 entrants, four flights of 12 including those turning in the lowest qualified for the tournament. Eight players in each flight will be cut at the end of the first elimination match tomorrow; four more in each will be dropped Thursday; and the semi-finals will be the following day, with the finals on Saturday.

The prize offered for the lowest net score will be awarded tomorrow, as four contestants were tied with 78 today. They were Miss E. R. Philips, Farmington; Miss Catherine Henburn, Hartford; Mrs. G. L. Austin, Hartford; and Mrs. Arthur Collens, Hartford.

Has Three Fads

Mr. Penniman, a graduate of Yale in the class of 1884, has three fads—baseball cats and libraries. When he isn't attending baseball games he is playing nursemaid to the 400 cats on his cat farm. When he isn't busy at either of these pursuits, he is collecting and donating libraries to some college in which he is interested.

He has given 20,000 volumes to Yale, has presented library collections to Pennsylvania and Brown, and is still busy collecting.

An interesting character, this Penniman, interesting and unusual. Holder of several college degrees, possessor of sufficient wealth to make him a power in the community, born of a family that demands both social recognition and social rating, he prefers, however, to forget all these things.

He makes no play for political prestige, no demand for social recognition. He prefers, instead, to wo through life valuing above all else as the greatest baseball fan in the nation.

Look him up when you come to Philadelphia some time. You'll find him interesting.

FORMER NORWICH BOY IS CHAMPION BASEBALL FAN

Frick's comments in the New York Evening Journal of recent date had Norwich interest, inasmuch as they touched up, in some instances with a little mild satire, a graduate of Norwich Free Academy with the class of 1880. There is a trifle of whimsical exaggeration, too, in the reference to Dr. Penniman's cat farm and his 400 cats; very much like the boy whose thousand dogs in the village street when checked up proved to be "Well, anyway, our dog Dash and another one." Here's what Frick sends out under a Philadelphia headline:

Perhaps you never heard of James Hosmer Penniman. A lot of people haven't. For Mr. Penniman's claim to fame doesn't include political prestige, literary attainment, musical artistry or any of the common forms of personal accomplishment.

But if you've ever attended many ball games at Shibe park you have seen him. For he's always there. He never misses. A lot of men, in a lot of towns, have laid claim to the title of the world's greatest baseball fan and enthusiast. They've produced facts and figures to back their claims, too. But you can toss their figures into the waste basket, laugh at their aspirations and sneer at their credentials.

The world's greatest baseball fan is Mr. James Hosmer Penniman, of Philadelphia.

He hasn't missed a game since 1900. Mr. Penniman has seen every home game the Athletics have played since the American league was organized. He hasn't missed a single one. And on days when the Athletics are on the road, he varies his programme by going over to watch the Phils.

He knows practically every big league player personally. He has seen every star that has come into the big leagues in the last twenty-five years.

When Rube Wadell pitched his famous no-hit, no-run game, Penniman was in the stands watching. When Ty Cobb spiked Frank Baker in that famous Athletic-Tiger series that came near starting a baseball war and riot, Penniman was in his usual seat in the stands alongside the press box.

He saw every world series game ever played in Philadelphia, knew personally every man who has worn a Philadelphia uniform since the league was formed.

SUSIE DELVES INTO DICTIONARY IN SEARCH OF MORE KNOWLEDGE

Someone has apparently been criticising Susie on her use of the English language and she has taken these criticisms to heart and is struggling with the dictionary and simple rules of grammar. Hey state of mind can be seen from the following letter which she writes:

My Dear Editor of Sports News:

You will no doubt by the time you have read thus far in my letter regred the change in the way I address you. The reason is this. A few days ago I heard some criticism of the languidge I hand out (use I should say) in my letters. I heard two high-brows (I mean edicated persons) discussing my letters thusly: "Wouldn't you think any young woman would use better languidge than that girl who signs herself Susie?" "Yes," says or said the other. "Ain't or isn't it pitiful how her edication has been neckglected?" Well, Mr. Editor, that was plenty for me. I says or said to myself right then and there "Susie, you've got to get some edication and get it in big doses 'cause you don't want them or those edicated people slamming you behind your back."

Well with this in my bean, (head I should say for bean is a vegitable) I went home to my mother and told her what I had heared, or heard rather. I asks her what was to be done about it and ma says or said, "Susie, you're a big girl now, too big to go to school again so you better do a little studying on the side." "How," I inquires knowing there isn't anybody what I went around with that didn't talk my kind of talk. "First," said ma, "You better by a dictionery and a grammar," and begin reading good books."

I knew what a dictionery was 'cause I had seen one once in a book store but I thought a gramma was inherited and not bought. As for reading good books I thought that was the bunk because I had read The Plaster Age or a book with a name that sounds like that. Burning Youth, and all the latest confession magazines. If that isn't good reading I don't no what is and I told ma so but she says they is cheap. Well maybe they is or are but I know I kicked in a couple or pair of dollars for them.

Well, anyway I says its got to be done so I purchase me a dictionery and starts at the beginning to read it. Oh Boy but that book has got more words than any bodied use if he lived to be a 1,000 years old. But that don't floor me I just plugs at it and after three days reading I had got as far as the B's but I can't remember all my words so I starts over. There ain't no story to that dictionery stuff but it tells you what's what. I see it was writ or writed by a fellow by the name of Webster. Gosh I bet that boy got a great kick out of writing that book, anyways if he didn't he made a lotta trouble for some folks. I tells ma I don't get no kick out of reading that book and she tells me the way to use it is to think of words and write down what I think they mean and look them up.

Well I think that's a good idear so I thinks of some words what I know and right there is where I finds how ignorant I are or is or am. The first word what I look up is "bean" and that's where I find bean is a vegitable and not somebody's head. That isn't all I find out either. I find I has been spelling a lotta words wrong and that there is as on lots of words where I left them off only lots of people, including myself don't pronounce them. So I is trying to put the letters in my words in the right places. I looked for that word ain't but it ain't in the dictionery so I'll have to lay off of that. I thinks I better look at the grammer before I go further into the dictionery so I givee that the once over. One of the first things what I see is that slang is poor English so I'll have to cut out the slang it isn't nice but just the name it gets across where the nice refined soft talks don't. Then I see where in writing letters to folks what you don't know very well you give them their full title so thats why I addressed you thusly at the beginning of this epistle. How's that last word, pretty good I guess. That's one I found in the dictionery meaning a letter of literery excellence and that's what I'm trying to make this. The study of the English languidge as it should be spoked in a great and assuming subject and can't be consumed in a minute. With a little practice I guess maybe I'll be able to spread the English so's folks won't talk about me being igerant. At present I is or am trying to use words of one or two cylinders but by and by maybe I'll be using them six and eight cylinder words what starts with ph and x. then watch me make 'em sit up and take notice what a self eradicated girl can do.

Say Mr. Editor I got a letter from somebody what signs his or herself a indignent student asking me to take a slam at a feller what won't let a coupla kids use his gravel driveway as a short cut to school and has crabbed to the principle about it a coupla times. Now I ain't going to take no slam at anybody especially a feller like that cause I don't want to get mixed up in no argument between school kids and a diddler. I don't think it's right to slam anybody no matter how crabby he maybe cause it's his driveway and he can do what he wants with it. Ain't I right?

Well Memorial day has come and went and so has a lotta rain. Too bad them Duwell boys had such a splashy day for their doings but that marathon race was a good one but you don't get much kick outta them long distances but as a novelty it was good. Them fellers what run must of been kinda chilly in their B. V. Ds with all that rain falling on them but they seemed to like it so's I guess everything's all right. Say didn't you get a great kick outa that Keeley feller what come in six. He sure put the Old Rose of New England on mthe map. Everybody thinked that kid didn't have no chance with them big runners but he showed them fellers that it ain't always the big boy what cops the bacon. More power to him says I. He got a coupla cups but what good is loving cups since prohibition?

Ain't them Academy baseball kids the oil-cans. Gosh I was disgruntled (How's that one Ed.) with them kids. One day they plays a whale of a game and the next they is rotten. Something's wrong with that team but I don't know what. My old man says he think's they is got the idea they is so good they can't get beat and when a team gets ahead of them they ain't got no fight. Too bad them kids threw away a state's championship, but it ain't nobody's fault but their own.

Well Ed, I gotta quit 'cause me and the boy friend is going to that Block dance what them Duwell boys is giving. I wants hear them Hot Tomatoes play again and see if they has any more funny noises than what they had at that checker battle.

Yours as Ever,
SUSIE.

P. S.—I hope them two women what was talking about my edication will read this and note how I have improved.

WARRIORS WIN THIRD IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Warriors took their third victory in the Twi league at the Academy campus Tuesday when they hammered three pitchers and defeated the Rubes by the score of 16 to 6.

The losers started L. Steinman and he was replaced by his brother M. Steinman who later gave way to Kane, none of the three being very effective.

Norm Courbois, Leo Morin and Gil Kampf led in the hitting, Courbois connecting for a triple and two singles out of four trips to the plate while Morin got a double and a single out of three tries and Kampf slashed out three singles out of four. Courbois starred in the field with several nice catches.

Lefty Pavalak on the mound for the winners pitched good ball in his first start of the year, allowing the Rubes but four scattered hits. The score:

Goldstein reported an injured arm in training and the promoters obtained permission from the state athletic commission to set it back a week.

Joe Glick, New York junior lightweight, was given permission to fulfill his contract to meet Eddie Anderson of Wyoming at the Coney Island stadium, Friday night despite a 30-day suspension handed him today for fouling Carl Duane last week. The ban will be effective after Glick's match with Anderson.

Permission was granted to the promoters of the Queensboro A. C., to hold tomorrow night the show scheduled tonight and called off because of bad weather. Dave Shade of California and Maxie Rosenbloom of New York meet in the headliner.

The game was interesting from the beginning and in the sixth inning with the score 11 to 9 in favor of St. Joseph the St. Patrick's team scored five runs on heavy hitting by A. Mathews, Hamill and O'Connell. Hamill pitched for the winners.

Sacred Heart Team Also Wins

At Duwell field Tuesday afternoon the Sacred Heart team won a hard fought 11-inning game from St. Mary's 6 to 5.

A member of Mell's family says he was home all day and that he did not run. Now the question is who was carrying Mell's number and answered to the roll call at the start of the race.

ANOTHER WILLS-LENGLEN MATCH IS ANTICIPATED

PARIS, June 1—(AP) Indication that America's attempt to lift the Wightman tennis cup, international women's tennis trophy, will probably meet with stubborn resistance on the part of England, was seen today in the decisive team victory scored by English players over France, five matches to two.

The victorious team, which is soon to meet the invading United States women at Wimbledon, today clinched its series against France by winning five of the final six matches. Miss Joan Fry, Mrs. L. A. Godfree, the former Kitty McKane, and Mrs. I. Shepherd Barron, all won their singles matches, but each was extended to three sets. The scores were as follows:

Miss Fry won over Mme. Rene Mathieu, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2; Mrs. Godfree defeated Mlle. Vlsto, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5; Mrs. Barron triumphed over Mlle. Deve, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2; Mrs. McIlquham suffered the only defeat for England when she fell in a singles match before the stroking of Mme. Vaussard of France, 6-0, 8-6.

In the doubles, Mrs. Godfree and Miss Evelyn Colyer defeated Mlles. Cousin and Charnelet, 6-2, 6-1, while Mrs. Barron and Mrs. McIlquham were victorious over Mlles. Deve and Cenquet, 8-10, 6-4, 6-0.

Interest now turns to the hard court matches tomorrow, which have attracted an imposing entry and which promise a second battle between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen. The American champion is considered to have been pieced in the hardest half of the draw, and may fall by the wayside before the final unless she overcomes a lapse in her form. Evelyn Colyer of England, Didi Vlasto of France and Mrs. Godfree are Miss Wills' prospective opponents.

In her first match tomorrow, Miss Wills will oppose Madame Golding while Mlle. Lenglen has drawn the Hungarian champion, Mlle. Petard.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL FIELD MEET ON THURSDAY

With teams representing the Broadway, Greeneville, Elizabeth Street, Town and West Town street schools entered, the spring outdoor athletic meet to be held at the fairgrounds Thursday afternoon promises to be one big round of pep and excitement. The events include a program of lively stunts and with some of the best athletic material enrolled on the various teams, it is an understood thing that no school team is going to cop the championship without meeting with some strenuous competition. The events are to be as follows:

Boys tug of war, 75 yard dash, potato races, 1-2 mile relay race, baseball target throw, girls basketball throw for distance, 50 yard dash, and 1-4 mile relay race.

The spring meet has become an annual occasion and has become quite popular with the young athletes of the different schools who usually put up a great tussle in order to capture the victory for their school. The Ailing Rubber company has contributed a handsome trophy cup to be awarded to the winning school and if the weather permits it is certain that a big crowd of spectators will be on hand to see the girls and boys in their annual battle. The meet will begin promptly at 2.30 p. m.

ENGLISH DERBY TO BE RUN TODAY AT EPSOM DOWNS

EPSOM, England, June 1—(AP)—The 147rd renewal of the Derby stakes, England's greatest racing classic, which will be run tomorrow at Epsom Downs, will bring 19 horses to the starting line. The race is over a course of one mile and a half and the total value of the stakes is about $11,000, including the actual stakes of 1,000 sovereigns and money paid in forfeits by owners.

Originally about 300 horses were nominated and entered November 1924, but these have been gradually weeded out.

Lord Derby's Colorado, which won the two thousand guineas stakes, was installed as favorite at six to one in tonight's betting. Next comes Lord Woolavington's Coronach at seven to one, while Lord Astor, whose colors have been second five times in eight Derbys, pins his faith on Swift and Sure, quoted at nine to one.

Sir Abe Bailey's Lex is supported at ten to one, J. F. Hornung's Apple Sammy at 100 to 6, Aga Khan's Cimier, 8 to 1, and Sir George Bullough's Harpagon, 25 to 1.

There is only one American candidate, A. K. Macomber's Warmist, which is not quoted. France is represented by M. E. De St. Alary's Finglas, ridden by the American jockey Archibald, quoted at 22 to 1.

For the first time in some years Steve Donoghue, England's premier jockey, will be a spectator. He declared recently that the horses offered him for a mount had no chance of winning, so he declined to ride.

Other contenders will be Bassoon, Comedy King, Lancegaye, Le Gros, Macanudo, Pantera, Recorder, St. Mary's Kirk, Simon the Beggar and Tenacity.

King George is going by road, despite congestion, as he does not wish to give the railways any more trouble in rigging up a special train while the coal strike is in progress.

Hundreds of Americans will see the Derby, its betting rings and the old grandstand under present conditions for the last time. In 1927 there will be a new stand, capable of holding 40,000 spectators.

The great Epsom derby is a race of a mile and a half, and is not decided on the sort of course that Americans are used to. It is up hill and down dale over the turf, and on this account, and also on account of the distance, it requires a stout horse as well as a swift horse to make a good showing in it.

N. Y. COMMISSION ORDERS DEMPSEY TO SIGN WITH WILLS BEFORE JUNE 22

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—Exercising its perogative as the supreme court of boxing in New York, the state athletic commission today directed Jack Dempsey to sign articles of agreement for a title fight with Harry Wills not later than June 22.

With Commissioner Brower the only absentee the board passed by an unanimous vote, the following resolution:

"In that Jack Dempsey on July 17, 1925, accepted the challenge of Harry Wills to box for the heavyweight championship of the world, the commission now feels that ample time has elapsed for signing articles and he now directs Jack Dempsey to enter into proper articles of agreement with the challenger not later than June 22, 1926."

Chairman Farley, Commissioner Muldoon and License Commissioners Colonel John J. Phelan and D. Walker were voted in favor of the resolution which was mailed to Dempsey tonight.

Asked to explain the board's unexpected action, Chairman Farley said it was intended to "clear the atmosphere." Boxing observers, however looked upon it as a further complication in the situation, with Tex Rickard holding Dempsey's contract and presumably moving toward his objective, a title match between Dempsey and Gene Tunney on September 16 at the Yankee stadium. The commission, however, Farley said, will "not listen" to proposals for a Dempsey-Tunney contest.

The net results observers agree, is to leave two courses open to Dempsey and Rickard:

(1) For Dempsey to ignore the issue, have the commission declare his title removed and transferred to Wills, then, as a "challenger" to battle Tunney under Rickard's promotion.

(2) For Rickard to accept the order and announce his willingness to promote a Dempsey-Wills fight if mentioned and freed of all interference.

Opposition in political circles to a "mixed match" for the heavyweight title is understood to have been the chief stumbling block to bringing Wills and Dempsey together before, and it is not believed this has been removed in spite of the commission's attitude.

Rickard, who already has announced he has secured an option for Dempsey, is expected to return to New York tomorrow from Hot Springs, Ark., and confer with the commission on Thursday. Dempsey's contract with Rickard calls for a bout with any opponent named by the promoter.

DEMPSEY TO LEAVE EVERYTHING TO WILLS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 1—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, will leave the reply to the New York Athletic commission's edict that he sign not later than June 22nd to meet Harry Wills, in the hands of Tex Rickard, promoter, Dempsey indicated here today.

Dempsey passed through Little Rock enroute to Colorado Springs, stopping only between trains.

"I have already signed with Tex Rickard to defend my title on September 16 against any opponent he selects," the champion said. "I do not care who I fight—Wills, Tunney, or anybody. It's all up to Rickard."

Dempsey signed the Rickard contract in Hot Springs several days ago when he and the New York promoter met there. The champion, although carrying a bandaged arm where a carbuncle had been lanced, appeared in excellent condition.

PLAY IN DEFENSE OF WALKER CUP STARTS AT ST. ANDREWS LINKS TODAY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 1—(AP)—America's invading linksmen, before whom the British amateur title already has fallen tomorrow will swing their clubs in defense of the Walker cup, famous emblematic of international team supremacy.

The struggle of the British and American teams over the historic St. Andrews course brings leading amateur players of the two countries together for the fourth time in each of the previous encounters America has been victorious claiming the first in 1923 at Southampton, N. Y., 8 matches to 4; defending the trophy here a year later, 6 1-2 to 5 1-2; and repeating at Garden City, N. Y., two years ago, 9 to 3. No contest was played last year.

"The old gray town," as St. Andrews is known, while used staging golfing events of world importance, seemed more than usually awake to the notable character of the impending struggle. Hotels, near the course, many of them flying the stars and stripes, were filled to overflowing with visitors for the big events, which will bring the teams together in eight singles battles and four foursomes.

Today witnessed the final practice of the American team over the championship course. British team members also participated in friendly rounds, on the basis of which the eighth selection for the team was made. By turning in a brilliant round of 75 in a three-ball match with Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, F. Storey earned a place on the challenging team, while J. F. Simpson, who was defeated in the final round of the amateur championship Saturday by Jess Sweetser, was dropped.

With the selection of Storey, announcement also was made of the pairings for tomorrow's matches, which will be two-ball foursomes at thirty-six holes. Each match will count one point. The pairings follows:

Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, America, vs. Roger Wethered and Sir Ernest Holderness Great Britain; Jess Sweetser and George Von Elm, America, vs. Robert Harris and Major Hezlet, Great Britain; Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn, America, vs. Cyril Tolley and A. Jamieson, Jr., Great Britain; Robert Gardner and Roland Mackenzie, America, vs. E. F. Storey and W. G. Brownlow Great Britain.

The order of play in the singles on Thursday will be: Jones vs. Tolley, Sweetser vs. Holderness Ouimet vs. Wethered, Von Elm vs. Hezlet, Guilford vs. Harris Gunn vs. Brownlow, Mackenzie vs. Storey and Gardner vs. Jamieson.

The Jones-Gunn vs. Tolley-Jamieson match tomorrow appeared tonight to draw the major interest of spectators. The struggle will bring together two seasoned stars and two brilliant young players.

There was much speculation on the outcome of the match in which Ouimet and Wethered old rivals in international play once more were brought together. Jesse Sweetser was sure to draw a generous portion of the gallery by reason of his superb play in the championship.

Sweetser and Von Elm were considered by golfers here as almost certain victors on the basis of the sound golf they have been playing. There was prospect of favorable weather tomorrow.

Kettle-Drum Piano

In spite of his amazing dexterity, the kettle-drum player in an orchestra needs even more agility to play all that is demanded of him in modern scores. Prof. Schneller, a noted kettle-drum player of the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra, is coming to the rescue with a kettle-drum piano that will operate eight drums of varying pitch, says Popular Science Monthly.

Even the most modern orchestras have at most four Lettle-drums. With a piano keyboard arrangement the work of the drummer, it is claimed, would be lessened greatly. But would not the admiration of the audience also disappear?

POETRY

Kearny At Seven Pines.

May 31, 1862.—

So that soldierly legend is still on its journey,—
That story of Kearny who knew not to yield
'Twas the day when with Jameson, fierce Berry, and Birney,
Against twenty thousand he rallied the field.
Where the red volleys poured, where the clamor rose highest,
Where the dead lay in clumps through the dwarf oak and pine,
Where the aim from the thicket was surest and highest,—
No charge like Phil Kearny's along the whole line.

When the battle went ill, and the bravest were solemn,
Near the dark Seven Pines, where we still held our ground,
He rode down the line of the withering column,
And his heart at our war-cry leapt up with a bound;
He snuffed, like his charger, the wind of the powder,—
His sword waved us on and we answered the sign;
Loud our cheer as we rushed, but his laugh rang the louder,
"There's the devil's own fun, boys, along the whole line!"

How he strode his brown steed! How we saw his blade brighten
In the one hand still left,—and the reins in his teeth;
He laughed like a boy when the holidays lighten,
But a soldier's glance shot from his visor beneath.
Up came the reserves to the mellay infernal,
Asking where to go in,—through the clearing or pine?
"O anywhere! Forward! 'Tis all the same, Colonel;
You'll find lovely fighting along the whole line!"

O evil the black shroud of night at Chantilly,
That hid him from sight of his brave men and tried;
Foul, foul sped the bullet that clipped the white lily,
The flower of our knighthood, the whole army's pride!
Yet we dream that he still,—in that shadowy region
Where the dead form their ranks at the wan drummer's sign,—
Rides on, as of old, down the length of the legion,
And the word still is Forward! along the whole line.

—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

A new insect enemy of the already sadly plagued American chestnut was recently caught trying to sneak past the guards at the gates of the United States. It is a native of Europe, and is known as the nut fruit cortrix, or more scientifically as Laspeyresia splendana. It is related to the codling moth, a foreign pest that long ago got into this country to work ruin in American fruit orchards, and its work on the chestnut is said to be similar to that of the codling moth on fruits. It was detected in shipments of chestnuts from Italy, which have been growing larger year by year as the supply of native nuts has been diminishing due to the ravages of the chestnut blight disease.

The inside finish will be of wood. It is estimated that the building will cost about $25,000.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were eleven sales of real estate, exactly half the number of sales as were made during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the past week were $46,085 and for the same week a year ago they were $103,830.

There were eleven sales of real estate in New London during the past week an increase of two sales over the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $34,150 and $39,523.

State Building Permits

The building construction industry in Connecticut, as indicated by building permits filed in the cities and towns covered by The Commercial Record, is moving ahead at a very rapid pace, despite sectional labor difficulties. The number of permits issued this past week was approximately the same as for the corresponding week in 1925, when, it will be remembered, the rate of building activity was high. The estimated cost of new construction work started during the past week was largely in excess of the total for the same period a year ago.

National Building Survey

The most recent national building survey completed by S. W. Straus & Co. of New York, shows a slight falling off in the totals of construction work started. For the country as a whole, the first four months of the year were found to have wound up with building totals slightly under the figures for the same period last year. This development, though not alarming as yet, gives a somewhat different tinge to the nation's building program because the first three months seemed to hold a promise of another phenomenal industry.

April brought a loss of eight per cent. however, when the volume of new work started is compared with the same month a year ago. But this is not surprising in view of the tremendous amount of building that opened up in April, 1926.

This recession in construction is not found to have obtained in Connecticut, where, according to figures compiled by The Commercial Record, the April totals were not only much larger than the preceding month, but were in excess of the April 1925, volume of work. It is true that May has not been productive of large gains in construction in this state, but the high pace of building activity set during May a year ago has been pretty well maintained. So far as this state is concerned, although it is unlikely that any new records will be established this year, there appears to be no reason at this time to look for a big reduction in the 1926 building volume.

No Shrinkage Anticipated

Commenting on the results of their national building survey the S. W. Straus Co. say in part: "A slight slowing down in building operations throughout the country is indicated in the reports of building permits issued in the 484 leading cities and towns which reported new building plans of $440,376,537 compared with $479,833,274 in April, 1925, a loss of 8 per cent. There was a slight gain from March, however, when the volume of permits issued in these places was $423,354,219.

"Since the first of January, permits for $1,411,826,336 have been issued, compared with $1,432,136,681 last year. The first third of the year, therefore, wound up with activities slightly behind the record for the same period last year. Whether these losses will continue and bring the industry to the end of the year with a considerable shrinkage of activities compared with the phenomenal record of 1925 or whether there will be a revival later in the year the points that cannot be determined, although no one familiar with building conditions throughout the country is looking for a pronounced falling off."

New London

The contract has been awarded for a dwelling on Ledyard street for Mrs. Annie Hislop, 7 Vauxhall street. From private plans the house will be of frame construction, of cottage type. It will be 32x36 feet. The cost will be about $6,000.

The permit has been issued to Harry Rakosky for a dwelling at 29 Waller court. Plans call for a frame house, 23x25 feet, cottage style, arranged for one family.

Work will be started in the near future by Thomas Occhialini, 4 Chelsea street, on a Spanish style bungalow on Montauk avenue. From private plans the house will be 35x45 feet, of hollow tile and stucco construction, and will contain six rooms. There will be steam heat, tile baths, fireplaces and hardwood floors.

The construction of new bath houses at Riverside park has been started under the direction of Superintendent of Streets Courtland R. Darrow. The city's working forces are filling in a site conveniently located near the pier. It is planned to demolish the old bath houses and to salvage the material for new construction.

FALL RIVER STEAMER PRISCILLA
TOWED TO NEW LONDON FROM GULL ISL.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1—The Fall River line steamer Priscilla, which went ashore on Gull Island, about 10 miles off the mouth of New London harbor early this morning while attempting to grope her way through the sound on her trip from New York to Fall River, was brought into port about 6 o'clock this morning, in tow of the tug Aquidneck of the Thames Towboat company and the tug Elmer E. Keeler, of the Keeler Transportation company, of New York. The liner suffered damage, but this was comparatively slight. Several blades of her wheel on the starboard side have been demolished and two plates on the same side were damaged.

With the craft sending out S. O. S. calls for assistance, the first station to pick up the message was at the United States Coast Guard sectional base, state pier and as told on The Bulletin's telegraph page this morning the destroyer Mojave was dispatched to the aid of the steamer.

A short time after the destroyer left port the two tugs started through the fog on the mission that would take them through the Race and across the sound where the liner with about 500 passengers was close to the pier of Fort Michie. Upon the arrival of the tugs alongside the Priscilla, at 4 o'clock, lines were made fast and the trip to this port was started the liner being docked at the pier of the New England Steamship company about 6 o'clock. The passengers boarded a special train that conveyed them to their destination. The liner will, it is understood, be towed to another port, that repairs can be perfected.

Capt. Fred Hamlen, master of the Priscilla after the craft was docked stated that the liner left for Fall River on schedule time. When the Priscilla reached Captain's Island a heavy fog set in. The master of the fine vessel, as the Priscilla proceeded and when she approached Cornfield light off Southwick the liner came to a stop twice to pick up signals. After the second signal had been heard the Priscilla continued until after the lightship had been left astern and then a listening stop was made to pick up the signal from Point Judah buoy and Gull Island light. After the signals had been obtained, the Priscilla continued, but the captain decided that the liner was slightly out of her course, being too far to the south. The liner was then headed northward 10 seconds and an instant later the Priscilla struck a boulder near the shore end of the island and sailing off the huge rock was carried against the side of the West Michie dock, the crash severing over a section of the pier. The boat however was made fast to another section of the pier and as the liner was taking in water where the two plates had been damaged, signals for assistance were sent out. The Mojave was the first of the rescue crafts to reach the Priscilla, but as the boat was in no immediate danger and the passengers, who had been brought to the dock by the crash, were quite composed the arrival of the two tugs was awaited. As soon as the Aquidneck and Keeler reached the steamer the liner was put in making lines fast to the liner and the start for this port was made through the fog that had not cleared to lift. As the tugs and liner approached the pier the Priscilla listed considerably to starboard, seeming to indicate that she was leaking badly though such was not the case.

ORGANIST JOHN HAMMOND TO PLAY IN LOCAL THEATRES

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1—A New York dispatch says: John Hammond, founder of the Society of Theatre Organists and featured organist of the Mark Strand theatre in this city, has accepted the offer of W. T. Murphy, operator of the Capitol and Crown theatres in New London, to appear at these houses for a long term engagement. The resignation of John Hammond from his present activities in New York came as a surprise to Broadway although it has been known in motion picture circles that Mr. Murphy on several occasions has negotiated to get Mr. Hammond to New London. John Hammond is considered the foremost theatre organist in America. He has been associated, with George Eastman at the latter's temple of music at Rochester. With his duties under Mr. Eastman Mr. Hammond served on the faculty of the University of Rochester where he conducted the first college course ever given in an organ accompaniment to motion pictures. When the Piccadilly theatre opened in New York he assumed charge of the presentation of organ music there and subsequently was appointed to the Mark Strand theatre. Mr. Hammond has won national recognition through his artistry and promotion of the organ as a medium of classical and modern music. At the recent convention in Cleveland he was honored by his organist associates who selected him to lecture upon and demonstrate organ music as applied to the motion picture.

The police cleaned out a notorious resort on Main street, at 579, last midnight. They went there about midnight, after hearing talk that was audible in the street and found Lucia Manning, a colored woman, with two black men and a white man. The whole bunch was taken to the police station and today they were in court. There appeared to be no evidence that would convict the men and the woman of immorality, but it was apparent that the house should not be inhabited as it has been of late, for males and females have congregated there promiscuously. The occupants have before been convicted of conducting an improper place and they have been jailed for that. Evidently a former bad reputation still attaches to the house. The case today was continued three months. It is possible that the owner of the premises may be proceeded against, if the occupants of the place maintain a disorderly house. The men and the woman last night claimed they were friends who were only interested in securing money to get a man now serving a jail sentence out of prison.

Four drunks were disciplined and a couple of autoists were fined for speeding or for failing to have the papers necessary to permit of operating a car.

Miss Mary Holt, of Norwich; Miss Doris Briggs, Willimantic; Charles Dewey 85 Nameaug avenue; Ralph Hazler, 91 Garfield avenue; Mrs. George Brown and infant daughter, 8 Grand street; Walter Auwood, Groton; Robert Dickey, Niantic; Mrs. Courtland Palmer and infant son, 83 Federal street; Charles Calder, Bridgeport; Mrs. Ernest Anderson, Groton; Master Walter Howard, 100 Union street; Mrs. Charles Bland and infant daughter, 13 Richards street; Elmer Durfee, Stonington and Louis Montesi, 6 Central avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday, Monday and today.

Sophia A., widow of Anderson L. Crandall, died yesterday at her residence, 148 Ocean avenue. Mrs. Crandall was of advanced years and had been ill a long time. She was a native of New London and had resided in this city her entire life, and for the greater part of her life in the residence where she died. Mrs. Crandall was a member of the First Baptist church. Her parents, the late Henry and Mary Squire, died many years ago.

Elizabeth M., widow of Capt. Charles C. Fengar, United States Coast Guard, and a former resident of New London, died Sunday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Hopper, in Winchester, Mass. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Fengar is survived by several nephews and nieces, who reside in New London.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the operators' licenses of Robert Preacher, submarine base, and Louis Provencal, United States Coast Guard, state pier, suspended.

Mrs. Walter Cockell, wife of Patrolman Cockell is confined to her home by a serious illness.

The police have obtained no trace of the automobile, a Studebaker sedan, owned by Ernest E. Trayton, 9 Sheridan avenue, Auburn, Me., which was stolen from Green street Sunday night.

Arnold Burr and Miss Audrey Hayes were married this evening at the home of the young man on Montauk avenue. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives. The bride was generously remembered with gifts. A feast followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Burr started for New York. They are to make their home at Pleasure Beach.

The patronage of the New York steamer from New London Monday night is believed to have been the heaviest of the year. People were on their way home from the week end outing and many of them took passage on the steamer. Every stateroom was taken and many persons were compelled to make the passage without that accommodation. Business for the steamers has increased greatly of late, and the employes of the line declare that it exceeded that even in the hottest weather of summer.

Coal dealers represent that consumers are not putting in as much coal as was expected when the end of the strike was reached last winter, or early spring. It was anticipated then that there would be a lot of coal stored so that there would be no possibility of a shortage next winter in the event that a strike should occur then, but such has not been the case. This fact shows how quickly people forget experiences. During the strike coal could not be obtained. Now that there is an abundance of anthracite people seem to be not anxious to provide against a shortage.

There is a general belief that the number of automobiles in use in this city and vicinity during the summer will be larger than was ever known. As an evidence of this it is represented that State street and adjacent thoroughfares were choked with machines yesterday even in unpleasant weather, this being an indication of what may be anticipated in the hot days of summer.

In the Waterford town court last night, Judge Frederick N. Dimmock passed on eight cases, all for alleged violation of the motor vehicle law. All the accused were arrested by Constables Charles Brigham and Fred Peabody and State Police Officer George Sisson.

Joseph A. Justowoski, Newark, N. J., Robert Drake, Plainfield, N. J., and William Barringer, New York, charged with speeding, failed to appear in court and their respective bonds of $25 were called. Mary Waje, New York, charged with speeding, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. David F. Jones, Brooklyn, N. Y., charged with reckless driving was fined $25 and costs. Joseph Legacy, Bridgeport, charged with reckless driving, was fined $25 and costs, but $15 of the fine was remitted. Antonio Francesconi, this city, charged with driving to the left hand side of a traffic signal, was fined $2 and costs. Earl L. Bryant, West Hartford, charged with failure to grant right of way, escaped severe penalty for his case was nolled upon the payment of costs.

Perry Rogers, East Lyme, employed as a foreman, was arrested late this afternoon by Sergeant Samuel Hick, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating his machine while under the influence of liquor. He is being held at the police station pending his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning, as is a friend who was accompanying Rogers in the automobile and who is charged with intoxication.

Rogers was driving his car in the vicinity of State and Bank streets and in doing so he attracted the attention of Sergeant Hick, who had knowledge of Rogers having been arrested before on a like charge. Rogers also operated his car against the officer's automobile and damaged it some time ago. Sergeant Hick held up the driver and it was well that he did, for Rogers was about as drunk as he could be and sit at the wheel. The car was placed in the police garage and Rogers when he appeared at the police station desk was hardly able to stand. Rogers was arrested July 24, 1925, charged with driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor; at that time his case was nolled the following day in the police court.

Benjamin Rowley, 21 West Coit street, complained to the police this evening that youths playing ball in the street had smashed the windshield of his automobile. Rowley claimed he knew the identity of the boys, but when the motorcycle officer interviewed him he was unable to state the names of any of the youths, who had disappeared when the officer reached the location where the alleged damage occurred.

Patrolman and Mrs. William Manice, of Williams street, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jordan, of Squire street, have returned home after a two weeks' automobile trip through New York state and to Atlantic City.

Miss Marian Sylvia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sylvia, has returned to her home, 146 Green street, having spent a week in New York and Atlantic City.

Smallest Fish

The record for minuteness in its class is held by a tiny fish shown at the meeting of the American Society of Zoologists at New Haven by Dr. E. W. Guder of the American Museum of Natural History, says Science Magazine. The midget is exactly 30 millimeters, or less than one and one-quarter inches, in length, and belongs to the semi-parasiti genus Remora.

The fish in this group are parasitic only to the extent that they "hop a ride" on larger fishes, attaching themselves by a sort of vacuum disk that grows on the tops of their heads. This saves them the labor of swimming for themselves, and they pick up a living by swallowing bits of food scattered by their unwilling carriers at meal times. The next smallest specimen, which Dr. Gudger also showed, is a trifle over one and three-quarters inches in length.

Through the Norwich Land Title & Insurance Agency, L. J. Storrs has sold his real estate holdings at 110 and 110 1-2 North Main street, to M. J. and Lucie A. Anderson, the property consisting of two apartment blocks and store, with large tract of land. The new owners make this purchase as an investment and also to expand Mr. Anderson's auto accessory business, which has been located at this address for several years. Mr. Anderson will replace the building fronting North Main street, in the near future with an up-to-date garage and auto supply station.

Palace Theater

Of the varied assortment of film fare that is to be served up to local moviegoers during the coming week, none holds out greater promise of genuine entertainment than Paramount's A Kiss for Cinderella, which opens at the Palace theater next Thursday.

This production brings together again the personalities that skyrocketed Peter Pan to such a sensational success. Here, again, we have the light, delicately wrought fantasy and whimsical humor of James M. Barie, the expert direction and distinctive craftsmanship of Herbert Brenon and the elfin charm and sensitive acting of Betty Bronson.

But unlike Peter Pan, A Kiss for Cinderella is realistic in theme and modern in setting and background. The story centers around a poor little London slavey, whose unshakable belief that some day she will be invited to a magnificent ball, where a Prince will choose her as his princess, helps her to endure her drab surroundings and lighten her menial tasks.

How the Cinderella story of her dreams becomes the real romance of her life is revealed in a series of pathetic, comic and dramatic situations in which whimsy and reality are artfully blended.

Those who recall the memorable performance of Betty Bronson in Peter Pan know that this lovable little actress makes an ideal Barrie heroine, and the role of Cinderella offers her even greater opportunities for the display of her appealing talent. Tom Moore has the principal male lead and Esther Ralston lends her loveliness to the part of the fairy godmother.

Marvelous Motor Selling Event

The selling event extraordinary in motor vehicle lines is in progress at the W. H. Bailey garage on Bath St., where brand new cars are to be obtained at the price of used cars. Stars and Durants are actually offered at lower prices than it cost originally to make these cars.

Around the state these sales have been meeting with great success. When this sale was inaugurated in Waterbury and Bridgeport—over 100 cars were sold during the first week.

It is the biggest event from the motor car selling standpoint that has ever taken place in Norwich. The values are there—the style is there and the real worth of each car is so out of proportion to the present price of each model offered that the savings and bargain are so irresistible that it is little wonder that car customers are buying the Stars and the Durants at the prices now in vogue—present prices that are lower than it originally cost to make the cars.

Giving good advice is all right — if we give it to ourselves.

COUNCIL HAS BRIEF SESSION BUT MAKES IT SNAPPY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 1.—The city council held a meeting of half an hour's duration this evening, in which time it transacted considerable business. There were ten applications for permission to erect buildings and to make alterations, but the work in contemplation was not of great consequence. The council awarded a contract for the construction of 10,000 to 20,000 square feet of sidewalk to Turello Brothers, at a price of 27 cents a square foot with $4 per cubic yard for road excavation, for earth excavation in excess of two feet in depth. The other bid received was considerable above the Turello Brothers' price.

H. Verkade asked permission to remove three trees from in front of the property on Gardner avenue. The city manager requested that the permission sought be granted, as the trees are very near larger trees, so taking the trees away would be a benefit to the street and a convenience to the petitioner. The permission sought was given.

The application of Frank Saunders for a rebate of sewer assessment was denied, on representation of the director of law that the council had no authority to grant the rebate.

Considerable discussion was brought out by a proposal to change the name of Ledyard street to South Ledyard street. The matter was not acted on, as Mayor Fox suggested that the name of Ledyard should be retained and the city manager pointed out that a while ago the upper part of Main street was designated as North Main street, a designation that has passed away. Councilor May asked for attention to the city park off Riverside avenue. He pointed out that there were tree stumps in the field which is used as a baseball diamond, and asked that they be taken out and that the infield be improved. He said that perhaps city laborers could be put at work there to make the improvements suggested. The mayor said matters of the nature suggested should be brought to the attention of the city manager in advance of the meeting, but the councilor replied that his time was too valuable to be spent that way. He said the place for the transaction of the business he brought up was in the council chamber. Councilor May also asked for an additional street light in Bilnman street between Bank and Truman street. He reminded the council that he had called attention to this matter some time ago and was then told that the lights would be considered necessary and that the matter would rece

STOCK PRICES REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, June 1—(AP)—Stock prices turned reactionary today after an opening display of strength. Heavy calling of bank loans which sent the call money rate to five per cent., the highest in over two months, and the apparent failure of operators on the long side to attract an outside following after a week of steadily rising prices, were generally ascribed as the causes of the selling movement. Trading, however, turned dull on the decline, the day's sales aggregating only 894,300 shares, as compared with 1,-886,300 last Friday.

Business news over the week end was mixed in character. The failure of one of the large Florida real estate development companies, reports of poor retail trade in some sections because of unseasonable weather and the announcement of a cut in high priced models by a large automobile manufacturer, contrasted with the publication of several favorable earnings statements, the announcement that sales of all of the leading mail order houses were running well above those of a year ago, and reports of a continuation of heavy freight traffic.

Declaration of only the regular dividends today on Mack Trucks and Atchison probably caused some selling by disappointed holders who were looking for special distributions although none was expected conservative banking quarters.

Heavy realizing sales impeded bullish operations in the oil shares. Atlantic Refining dropped 2 1-4 points to 731.

Southern Railroad shares received excellent support. Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville and Nashville each closed a point or so higher while the Southern Railway showed a small fractional recession at 114 after having touched 115 5-8.

The principal commodity markets also pointed downward.

With the May position out of the way, trading in grain was of a more orderly character the active options showing moderate recessions on reports of beneficial rains in the wheat belt. Cotton also receded slightly on reports of better weather. Raw sugar was unchanged, but some irregularity developed in the market for futures. Coffee yielded 3 to 20 points in sympathy with an easier Brazilian market.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, advanced to 4 1-2 and thence to 5, the highest rate since the end of March. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with a drop of 1 cent to 9.00 cents in Polish zlotys as one of the few features. Demand sterling was slightly easier at $4.86 but French and Belgian francs held relatively firm at 3.26 1-2 and 3.16 1-2 cents respectively. Other changes were largely nominal.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—Wheat turned upward in price today despite an unexpected setback at Liverpool and notwithstanding beneficial rains born south and north of the Canadian line. Anxiety over adverse crop developments in regard to Kansas and Nebraska wheat had much to do with the lifting of values. Chicago closing prices for wheat were irregular, 2-8c net lower to 5-8c advance, with corn 1-4c to 1-2c down, oats unchanged to 1-4 3-8c off, and provisions showing 17 to 35c gain.

Active buying on the part of houses with eastern connections was a notable late feature in the wheat market. At first, however, the trend here was downward, chiefly owing to the sharp decline at Liverpool. On the other hand, Chicago unofficial estimates on the 1926 domestic yield of wheat proved to be about as had been expected and made a bullish showing as compared with the outlook a month ago.

Fine weather and liberal receipts of corn weakened the corn market and oats as well. In some cases corn touched a new low price record for the season.

Provisions rose in response to an upturn in the value of hogs and of cotton oil.

G. OF H. JUNIOR BRANCH CELEBRATED 1st ANNIVERSARY

Saturday evening at the Germania hall on Water street the Junior Order of the Sons of Herman held their first anniversary. Mayor Milo R. Waters and officers of the grand lodge were honorary guests, paying their due acknowledgments to the lodge. Over 300 were present at the anniversary, including wives, lady friends and members of Germania and Immergruen lodges of this city. Visiting members were also present from Hartford and New London.

President Chris Liepold called the assembly to order by extending the glad hand in behalf of the lodge with a sincere welcome and turned the meeting over to Henry Follenius, acting ex-president, and toastmaster for the evening. The toastmaster then called upon Mayor Milo R. Waters, who responded in a courteous manner and congratulated the junior branch on the progress that they had made in their first year of existence.

Henry Liepold, state president of the O. D. H. S., gave an interesting talk on how the junior branch has made such progress and particularly mentioned how this lodge leads in the state for securing the most members. Grand Vice President Herman Staab of New London also praised the lodge for its progress. The next speaker introduced was F. A. Baier of New London, a staunch supporter and founder of the Junior Branch. He also responded with words of praise. Mr. Baier is grand treasurer of the state lodge.

Mrs. Max Braun, president of the Immergruen lodge, in behalf of Immergruen lodge, wished the Junior Branch hearty success and by showing the esteems in which the Junior lodge is held by the Immergruen lodge extended a $10 gold piece. The gift was highly appreciated and a rising vote of thanks was extended. An appetizing menu was served by the members of the Immergruen lodge, consisting of roast pork, roast beef mashed potatoes, green peas, brown gravy, cabbage salad, celery, pickles, rolls, coffee, soda, ice cream and cake.

The ladies' degree team forming to go through a drill presented the lodge a birthday cake with one lighted candle and a five dollar gold piece. The gifts were a surprise and the members voted a loud applause of thanks. The degree team then went on with their drill and were loudly applauded. During the serving of the supper a delightful musical program was given by Shelby and his orchestra.

The initial anniversary proved to be a large success due to the energetic committee in charge, comprising the executive committee: Mitchell Cloutier, vice president, chairman; assisted by the president, Chris Liepold; treasurer, Lloyd Hayden; recording secretary, Harry Wischnewski; financial secretary, Herbert Charnetski and guide, William Theil; Henry Follenius, acting ex-president and Linus Victor Charnetski and Richard Sabrowski.

Mrs. A. Kirchner, Mrs. Louis Greaser, Mrs. John Schaffhauser and Mrs. Martin W. Wensel, were in charge of the cooking while members of the degree team were waitresses.

DISCUSSES THE QUESTION, "IS NEW ENGLAND SLIPPING?"

A part of the May membership letter of the Norwich chamber of commerce issued by Secretary John J. O'Rourke is devoted to a discussion on the topic is New England Slipping? The letter says:

At the annual meeting of the Boston chamber of commerce held recently, Ex-Governor Channing Cox made some pertinent remarks in the course of his address, regarding New England. The former governor stated:

"Lots of people say New England is slipping. Who are they? I will cite some of them."

"The man who sits around his club and bewails the wastefulness and inefficiency of the municipal government under which he lives, and then is too busy to take the time to vote to change it."

"The man who says that the chamber of commerce of his town is run by a lot of second raters, but won't join the chamber to help make it better."

"The croakers who do not know that most New England industrial leaders are keenly alive to the new order of things and are manfully meeting the difficult situation suddenly imposed upon them by changes in styles and in economic conditions."

"Who says New England is slipping? Those who do not know that in a territory comprising two per cent of the area of the United States and with seven and one half per cent of the total population of the country, the six New England states are today producing in their 20,000 industries more than eleven per cent of the total manufactured products of the nation, valued at $8,000,000,000 annually. That here live 8,000,000 sturdy people with a total wealth of $25,000,000,000 and a per capita wealth of $3,186. That here are 1,300,000 homes occupied by owners. That here are 1,048 banks with resources of $6,000,000,000; 7,559 miles of railroad lines; 15,000 miles of splendid state highways; 1,288 miles of coast line, with beaches, innumerable harbors, and unexcelled seaport facilities; 500 gas and electric companies with a total capitalization of $250,000,000; 10,400 schools and 54 colleges with attendance of more than 2,575,000 pupils."

"Let those who have nothing else to do continue to bewail that New England is slipping, but let those of us who have faith in ourselves and who believe in New England make sure that we continue her record of steady progress."

Here is a reminder of the potential latent facts concerning New England and its people, given by one who actually knows. In our own little New England community, the facts quoted above are true of Norwich. We, too, have faith in our industrial leaders. Our local textile manufacturers are facing difficult problems, due to changes of styles, but our textile mills are not closed, thanks to the resourcefulness of our industrial leaders. It is a fact that a large number of the southern cotton mills if not the majority, are operating on a three or four day weekly basis. Other manufacturers are meeting their particular competition with success, due to their aggressiveness and business acumen. We repeat again that the success of our industries is the success of Norwich.

The New London county business, of all kinds, totaled the magnificent figure of $892,400,044.00 for 1925. The figures for Norwich or this total are $541,102,494.00. Norwich is holding her own and is an important entity of New England.

Dean analytic system of rating. This system for compiling advisory rates for fire insurance, how being put into effect in Norwich, was devised and perfected by Albert F. Dean of Chicago, for many years a manager of the western department of the Springfield Fire & Marine Insurance company of Massachusetts. It has been adopted and applied in the following states: Arkansas, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming. It has been adopted by the New England Insurance exchange and is being put into operation throughout all the New England states at present; Massachusetts already having this system in force.

The New England Insurance Exchange is composed of 287 members, representatives of all the insurance companies doing business in this section of the country, and includes in its membership representatives from each of the New England states. Its purpose is to administer the fire insurance business of New England; adjust fire losses, arrange for branch offices, etc. The exchange meet weekly to act upon rates, fire losses, establish rates for sections, etc.

The Dean system is based upon a credit and debit order. Each individual piece of property stands upon its own merits or demerits for the application of the Dean system is. Compose is to treat every fire insurance risk in a fair and justifiable manner. It penalizes the careless and rewards the careful as indicated by the examples of instances where rates have been increased because of the existing fire hazards and decreased when fire hazards are eliminated in so far as possible. Such things as improper electrical wiring, improperly built chimneys, shingle roofs, rubbish accumulations, etc., are fire hazards that increase the insurance rates.

Arrangements were made for the May meeting of the chamber to be addressed by Nelson P. Worley of Hartford who has charge of the application of the Dean system in Connecticut. Unfortunately Mr. Worley's mother is seriously ill and he was forced to cancel his engagement for our meeting in order that he might visit his mother in Michigan. The meeting will be held as soon as Mr. Worley can come to Norwich. From the number of reservations made for the meeting it is evident that there is a great deal of local interest in this subject. The meeting will provide an excellent opportunity for learning more of the Dean system and to ask questions concerning it.

Local automobile licenses. The recent action by the state police department, in compelling residents of Norwich and its immediate surroundings to go to New London for their examinations for automobile licenses, was protested by the chamber during the past month. In the first place Norwich is the more central point for New London county to issue licenses and hold examinations. Secondly, Norwich is the most important city in eastern Connecticut from the viewpoint of industry, mercantile business and banking. Supt. Hurley states that the motor vehicle department desires a full time man to examine applicants. Investigations show that after examination, the applicant goes to New London to receive his license, so that it was felt that more efficient service could be rendered the public through the New London office.

JUDGMENT IS PAID IN VOLUNTOWN CASE

Litigation between Walter C. Tanner and Albert R. Dawley, as administrator of the estate of the late William H. Dawley of Voluntown, which has involved cases in the common pleas and the probate court, has just been terminated by payments that were made to Mr. Tanner in the office of Attorney J. J. Desmond.

In a suit against the administrator for services rendered to William H. Dawley during his illness from Dec. 11, 1923 to Jan. 3, 1924, Mr. Tanner secured a judgment in the common pleas court in December, 1923 for $156. He sued for $250, the exact amount of his claim for services being $136. The judgment has remained unpaid until now and amounts with interest to $177.75. This sum has just been paid to Mr. Tanner.

The other legal matter involved an auction sale of farm property under the authority of the probate court in 1924. In March of that year Albert R. Dawley secured the probate court authority to make this sale of Voluntown farm land belonging to the William H. Dawley estate. The land was duly advertised to be sold to the highest bidder and Mr. Tanner was the successful bidder on his bid of $2,025. The requirements of the sale called for a 20 per cent cash payment, or $405, which Mr. Tanner made. Later the administrator declined to make the conveyance of the title because of legal technicalities and now Mr. Tanner has been repaid the $405, with interest, which brought the total to $426.20.

WOULD HAVE MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE LAWS UNIFORM

Resolution Adopted at Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs—Requests of Department of Labor to Prepare a Practical Program For Dealing With Juvenile Delinquency.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 2.—(AP)—Resolutions advocating uniform marriage and divorce laws, requesting the children's bureau of the federal department of labor to prepare a practical program for dealing with juvenile delinquency, and supporting legislation to establish the rights of the American Indian under the constitution, were adopted today by the 13th biennial convention of the general federation of women's clubs.

The measure supporting uniform marriage and divorce laws was the only one to encounter opposition.

South Carolina delegates announced they could not vote for it, since their state had no divorce laws, enactment of federal laws of this nature, they said, would result in a lowering of standards of their state.

Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis, vice president and legal advisor of the federation, replied that marriage and divorce are not state questions and no state legislation could control it. The people of South Carolina, she asserted, went to other states to get their divorces.

Mrs. Lee Roy Spring of South Carolina, asked how far the federation would go in binding the several states to a policy directly opposed to that contemplated in the government of those states, but only three votes were recorded against the resolution.

BREAK HAS COME IN BRITISH LIBERAL PARTY

LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—The liberal party has been completely rent asunder and all political association between the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, leader of the party, and David Lloyd George, its parliamentary chairman, has been irrevocably ended even the liberals themselves admit no matter to which leader they are adhering.

Letters from Oxford and his supporters made public last night are considered as having dashed any lingering hope that the breach might be healed.

Lord Oxford's letter, addressed to Sir Godfrey Collins, chief liberal whip, reviewed the controversy growing out of the refusal of Mr. Lloyd George during the general strike to attend a meeting of the "shadow cabinet" and his disagreement with the other leaders in their viewpoint on the strike. Lord Oxford holds there is no excommunication or ostracism of Mr. Lloyd George, but that by his action he chose to separate himself in a most formal manner from our deliberations in a moment of great emergency. He was not driven out; he refused to come in."

Although Lord Oxford has such supporters as Viscount Grey, Sir John Simon and others, Mr. Lloyd George also has a powerful following among the rank and file of the party.

THREE PASSENGERS ARE STILL UNACCOUNTED FOR

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Three persons remained unaccounted for tonight after an all-day search of the Hudson river excursion Steamer Washington Irving, which sank after a collision yesterday, a few minutes after leaving her pier for Albany.

Those missing were: Mrs. Lynn Arthur Hoag, wife of a Jackson Heights physician, their three-year-old daughter and E. M. Woods, a mess boy.

Although divers examined the submerged hull of the vessel, no trace could be found of the three.

The wrecking company engaged to salvage the steamer made a survey of the problems involved and found that the close proximity of the sunken craft to their pier would handicap the use of pontoons in raising her.

The Washington Irving collided with a steel barge loaded with 7,000 barrels of oil during a dense fog. Those aboard number 200 passengers and a crew of 165. Captain Deming, when he realized the seriousness of the injury to his vessel, headed her for the New Jersey shore and it was believed all on board left the ship before she settled in 30 feet of water beside pier 9, Jersey City.

MAY ATTEMPT TO FLOAT SUBMARINE S-51 NEXT WEEK

NEW LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—The last of the four pairs of huge pontoons, which will be used in the latest effort of the navy department in raising the ill-fated submarine S-51 to the surface, was lowered by workers at the salvage fleet today. Divers still have considerable work to do in attaching the pontoons to the hull of the vessel and in seating compartments of the vessel to make them airtight. Radio advices received at the base tonight reported that the work was progressing satisfactorily.

After all pontoons are secured to the hull, air pumps will force the water from both the submarine and the air tanks. The bouyancy thus produced plus the power of a fleet of tugs on the surface is expected to free the vessel from the mud and sand on the bottom, and bring her to the surface. The attempt to float the submersible will probably be made early next week.

CHINA IS WEARY OF FOREIGN INTERFERENCE

GENEVA, June 2.—(AP)—China is sick to death over foreign interference in her domestic affairs, Mr. Chu, the Chinese minister to Italy, declared yesterday during a tempestuous session of the permanent opium commission in a violent altercation with the British delegate, Sir Malcom Delevigne. Sir Malcom had criticised the importation of morphine into China.

Mr. Chu became so excited that he literally screamed. He talked of the readiness of the Chinese t omake war on Great Britain. "If you find a Chinese who is not anti-foreign and not anti-British I'll say he is not a good Chinese," exclaimed the minister.

The word-battle became so heated that M. Bourgeolas, president of the commission, was obliged to adjourn the session.

URGING CONTINUANCE OF DISARMAMENT DISCUSSIONS

GENEVA, June 2.—(AP)—The American delegation at the disarmament meeting is taking the lead in an endeavor to stave off the attempt to adjourn the disarmament discussions persistently launched by several of the European powers.

Italy and France have both been favoring suspension of the sessions of the military sub-committee for two or more months to permit time for reflection on problems to be solved.

NEW FAIRFIELD ENDS FISHING LAW REBELLION

NEW FAIRFIELD, June 2.—(AP)—The New Fairfield rebellion against state fishing laws petered out today and virtually came to an inglorious end and admission of defeat when the selectmen issued a warning not to fish without a license.

The warning, issued "to the people of New Fairfield in regard to fishing now in question: For the people of the town of New Fairfield not to fish without a license until this is settled through the legislature," was posted today, signed by all three selectmen, Henry Backer, John A. Waldron and Walter Dawson.

Although none of the selectmen could be located the warning was taken to be the termination of the revolt that lasted just about a month, during which time, insofar as is known, the state laws that were repudiated were not violated by any one.

It was on May 15 that the citizens of the town met and approved almost unanimously an ordinance passed two weeks before whereby, the state law notwithstanding, any citizen of the town might fish within the town limits of any time without a license. The electors decided the state had no right to regulate fishing by citizens in the town and that they were not required to procure licenses.

SWEDISH CROWN PRINCE AT SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(AP)—The crown prince of Sweden today saw the cradle of American independence, the sesqui-centennial exposition commemorating the 150th anniversary of that independence and part of the army and navy that have zealously guarded it.

Besides these sights, the rown prince saw that quaint and beautiful little bit of architecture Del Gloria (old Swedes') church, the Swedish block house at the exposition, laid the cornerstone of the John Morton Memorial building at the exposition.

He visited the University of Pennsylvania's museum, admired the art collection at the home of Joseph E. Widener and made four speeches.

The crown prince then called it a day and went to bed to rest for his journey by automobile to New York tomorrow. He will inspect new Pennsylvania highways en route and will stop at East Orange, N. J., to inspet the Edison laboratories.

The crown prince declined to comment on the resignation of the Swedish cabinet.

ACTION REFUSED BY STATE MILK REGULATION BOARD

HARTFORD, June 2.—(AP) — The state milk regulation board refused to take action today in the case of the appeal of the Lockhart Stewart Pasteurizing company of New Haven from the decision of Dairy and Food Commissioner Thomas Holt in revoking its pasteurizing plant license.

The board took the position that it had no jurisdiction in the matter as the regulation under which the license was revoked is a state statute and not an order of the regulation board.

The license was revoked last December, Mr. Holt said because the company was pasteurizing milk at too low a temperature and not using the prescribed charts and because of other violations of the state regulations. Mr. Stewart presented his own case to the board. It is expected that he will appeal to the superior court.

LATEST PROHIBITION NEWS FROM NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—Cross currents of legislative tendencies in the prohibition situation were in evidence today as the stream of proposals in both houses of congress neared the whirlpool of final committee consideration and action.

The conflicting trends were particularly in evidence before the house judiciary committee, which referred to a sub-committee the Britten resolution to block the president's executive order to enlist state and local police officers in enforcement activities. A few moments later it received from a sub-committee without recommendation the Stalker bill to make jail sentence mandatory upon first offense conviction on charges of manufacture, sale and transportation of liquor.

The Stalker measure, almost identical with a bill by the NewYork member, approved by the judiciary committee at the last session of congress, was sent back to the judiciary committee untouched after several hearings had been held by the sub-committee. Chairman Boies, of the sub-committee, said his group, "could easily reach an agreement upon a report and recommendation" but that he felt it was unnecessary in the face of action upon a similar measure at the last session.

Proposals for a referendum and modification of the Volstead act will come before a senate judiciary subcommittee tomorrow while measures to tighten up enforcement will be considered by the house judiciary committee.

The Stalker bill was endorsed by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, as assistant attorney general, recently before the house judiciary committee.

AN OPEN BREAK IN THE PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY

BALTIMORE, June 2.—(AP) — An open break between fundamentalists and liberals occurred at the close of the 138th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America today when Dr. Clarence Macartney, fundamentalist leader, issued a statement charging that a coalition of modernists and others had brought the assembly to "a terrible climax."

An attempt to introduce the statement as a resolution before the assembly by a floor commissioner was defeated, as this constituted new business, and Moderator Thompson pointed out that the constitution forbids introduction of new business so late.

The statement had been circulated hardly more than an hour before Dr. A. Edwin Keigwin, chairman of the assembly's committee of overtures, issued a flat denial of Dr. Macartney's statements. He added:

"The complete and sweeping victory won in this general assembly by the coalition of modernists, indifferentists and pacificists, and which reached a terrible climax in the repudiation of Dr. J. Gresham Machem for the chair of apologetics in Princeton Theological seminary will prove a blessing in disguise."

The Machem case referred to regarded the decision of the assembly today in postponing approval of the seating of Prof. Machen until after a committee had investigated charges of "temperamental idiosyncracies" against him, and the conditions of affairs at the seminary.

"The extraordinary events of this general assembly," Dr. Macartney continued, "will awaken the great number in our church who think all is well with the Presbyterian church and will unite in solid ranks all those who are determined to stand for our precious and blood bought inheritance."

Dr. Keigwin, chairman of the assembly's committee on overtures, which recommended the action taken by the assembly, said Dr. Macartney must have spoken in excitement and "entirely misinterpreted the facts."

San Francisco was selected as the site of the 139th assembly next year.

COURT BREAKS THE WILL OF CHARLES N. SHAW

BOSTON, June 2.—(AP)—A jury in superior court late today returned a verdict breaking the will of Charles N. Shaw, wealthy Boston candy manufacturer, on the ground that undue influence had been exercised by persons who were made beneficiaries.

The contest was brought by Mrs. Effie P. Lightbipe, of Orange, N. J., first cousin and next of kin of the testator, who was not mentioned in the will. She alleged undue influence on the part of Isaac Harold Angell and Mrs. William H. (Forsaith) Angell, who were bequeathed large sums of money.

The jury found that Mr. Shaw was of sound mind but that undue influence had been exercised by the persons named.

TWO YEAR SENTENCE FOR VIOLATION OF MANN ACT

HARTFORD, June 2.—(AP)—Found guilty on one of three counts, all involving violation of the Mann act, Paul Larue, of 125 East 27th street, New York, was sentenced to two years in Atlanta today by Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States district court. More than two hours of deliberation was required by the jury in which to bring in a verdict and once, during this time, Judge Thomas sent for the jurors to give further instructions. Foreman Ernest H. Woodford, of Unionville, announced that the prisoner was found not guilty o none count the jury had disagreed on a second count and he was found guilty on the third count.

Drops Investigation of Gilpatric Affairs

State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn Has Abandoned Plan to Call Grand Jury.

HARTFORD, June 2.—(AP)—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn said today that he had dismissed consideration of a plan to call the grand jury to investigate the operations of G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and cashier of the First National bank, of Putnam, to see whether a crime had been committed in Hartford county.

Mr. Alcorn declined to state what had led him to consider calling the grand jury to investigate Gilpatric's affairs in Hartford county. He took this same position at the time he announced he had the Gilpatric matter under consideration last winter, declining then to suggest why he was considering the grand jury investigation.

The state's attorney also declined to indicate why he had decided to drop consideration of his plan to call the grand jury.

Since Mr. Alcorn announced he was considering a grand jury investigation of Gilpatric's affairs in Hartford county last winter, Governor Trumbull has appointed a committee of ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, Charles S. Morris, of New Haven, former democratic candidate for governor, and Morgan B. Brainard, president of the Aetna Life insurance company, to inquire into the operations of the state treasurer and country banker.

The committee engaged the Boston firm of Scovell, Wellington and company accountants, to audit the books of the state treasury for the period covering Gilpatric's term of office. The auditors are still engaged in that work under the direction of the committee, who have not yet made a final report to the governor of their findings.

A few months ago Receiver George M. Coffin, of the First National bank, of Putnam, wrote Governor Trumbull that the bank had filed suit against the state in regard to $200,000 worth of state Liberty bonds which, it was alleged at the outset, Gilpatric used to cover up shortages at the bank and which he later paid back to the state through money stolen from the bank.

Gilpatric is now serving a sentence of 15 years in the Atlanta penitentiary for embezzlement. He is blind from a bullet wound inflicted when he faced discovery of his embezzlements from the bank in August, 1924.

SACCO-VANZETTI DEFENSE COMMITTEE MAKES DENIAL

BOSTON, June 2—(AP)—Emphatic denial that the dynamiting of a house in West Bridgewater yesterday was the work of friends of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti was issued today by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee. The committee expressed "intense regret" over the wrecking of the home of Samuel Johnson, a relative of a government witness at the trial in which Sacco and Vanzetti were found guilty of murder.

The men were convicted of the murder of a paymaster and his guard in 1920. Radical organizations throughout the world have held demonstrations in their defense.

"The committee wishes emphatically to repudiate the accusations that newspapers say the police made against friends of the Sacco-Vanzetti case in connection with this explosion," the committee sets forth. The effect of such accusations is to excite prejudice against the two defendants who are in the shadow of the electric chair for a crime which this committee and millions of working men and friends of justice are convinced they had nothing to do with."

It is stated further that "it must be apparent to anyone who is willing to give a moment's thought to the matter that friends of the Sacco-Vanzetti case could not have had anything to do with the West Bridgewater explosion. In the first place, the Johnsons of Maple street were not the ones who figured as witnesses in the case. In the second place—and this is the important factor—the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee and the friends of the case rely now and always on the justice of their cause and do not resort to bombs."

The statement which is signed by John Jarry, chairman of the committee, suggests that "judgment should be suspended until some reliable evidence" is obtained as to the identity of the persons who committed the outrage. "The committee," it was announced, "repudiates the action as utterly as it repudiated the South Braintree murder."

CHALLENGES RIGHT OF MOTOR VEHICLE COMM'ER

WATERBURY, June 2—(AP)—Waterbury's board of safety in adopting the report of its traffic committee, today, challenges the right of the state motor vehicle commissioner to interfere with local traffic matters and denies that the state motor vehicle law supercedes the charter provision giving the local board of aldermen power to regulate traffic here. The report states that while Commissioner Stoeckel is "a very smart official," he "does not know everything about the conditions in this city for the reason that he has neither the time nor inclination to study them."

Contest Over Farm Relief Legislation

Republican Leaders in the Senate Sidetracked the Matter For Aircraft Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—The senate was forced to devote two hours to farm relief legislation, but republican leaders finally had their way and sidetracked that bill long enough to pass the Army Aircraft five-year-building program.

Taking advantage of the parliamentary situation, Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, refused early in the afternoon to agree to unanimous consent for the temporary laying aside of the farm bill for the aircraft measure as had been done yesterday after the former had been made the unfinished business of the senate.

This made it necessary for Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, in charge of the cooperative marketing-corn belt bill to begin his opening statement o nthat measure. After he had proceeded for two hours amid numerous interruptions, Senator Morris, republican, Nebraska, called attention to the fatigue of the Oregon Senator and the senate agreed to proceed with the aircraft measure.

In asking that the original program of the majority leaders be carried out, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, explained that Senator Blease, who was not then present, had agreed not to press his objections against sidetracking farm relief Senator Blease's protest against putting aside the farm measure was voiced after the democratic leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, had expressed doubt as to whether there was a sincere purpose to put through a real farm measure at this session.

At a plea of Senator Bingham that the air bill was a measure of national defense, the fiery South Carolinian replied that when the United States adhered the world court there was a promise of no more wars and that consequently additional airplanes were not needed.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE MACKINAC TRIAL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 2—(AP)—Captain George W. McVay, Chief Engineer John A. Grant and Agent George W. Kelley of the steamer Mackinac, on which a boiler explosion in Newport harbor last August 18 cost 35 lives, will be retried next October 18 on charges growing out of the disaster, it was announced in superior court here today after the three men had withdrawn pleas of nolo and had substituted pleas of not guilty to indictments returned against them by the grand jury.

Captain McVay and Engineer Grant are charged with manslaughter, while Agent Kelley is charged with being an accessory before the fact.

An agreement between the state and the defense last week to the effect that the defendants, who had been on trial for more than a week, would receive deferred sentences if they pleaded nolo, was set aside today when they appeared for sentence on the nolo pleas.

The agreement was made for the state by Assistant Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen, Judge Charles A. Walsh of the superior court, presiding over the case, was a party to the pact.

Attorney General Charles P. Sisson took the case in hand today and told the court he would refuse to allow the state to be a party to the plan. He asked the court to direct the defendants to withdraw their nolo pleas, to allow them to plead not guilty, again and to have the case set for retrial before a new jury.

Judge Walsh declared from the bench that after approving of the agreement for a nolo plea and deferred sentences, he had learned more of the case and had reached a decision that he could not countenance carrying the plan to conclusion. If the attorney general had not asked for retrial, Judge Walsh would have ordered it, the justice declared.

METEOR FELL IN THE EAST HARTFORD MEADOWS

HARTFORD, June 2.—(AP)—A meteor, about three feet in diameter, fell in the east Hartford meadows about 9 o'clock tonight, striking a wire during its flight and causing the lights to go out on Pitkin and Darlin streets, East Hartford. The meteor gave off a bright blue light as it fell, during the rain storm and gave off a brilliant light, visible for some distance as it lay in the grass.

The grass was burned for some distance around where the meteor hit, while the heavenly body itself, was almost entirely consumed. A few pieces of dark, shining material, looking like polished asphalt, with small holes, presumably made by escaping steam, and considerable ash were found.

The meteor burned for 20 minutes after it hit the ground. The meteor seemed to disintegrate violently, shooting sparks and molten material for a short distance into the air around the intersection of Pitkin and Darlin streets, where it struck.

HOUSE APPROVED FRENCH WAR DEBT SETTLEMENT

Vote, on Non-Partisan Lines, Was 236 to 112—Calls For Payment to the United States of $6,847, 674,000 Over a 62 Year Period—Measure Was Sent to the Senate, Where It is Expected to Encounter Greater Opposition.

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP)—The French war debt settlement, which calls for the payment to the United States of $6,847,674,000 in principal and interest over a 62 year period, was approved today by the house.

By a vote of 236 to 112 a bill to ratify acceptance of the agreement worked out by the debt commission was sent to the senate where it is expected to encounter greater opposition.

It was opposed on the house roll call by 20 republicans 88 democrats, 2 farm labor members, one independent and one socialist, while 51 democrats and one progressive-socialist, combined with the republican majority in voting for acceptance.

A last minute move by Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, to send the bill of ratification back to the ways and means committee, to be held there until action is taken on the settlement by the French parliament was defeated 202 to 40.

Representative Wefald, farm-labor, Minnesota, sought unsuccessfully to amend the agreement by eliminating a provision enabling France under certain conditions to postpone any payment of principal or interest for three years. Representative Michener, republican, Michigan, presiding, however, held the agreement was not subject to revision.

Approval came after a day and a half of debate during which Representative Collier, Mississippi and Rainey, Illinois, both democrats, in the ways and means committee, led the heated attack against the settlement. Collier asserted the terms of the agreement were so liberal as to be unfair to American taxpayers, while Raney assailed the settlement as too liberal in time and declared it was sponsored by New York bankers.

Representative Howard, democrat, Nebraska, in opposing the agreement said the United States had been ruled for the last four years by a "Morgan-Mellon group of international bankers." Representative Rathbone, republican, Illinois and Representative Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, were others who bitterly assailed it.

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, and Representatives Burton, republican, Ohio, and Crisp democrat, Georgia, both members of the debt commission, led in a defense of the settlement as the best France could negotiate at the present time. Endorsing the agreement, Representative Tilson, the republican leader, asserted that its rejection would be a "serious blow to France at this critical juncture." Representative Mills, New York, and Andrew, Massachusetts, both republicans, also urged members to remember the circumstances under which the loans were made, the former contending that "the American people wanted the agreement ratified because they believed it not only fair to themselves but also to France."

Just before the final vote, Representative Lozier, democrat, Missouri, contended the settlement did not provide for the payment of one cent of principal as interest on the principal at 4 per cent. would exceed any of the annual payments, which graduated from initial installments of $30,000,000.

SENATE VOTES TO EXPAND THE ARMY AIR SERVICE

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—The house bill designed to strengthen the army air service during the next five years was passed late today by the senate without a record vote over the attempts of democrats to restore portions of the measure as passed by the house which were eliminated by the senate military committee. The measure now goes to conference for adjustment of differences between the house and senate.

The bill would authorize an addition of 403 officers in the newly established "air corps," an increase in enlisted personnel from 8,400 to approximately 15,000 whenever congress provides the necessary funds, and construction of 1800 planes in the five year period and as many airships, free and captive balloons as the secretary of war may determine to be necessary for training purposes. The cost is estimated at $40,000,000 annually.

The bill also would create the office of second assistant secretary of war who would be charged with the supervision of the air corps and the co-ordination of its activities with other governmental agencies.

The senate refused to limit to the air corps appointments of the major generals to be chief of the air corps, and of three brigadier-generals to be assistant chiefs. Senators Robinson, the democratic leader, and Trash, democrat, Tennessee, insisted on the restriction, but the senate voted, 43 to 23, to limit the appointments to officers of not less than 15 years of commissioned service and to those who have demonstrated by actual and extended service in the air troops that they are qualified.

AUTHORITIES SEEKING SLAYER OF DANBURY MAN

DANBURY, June 2.—(AP)—Working on the theory that Peter Gigliotti, sought in connection with the murder of James Capalongo early today, might attempt to escape from the city where he is believed to be hiding with friends, every available regular and special policeman and a detachment of state police tonight guarded all highways leading from Danbury and stopped every vehicle that passed.

On the possibility that he had already escaped from here, a description of the suspect was broadcast and police in nearby sections were asked to watch for the man. A report was received from Millsdale that an Italian, answering the description of the man wanted had asked for lunch at a farm house there late tonight. The Millsdale report said that the man had attracted attention by his extreme nervousness. He was on foot and hurried away immediately.

Gigliotti was described by the Danbury police as an Italian about 40 years of age. He was five feet, five inches in height, slim, with dark complexion, black hair, smooth shaven and had a prominent nose. When last seen he wore a dark gray suit. He lived in Bridgeport at 33 Jones street.

Capalongo had been shot last April in Bridgeport and at that time, Gigliotti was detained for questioning by the police but later released. Mrs. Losie Fischer, of 37 Elm street, this city, with whom Capalongo boarded, told the police that Gigliotti had visited her boarder and that the man she saw running from the scene of the shooting early today was the same person.

Capalongo was shot down in the garage as he was about to crank his automobile and drive to work today. His assailant hid in a cellar way nearby and fired six shot at him, the last four at close range.

The police found two revolvers in the cellar way, one fully loaded and the second a .32 calibre, mounted on a .45 base, containing six empty shells. Police believe both guns were the property of the assailant.

TWENTY DAYS, $200 FINE FOR A DRUNKEN DRIVER

HARTFORD, June 2.—(AP)—Declaring that "the time has come when something must be done about people driving while under the influence of liquor," Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in superior court today fined Harold A. Keller, of Bristol, $200 and sentenced him to 20 days in jail.

"There is nothing more dangerous than an automobile in the hands of a drunken driver," Judge Nickerson said. "Too many autoists are crowded off the road by these drivers and the safety of all is in peril."

WAS ARRESTED AFTER FORFEITING $2,000 BOND

STAMFORD, June 2—(AP)—Amerigo Solicicco, of this city who forfeited a $2,000 bond in the criminal session of the court of common pleas at Bridgeport, yesterday, was arrested by police here tonight on abench warrant issued by Judge Frederick W. Huxford. Solicicco was arrested on January 29, charged with being a second offender of violation of the liquor laws and fined $250 with a six months jail sentence. He appealed and furnished bonds, but when the case was called neither he nor his attorney appeared. He claimed that he had not been notified to appear.

The stage in the auditorium at the Windham high school will be enlarged by four feet to accommodate the unusually large number of graduates of the school who will participate in the exercises this year. Matters became considerable of a problem when it was discovered that the numbers in the graduating class had so increased that the already substantially large stage would not be large enough this year. It was found that an enlargement of the stage space would be generally beneficial for graduation and other functions and work was started Wednesday to make it four feet deeper.

Street Superintendent Irving M. Ford got his force of men busy on the annual job of oiling the city streets Wednesday. It is admitted that most of the streets need considerably more than oil but until the electors of the city are jointly in a mood to vote the necessary amount of money for permanent repairs the street department is doing what it can to make city traveling fairly comfortable. It is expected that in the near future a special city meeting will be called to appropriate a sum of permanent street surfacing. In view of the work necessary to be done the amount asked for will undoubtedly be large, probably between $100,000 and $175,000 but even at that it is felt by many that only the citizens who have not had to ride over the hummocks of upper and lower Main street, Jackson street and Valley streets will be those to balk at the cost.

AGREEMENT ON HIGH SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION WORK

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 2.—At a meeting of the high school building committee Wednesday afternoon there was included in the matters under discussion certain considerations relative to the building operations now under way. With the architect who prepared the plans and specifications the committee went over the particular things it desired to discuss and it was stated after the meeting by Supt. W. E. Parker that he believed the matters at issue had been satisfactorily adjusted.

Among other things the committee was not satisfied with the color of the mortar that has gone into some of the new construction. It is noticeably darker than that between the layers of brick in the original structure. The committee was assured that this mortar will show out to the grayish white that appears in the old building and will harmonize with it in due time. Such other matters pertaining to the specifications as the committee desired to discuss were gone over in detail, with a view to obtaining exactly the kind of a job that is called for in the contract. There is assurance that the work will be satisfactorily completed.

Because men were not at work upon the structure Wednesday morning a rumor spread that serious difficulties had developed and that the work had been stopped. It was explained for the committee that work did not cease because of any order of the committee or, on account of any of the matters that were to be discussed at the afternoon meeting.

As a possible explanation of the brief interruption of the work, which was again under way Wednesday afternoon. It was pointed out that Supt. Douglas, who is supervising the construction for the contracting company, was injured in Worcester nearly two weeks ago when he was caught between a trolley car and a truck and turned about a number of times before he could extricate himself. These injuries afflicted him during all of the past week and he was advised by a member of the committee that it would be well if he rested for a few days. Supt. Douglas did not appear at the job Tuesday morning, following the holiday season, and it was said he was not on hand Wednesday morning. His absence was pointed to as a possible explanation of why the work was temporarily held up.

The building committee is watching the detail of the construction work underway and while it does not stress this supervision, is careful to see that all work done is according to the specifications.

Relatives and friends representing Danielson, Dayville, West Thompson, Putnam and Webster gathered at the home of Mr. and Moses Berthiaume, Sr., to observe the silver anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Berthiaume's wedding. During the evening they were presented with 70 silver dollars. Refreshments were served and music and various diversions served to make an exceedingly pleasant evening. Mr. and Mrs. Berthiaume were residents of Dayville for many years, until they came here when Mr. Berthiaume took a position with his son, Moses H. Berthiaume, engaged in business here.

Getting a trade along with a practical education is a proposition that appears to have a growing appeal for members of young men in Killingly and other surrounding towns. For that reason applications from Killingly and other communities in this corner of the state will be filed for admission to the State Trade school at Putnam at the close of the present school year. There is no tuition charge at the State Trade school. That makes getting an education there a simple proposition, insofar as expenses are concerned, for an ambitious youth—and there are courses for girls, too. The boy with a practical training in some trade is not apt to find himself out of work and out of funds during the years he will be expected to have employment. A State Trade school course will protect him against such a possibility.

The half-holiday season for store forces in Danielson is expected to be inaugurated in July, following a custom that has been in vogue here for a number of years and is also followed in a number of nearby towns. Closing Thursday afternoons has been generally adopted in the business communities of eastern Windham county. While industry generally allows a half-holiday the year around, mercantile establishments in this territory are limited to a weekly half-holiday during July and August, the real hot weather season.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stone and their children of Bedford Springs have been visitors with Mr. Stone's mother, Mrs. George Stone of Academy street.

Mrs. George Dunn of Hartford has been a visitor with Mrs. J. J. Dunn of North Main street and members of her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Flagg, former residents of this town, were honored by Emerson H. Lacum camp, United Spanish War Veterans of Waterbury and by Davenport auxiliary in the respective rooms of these organizations in the state armory in that city. Mr. Flagg and Mrs. Flagg are leaving Waterbury for Willimantic, much to the regret of their circles of friends in the Brass city.

Following a regular business session a social session was held and a supper served in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Flagg. Mr. Flagg was presented with a Gladstone traveling bag by Commander John A. Hitchcock, who said the camp greatly regretted the loss of so valuable a member, and that in presenting him with the bag, there was no significance as to his departure, but it might be used upon his return to Waterbury at any time he decided to come back. Mr. Flagg, in responding, expressed his appreciation to the camp and also that it was with regret that he was leaving Waterbury and the camp.

Mrs. Lucy Morse, president of the auxiliary, then presented Mrs. Flagg with a handsome umbrella, her presentation speech being much after the style of Commander Hitchcock's. Mrs. Morse said that in losing Mrs. Flagg the auxiliary was losing one of its best workers and, at the same time, her secretary. In responding, Mrs. Flagg said she regretted leaving Waterbury and her many friends in the auxiliary.

Mr. Flagg is leaving Waterbury about June 15, after a residence of a number of years there, to take a position with a Willimantic firm in whose employ he was when he left that city for Waterbury.

Hermenegildo Lajeunesse of Maple street has been ordered to appear in the town court tomorrow (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock to answer charges that have been filed against him as the result of an accident in which the machine he was driving was in collision Tuesday, with a car driven by Alfred Flira of Brooklyn. Helen Flira, seven, who was riding in the Flira car with her father and mother and another child of the Flira family, sustained lacerated cuts over and under her left eye through coming in contact with the broken windshield of the machine. There is a possibility, owing to the nature of the wounds, that the child will be disfigured for life.

Lajeunesse had come out of Franklin street and was cutting diagonally across Main toward Maple street when his car crashed with the Flira machine. After checking up the accident Chief John McFarland ordered Lajeunesse to appear in court, and the hearing has been set for the time mentioned.

Memorial day was appropriately recognized last Sunday at Goodyear church with a sermon on Christian Patriotism by the pastor. The text was I Peter 2: 15 and the salient points were: It is a Christian's duty to know the political trend of his country. For the betterment of living conditions, through a wise and clean government, all are more or less responsible. Interest in and love for one's country should prompt the Christian to fight indifference, love of ease, and selfish devotion to business. The Christian who may and does not vote is a slacker. Our country and its institutions are a heritage bought with the blood of patriots and it is up to us to preserve them.

PUTNAM

POOR HEALTH CAUSED L. D. ROSS TO TAKE LIFE

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 2—Lowell D. Ross, 80 years of age, one of the esteemed citizens of Putnam committed suicide this morning by drowning. The Quinebaug river runs about 200 feet in the rear of his home on Main street and he threw himself into the stream after first tying a rope around his neck and fastening the other end to a tree on the bank.

Eleven years ago Mr. Ross suffered a shock from which he never recovered. This and the infirmities of age impaired his mind to a degree which led him to take his own life.

Prior to coming to Putnam 15 years ago Mr. Ross had been a successful farmer in Thompson. Soon after he arrived here he was stricken in health and the deplorable affair this morning was the culmination of his physical ailments.

He was in his home about 8:30 and a remark that he made led his wife, who is also an invalid, to think that the contemplated self-destruction. When he left the house she called to her daughter and the latter phoned her uncle George C. Ross, to hurry to the scene. He arrived within a few minutes and going to the rivers edge found the body. Dr. S. E. Overlook responded quickly to a message, but death had already ensued. During the vacation of Dr. F. A. Morrell, Dr. Overlook is the medical examiner for this district. He pronounced the death due to suicide.

Besides his wife and Mr. Munyan who lives in Worcester, there are two sons who survive, Jerome Ross, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Charles E. Ross of St. Louis. They will both arrive here in time for the funeral.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 2—The announcement in the Associated Press despitch in the Bulletin this morning was the first information that Putnam heard that it had been the Gretna Green to which Miss Elinor M. Patterson of Chicago, daughter of the wealthy newspaper publisher, Joseph Merrill Patterson, and Russell F. Codman, Jr., a scion of one of Boston's most exclusive families, had come to be married.

Rev. Nathan B. Burton, pastor of the Putnam M. E. church, said that the young couple had arrived at his home on Tuesday evening, May 25, shortly after dark. They told him that they had planned to be married this summer and as Miss Patterson was to go to Europe with her mother in June, they decided to do it at once.

Under the Connecticut law five days notice is required of people living out of the state. But they produced a license dated a week prior. At their request he married them in the church which adjoins the parsonage. He was impressed he said by their courtesy and evident breeding. They asked him not to make the news of the ceremony public before it was necessary; but they did not stress that point. They came alone in an automobile and there were no attendants at the ceremony.

It was Earle Sabin Spencer to whom Miss Elnora Tinker was married at St. Philips church yesterday and not Earle Spencer Sabin. The knot is just as securely tied, however, and the happy couple are on a wedding journey, the itinerary of which was not revealed to anyone.

Miss Mary Cassells, a freshman in the Tourtelotte Memorial high school at North Grosvenordale, took highest honors for the state of Connecticut in the third national meat story contest, according to the announcement of winners by the National Live Stock and Meat board, sponsor of the contest. Miss Cassells' story, entitled "The Journey of Meat From the Ranch to Our Homes" placed second in the eastern district. First place in the district winning one of four university scholarships, plus a cash prize of $50 went to Miss Margaret Gindhart of Hartford, N. J. Miss Ardis Wilden of El Paso, Texas was declared national champion. Elinor M. Chappell of Chestnut Hill, Conn., ranked fifth in the eastern district.

The winners were selected by a committee of judges composed of Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, United States department of agriculture; Miss Margaret Fedde, chairman of the department of home economics, University of Nebraska and Miss Maria Sellers, home bureau editor of the Pictorial Review. The committee has just completed its deliberations after perusing and grading the mass of more than 10,000 stories coming from every state in the Union.

Miss Cassells competed for the first time this year. She is a student in the domestic arts course at the Tourtelotte school. Principal Ewell F. Kimball of the school speaks of her in the very highest terms, as being a conscientious and painstaking student, who ranks easily among the highest three in a large class, and is much pleased with her success in this competition.

George Gould of Elmhurst, Long Island, is at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from a fracture of three ribs and severe burns from the gasoline sustained when the automobile in which he was riding was in collision with a Rhode Island car on Pomfret hill near the Pomfret railroad station. James Sillick, of New York, driver of the car in which Gould was riding escaped without any serious accident.

Miss Edith King and Miss Dorothy Colt, whose plays put on entirely by children, have attained a widespread reputation are in Pomfret after a successful winter in New York. Miss Colt will remain for some time and Miss King will later go to Woodstock, N. Y., for the summer. Miss King is the sister of Mrs. Luis de Flores.

Leonard Swain of New York city has been the recent guest of his brother, Charles Field Swain at Pomfret.

The application of oil on the streets of the city has been completed under the direction of Superintendent Frank Dumas. There was 18,000 gallons of oil used and sand was sprinkled over it as fast as the oil was applied so that the inconvenience was reduced to a minimum.

Gilbert Burdick of Pomfret Center, Conn., has been appointed administrator of the estate of Sarah J. Burdick, late of Pomfret by Judge Willis Covell.

Mrs. John day Whitehead of Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending a month at Topsfield in Pomfret. Mr. Whitehead who is located for the present in Boston spends the week end with her at Pomfret.

Mrs. John Addison Porter, who has been spending the winter at Warrenton, Va., and Washington, D. C., is at present on the eastern shore of Maryland. She will not open her summer home at Pomfret until late in June.

VOTERS SHOULD VOTE

In the city election next Monday the fact must be obvious that the result is bound to depend upon the manner in which the voters get out to the polls. If the republican ticket is going to be elected, it is important that the republicans should get out and support it.

Thus far the campaign has shown very little activity. Perhaps it can be best told after it is all over just what that means, but it is no secret that such a campaign foretells a light vote and a light vote seldom indicates the proper amount of interest in such a contest, dealing as it does with the welfare of the city for the next two years.

It is at the city election that the wishes of the voters are expected to be registered. If they stay away from the polls they are depending upon the judgment of others and such dependence is a constant cause of dissatisfaction. It leaves to the few the decision that should be made by the many. It displays a laxity on the part of the voter and creates [illegible] for which complaints are constantly being made. It is a flagrant disregard of duty to self and to neighbor.

Responsibility rests upon the voters, women as well as men, to get out and vote and in addition there should be a well organized party effort to see that those who would otherwise stay at home are gotten to the polls. General apathy needs to be opposed and an interest aroused in getting the best possible city government through the men who are placed in office.

Norwich is in need of the best administration of city affairs that can be obtained. It is entitled to something besides increased taxation. It rests with the voters to decide whether those are going to be gained by staying at home and refraining from voting, or by going to the polls and giving expression to their sentiments.

STOPPING DESPOILERS

Already in a number of cities new campaigns are underway for the restraint of the public when it comes to destroying the green grass and littering up public parks. It is an effort that goes with the season. There is always a demand for the use of money for the putting of parks in good condition and keeping them there. It is desirable that there should be nice looking grass plots, well kept flower beds, properly trimmed shrubbery and needed attention be given to the trees. It takes considerable in the way of time and money to accomplish such things, but they are desirable and appreciated by the great majority.

There are those, however, who give slight heed to the outlay or the attractiveness of the results. They are satisfied only if they can proceed to tear down and destroy. Those unable to find any pleasure unless they are picking the flowers, trampling up plants, breaking down bushes or otherwise spoiling orderly conditions, and if there is no effort to stop it the practice becomes epidemic.

There are others who welcome the opportunity to enjoy the parks, to use them for picnic grounds and to derive some pleasure from such beauty spots. But even that appreciation is short lived when such picknickers scatter their rubbish right and left and transform an attractive place into a dumping ground which in short order becomes repulsive to others.

It is regrettable that there are so many who fail to look beyond their own immediate pleasures. It is human to find fault with what others do but it is entirely needless to follow the same practices. The force of bad example should be sufficient to accomplish reforms if opportunities for such are really being sought but it is only by enforcing regulations which have been found necessary that whatever can be placed on the despoilers.

LOSSES THROUGH CARELESSNESS

A Westfield woman has reported the loss of two rings. She placed them in an old shoe for safekeeping, then proceeded to discard the shoes and gave them away with the result that neither the shoes nor the rings can be found.

Perhaps it will be said that anyone who indulges in such a careless practice deserves to lose their diamonds, but if it were known it is probable that it would be found that there are many who do just as risky things and instead of giving protection to their property actually endanger it. Tucking jewelry away in such a place may not seem so strange as the giving away of the hiding place and treasure without realising it.

But there is not so much difference between acts of that kind and the practice of putting money away under mattresses, back of pictures, under the eaves and other inconspicuous places only to have it stolen or destroyed by fire when safety, as well as interest, is within the reach of all through the savings institutions.

In each instance it is a strange notion that is held of protecting that which is hard to obtain and which represents long hours of labor and sacrifice. There seems to be no anticipation of the possibilities of those things happening that do happen, and yet those who seem unwilling to place their trust in provisions for insuring safety and protection make the greatest howl when their own devices go wrong and losses are sustained.

Such cases continue to be reported regardless of the fact that much publicity has been given to the similar experience of others. There are many individuals who seem to demand personal encounters before they are impressed with the necessity of giving heed to obvious dangers and difficulties into which others have rushed and lost.

FUEL EMERGENCIES

In spite of all the facts that are available, all that has been done in the way of investigation and all that has been recommended to congress for purposes of legislation a committee on coal and gigantic power adds its bit to the efforts which are being and have been made to prevent legislation concerning coal.

Attention is called to the possibility of a strike in the soft coal fields as the result of the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement next year and the necessity of replacing it with another, and because of that situation congress is being told that it ought to do nothing and that it in fact hasn't got enough information before it on which to take action.

That is an old story. It can be expected every time congress is asked to act. It was probably advanced before the last anthracite strike and will be employed before and during other strikes.

The fact is that indications do not point to coal legislation at this session of congress. The inclination seems to be to let matters drift along even though another emergency may be threatened. Perhaps it is not the right time for taking up and dealing with all the problems of the coal industry, if in fact such a thing is contemplated, but the country has had enough experiences where the hands of the government have been tied and remained tied to warrant some action that would overcome this condition and make it possible for the government to do something in behalf of the public when opposing sides stand at loggerheads and a paralyzed industry and public discomfort. If congress cannot deal with that situation, it is time to know why.

THE POLISH SITUATION

Contrary to custom and the constitution of Poland was the action by Pilsudski in overthrowing the government by military force. Contrary to expectations at least was the act of the same man in refusing election as president of that country. It is a case, apparently, where Pilsudski prefers to be the power behind the throne instead of occupying the post of responsibility. It is the forerunner of further developments in that country where Pilsudski may be planning to hew as close as possible to constitutional lines in his endeavor to accomplish certain reforms.

Pilsudski has caused disappointment by his action and no doubt there would have been greater confidence among his followers in having him in the president's seat than having Moscicki there, even though the latter is the marshal's choice and Pilsudski claims their minds work in the same channel. It is the idea of having Pilsudski shifting the responsibility after what he has already done and what he has in mind over onto another that causes the new president to be received with so little interest and enthusiasm. What he can do and what support he is going to get remains to be seen. The desire to give the president increased powers and for the present to have the diet adjourn so that he could get along without parliamentary control for a number of months gives some idea of the tendencies and the manner in which it is proposed to work them out.

Poland may settle down for the time being until it can be determined what is going to be done but whether it faces any better conditions than in the recent past will probably not be long in coming to light.

KEEPING THE ILLUSION

As an excuse for lingering in the china department—that part of the great store which most of all had fascinated her mother and even now seemed to hold that mother's spirit both in its gleaming whiteness and in the exquisite harmony of its color designs—the young woman replied to the floorman's query that she would like to see some service plates.

He motioned her to follow him, leading the way to a group of saleslades who were not busy at the moment. It was the last half-hour of a dull afternoon. The blond came forward with a what-can-I-do-for-you, madam, expression, which changed at once into a howdy-you-do!

"Well, I haven't seen you in three years," she exclaimed, shaking hands warmly, "and I don't remember your name, but I remember your nice husband and your pretty little girl and your nice mamma. I never had a customer that I liked as I did your mamma—haven't seen her in a long time, either. Where's she living now?"

The young woman's heart clung to the illusion of the old days. With this saleslady thinking her mother alive and not knowing the difference, and with herself only a visitor now in Chicago and maybe not that again for many moons, it really couldn't hurt as long as she didn't actually lie.

"My family moved to California and I moved east," she explained truthfully. "I remember you so well—you're thinner, my dear. You used to be in the misses' suits. Mother and I thought nobody could select my suits like you did. We always admired the same one you did. Mother would love to know you had been transferred to the china."

"Since the Christmas rush last season. Sold $3,000 worth all to one person in one day, so they kept me. Now you wanted—?"

"Service plates—the English bone."

"Now here's something your mother would just adore." The saleswoman went over to the shelves and took down a plate artistically etched in gold. "This is $300 a dozen. Do you know that upper shelf fell half-way down the other day and not a piece was broken! That shows their strength, dainty as they look."

The young woman silently fingered the plate, trying with all her memory and imagination to reconstruct her mother shopping, as always, there beside her, drinking in the loveliness with her beautiful brown eyes and never hinting by word or look that she couldn't afford service plates at even $30 a dozen.

"If you don't like that," the saleslady went on, "we have all kinds. Now, here's a beauty. Two seventy-five. The colors in this would go with a yellow breakfast set or a blue luncheon set or a cream Wedgwood dinner set, and there's enough green to go with any floral centerpiece, but I believe your mother would like that first one."

"How about bouillon cups?"

"I haven't much time. It's near closing."

Stories That Recall Others

Much Little Hair

"My," exclaimed the youngster, "how much little hair you have, daddy."

Wrong Department

A clerk who has charge of the garden implement department in the store was approached the other day by a customer, who asked whether he had corn knives for sale.

"Yes, ma'am, just a moment, please," replied the clerk, who returned shortly with a large evil looking blade, which he assured her had a keen dependable edge.

His customer looked somewhat startled. "My goodness," she exclaimed, "how can I trim my corns with that battle ax?"

She was then directed to another counter.

From Small Beginnings

John Opie, Who Liked To Draw Pictures

"Just look what the boy is doing!" exclaimed the stranger. "Wasting his time," answered the farmer. "Here, Jack," the farmer cried to the boy, "throw it away. Be a man. Don't be wasting all your time like that. Look after the cattle." The farmer sprang forward, snatched the paper from the boy's hand and was about to tear it up when the stranger interfered. "That's a lot better than taking care of cattle," he said. "Why, the boy is an artist! A real artist!" The farmer laughed sarcastically. "An artist! Huh! I call him a fool! A lazy, good-for-nothing fool! That's what I call him."

That's what the general opinion was in Cornwall, England, when John Opie was a boy. Down in that rocky toe of England called Cornwall the people are hard-headed, sensible people, looking after their little farms, caring for their sheep and cattle, often going out upon the sea, making good soldiers and good sailors, but not caring greatly for art. Cornwall as you know, is the land of Jack the Giant Killer, and not the land of art. And here was John Opie who preferred to draw pictures! It was too much!

But a few years later the people in Cornwall were saying: "Oh, I used to know John Opie. I watched him draw pictures. I did! I told him, 'John,' says I, 'keep right on! You're goin to be a great artist.' That's what I did." The stranger took John Opie away and put him a school where he could learn how to draw well. He was only an overgrown boy when he began to earn more money by drawing than his people had earned all their lives by keeping sheep and cattle. The aristocrats came to him for pictures: he illustrated great books; he made paintings that hang in great galleries today—and he kept on trying to draw and to paint better and better. He died at 46, in 1807, but he had led a great life. When a boy wishes with all his heart to do something it's a pretty good idea not to laugh at him.

CHILD TRAINING

SHALL WE DESTROY OR BUILD?
Mildred Rappleye

My small niece is about the most active and restless piece of humanity that ever raced around in khaki-knickers. She is adorable and loving, but has been known, on certain occasions, to exhibit a deplorable temper. Punishment in the form of scolding or spanking never subdues her—only seems to make her resentful and naughtier.

Recently she was brought over to our house to spend a few days. One afternoon, having tired of her doll, she began to look for more exciting amusement. She found it—a nasal spray, never used.

I was paying little attention to her at the time, being engrossed in a book, but at length my attention was rudely forced, whether I would or not, for a spray of cold water was squeezed onto my neck. Undoubtedly I have laughed and turned the tables on her, but it annoyed me, and I immediately ordered her to put the spray away, receiving about as much notice as one would expect—none at all.

I waited a few minutes, thinking she would tire if I paid no attention, but she kept it up, spoiling a perfectly good marcel wave and wilting my collar. The result was that I took the spray forcibly away from her and put it quite beyond her reach.

Anger is no word for the storm that followed. I ignored it for a while, went on reading my book, but watched out of the corner of my eye. She had been pounding the floor in her temper, screaming at the top of her voice, but finally took a breathing spell, and after thinking very hard, suddenly acted on an inspiration and darted for the door. It caught. That was my chance. Should I lock it and compel her to stay in? It was decidedly cold outside and fast becoming dark, but I knew that to force her to remain in the house in her angry condition would only mean a continuation of the scene, and judging from previous experiences, we should have a very nervous child on our hands for a few days. I decided quickly.

Taking advantage of her awkwardness at the door to seize her hat and coat, likewise my own, I followed her outside, nearly on her heels. She had started down the street, her fluffy curls flying in the wind, fully determined to run away. I easily caught up with her, but instead of taking hold of her to make her go back as she expected, I ran along beside her, passed her, turned around and called back, "Let's race." She had been prepared to resist me, and undoubtedly would have thrown herself on the damp ground and screamed at the top of her voice if I had insisted on dragging her back to the house, but she wasn't prepared for this development. Here I was rushing on ahead of her and suggesting that we race, something that all children love. She kept on for want of knowing what else to do.

The fresh air cooled her temper, and she used up her superfluous energy running, so was quite docile when I stopped and put on her coat and hat. She was walking along beside me, her hand in mine, rather weary but happy, when we turned in at our door.

ANT DESTROYER
ELDREDGE HARDWARE COMPANY

Neither of us mentioned the affair of that afternoon.

The next time she comes over, I'm going to be observing enough to anticipate her restlessness and discontent, and before she has a chance to look for mischief I'm going to be ready with a suggestion for something that will be real fun. Perhaps it will be a scrap-book, or colored putty for moulding animals, or we may even build a playhouse out of some old boxes, but somehow I'm going to turn that spare energy into constructive channels, for it has to have an outlet, and is forced into mischief-making only when it is not wisely directed.

Non-Scratch Auto Bodies

The discovery of a method for alloying aluminum with other metals, which will produce materials for automobile bodies that do not show scratches and have both color and finish, "built in," is claimed by B. Jirotka, a German electrical engineer. He has demonstrated his discovery to a commission of metallurgists.

He is said to have made alloys of aluminum and more than a dozen other metals, producing materials of many different colors, the color varying with the metal used for the alloy. These alloys have a surface resembling glazed porcelain.

Why Shoulders Ache

Typists and musicians often get pains in their shoulders, which they diagnose as neuritis.

Dr. John H. Carnett, professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania, says the pain is caused by a deposit of lime salts that accumulates between the shoulders and arm bone on account of the constant friction.

Once this deposit is located, declares Dr. Carnett, the curative treatment is found to be extremely simple.

Read Why Hupmobile Six Excels Cars Even Higher in Price

Hupmobile Six superiority is basic. It is conclusive. It does not exclude even cars above our price. Herewith are briefly detailed a few of the features—the easy steering, the rigid crankshaft, the clear-vision bodies, the filtered oil and gasoline, and the like—which contribute to that pre-eminence in performance and economy, and to beauty and safety as well.

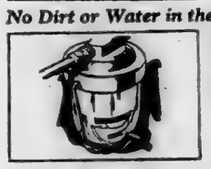
Rigid, No-whip Crankshaft—

Hupmobile Six has a heavy, rigid crankshaft—the kind too costly for common use. Vibration is eliminated in a six by a rigid crankshaft to overcome whipping and bending, and by a damper to counteract the torsional or twisting tendency of a revolving crankshaft.

Special Vibration Damper—

No vibration damper can do more than eliminate the torsional vibration already referred to. And without a heavy, rigid crankshaft such as this engine has, a damper itself means little. The Hupmobile Six damper is a special and improved design.

No Dirt or Water in the Gasoline—



Every drop of gasoline is filtered clear of all dirt, sediment and water. The gasoline going into the carburetor of this car is clean. Another highly valuable safeguard.

Clean Oil From the Oil Filter—

The Hupmobile Six disposes of dirty engine oil by a highly efficient oil filter. The oil automatically passes through the filter under pressure, and is fed to bearings and moving parts wholly freed from dirt, bits of carbon and other contamination which do actual damage.

Remarkably Easy Steering—

Few cars steer as easily as this. It seems as though you only wish to turn and the turn is made. Hupmobile was first to use steering gear especially designed for easy control with balloon tires. The ball bearing principle of the mechanism keeps steering as easy when the weather is cold as when it is warm.

Newest Upholstery in Latest Mode—

Closed car upholstery is a new shade of blue-gray, best described as platinum, in a deep pile fabric. Cushions are soft and deep, built over springs which contribute greatly to comfort.

Special Windshield Clear-Vision, Ventilating—

The one-piece, clear-vision windshield ventilates without tilting in or out. It raises vertically by a hand lifter, circulating a full-width sweep of air down into the driving compartment, and straight back into the car when desired, as shown by the arrows.

Safety in the Clear-Vision Bodies—

Hupmobile bodies have narrow pillars for clear vision. At the pillars, the internal framing is of steel. Elsewhere the framing is of wood. This composite construction affords all advantages of both steel and wood and eliminates the disadvantages of all-steel and all-wood.

Sedan, for five, four-door, $1385; Coupe, for two, with rumble seat, $1385; Touring, for five, $1325. 30 x 5.25 balloon tires, 4-wheel brakes. All prices f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax.

Don't Let High Blood Pressure Shorten Your Life

How to Stop it—Read This.

It may surprise you to know high blood pressure is so serious that insurance companies refuse to issue policies to those who have it. All because it shortens life.

High blood pressure gives little warning and until certain symptoms take hold, you do not know it. They are head pains, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness.

Only a purely vegetable medicine like Norma, that drives out the waste matter which clogs the system and forces the heart to do extra work can reduce high blood pressure. Often one bottle of Norma will bring reduction enough to stop the symptoms which distress and worry you.

Norma is a physician's prescription. It worked so wonderfully in his personal practice that it has now been placed in drug stores so that people everywhere can obtain it. Check the uncertainty of high blood pressure by reducing it with Norma. Lee & Osgood Drug Store.

POLICE PICKED UP MAN WANTED FOR BURGLARY

A man who was found wandering around the Central Vermont depot in this city about midnight last Friday and was picked up as a suspicious character by Officer Frank Gwizdowski turned out to be the fellow who was wanted for the alleged theft of a soldier's bonus bond for $1,452 from Arthur Bruce of Flanders.

When brought to police headquarters he gave his name as Cedric Kennett, 21, of East Lyme. He had with him some parts of a telephone. Inquiry by Capt. Thomas Murphy brought out the fact that Kennett was wanted in East Lyme by Constable Charles Tubbs for an alleged bond theft.

Kennett was presented last Saturday night before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis in Niantic and was bound over to the superior court on a burglary charge, in default of $500 bonds he is now in the New London jail.

Kennett was alleged to have broken into the Bruce home one week ago last Friday, making away with the bond. It is understood he admitted to the officers that he stole the telephone parts from a cottage at Rogers Lake, which he had broken into. He told the officers that he broke the telephone to pieces and took the parts he wanted for the purpose of building himself a radio.

ONLY $486.25 MORE NEEDED N FOR SALVATION ARMY FUND

Additional voluntary contributions to the Salvation Army maintenance fund which were received Wednesday amounted to $103.75 and sent the total to $4,013.75, leaving but $486.25 needed to complete the quota of $4,500 for the fund.

In order not to put too much strain upon the Norwich citizens, who kindly volunteered to help raise this fund only four days were allotted to the campaign. Of course, many contributors could not be reached in such short time. This accounts for belated contributions coming in to the Salvation Army headquarters. E. J. McCabe, the secretary of the campaign, is very grateful for these voluntary contributions and is in hopes that a sufficient number of donations will come in before the week ends, to complete the quota. John R. Tarrant of the Bankers Trust company, the treasurer of the campaign will be very grateful for any contributions that may be addressed to him, in case of the Bankers Trust Co., Norwich, Conn.

Th Salvation Army gratefully acknowledges the receipt of belated contributions from the following citizens:

THAMES VALLEY COMMITTEE IS WORKING OUT PUBLICITY PLAN

A meeting of the executive board of the Thames Valley Citizens committee held Wednesday evening at the Mohican hotel, New London, proved to be highly interesting and much progress was made towards mapping out a programme of early activities along lines making for progress. One of the important topics of discussion was that of publicity for this splendid section of eastern Connecticut.

Chairman R. W. Perkins outlined a plan that met with approval of the committee. After much discussion the plan briefly called for the compilation of a brochure containing maps showing the geographical location of the Thames River valley in comparison with the largest centers of population in New England, its rail and water advantages, prospective industrial sites, sea side and hill side, healthful living conditions, etc., touching upon the historical importance and summarizing some of the reasons why many of our leading industries elected the Thames valley for their plant locations. Some 25,000 of these neatly gotten up folders will be in readiness for distribution at the following conventions to be held at Eastern Point and New London:

Dedication of Odd Fellows home, June 12th.

Elks convention, at New London, June 13th.

New England Insurance Agents convention at Eastern Point, June 14, 15 and 16.

State Bankers' convention, Hotel Griswold, June 18 and 19th.

Connecticut Chamber of Commerce convention, Hotel Griswold, June 22 and 23.

It is expected that the committee will have representations on the programme at the latter convention. Special forms of newspaper publicity for the Thames valley will be worked out for eastern Connecticut newspapers on the day of the Yale-Harvard boat race, June 25th.

Later the brochures will be used at all other conventions planned for this summer at New London. The matter of financing publicity as outlined for the Thames valley was discussed and a plan determined upon which it is felt will provide adequate means to carry on the work of the committee thus far outlined.

A Thames valley joint field day of all organizations such as chambers of commerce, Rotary and Lions clubs, U. C. T., Duwell Athletic club and others was suggested terminating with a barbeque at some suitable point along the Thames river. This was thought to be a popular movement towards uniting all civic interests in the Thames valley in a monster celebration in anticipation of future progress and development of New London county.

Those present at the meeting were: Robert W. Perkins, chairman, Norwich; Herbert R. Branche, secretary, Norwich; Mayor William C. Fox of New London; Hon. E. E. Rogers, New London; Lucius E. Whiton of New London.

YANTIC FIREMEN WORK WITH BUCKET BRIGADE

Fire of undetermined origin Wednesday evening completely destroyed a frame barn located on Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, and owned by Arthur Brailsford of Vergason avenue, besides damaging to some extent another barn and house situated near the destroyed barn. The damage was placed at $1,000, covered by insurance to the amount of $500.

The fire was discovered at 5:15 o'clock and word was sent to the Yantic fire company, which responded, but was unable to save the barn for the blaze had gained great proportions. Their attention was centered upon saving the house and barn nearby, which had been ignited by flying sparks and with the help of a bucket brigade the buildings were saved. The only damage to these buildings was scorched paint and charred shingles.

Several tanks of chemical were used in addition to a great quantity of water by the bucket brigade, which helped immensely in subduing the blaze. The firemen returned to the station at 7:20, after a two hour fight with the flames.

LIQUOR AT THE ELMS ALL FROM ONE BARREL

"You have to sell it to make a living, you know," said Elizabeth Flabish of Clinton to United States District Judge Edwin S. Thomas in Hartford, Wednesday, after she had pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor at the Elms house in Clinton, and to maintaining a place where liquor is reputed to be sold. Judge Thomas did not know it, however, and imposed a fine of $200 on the first count and $150 on the second count, which made it harder than ever to earn a living in the hotel business in Clinton.

Assistant United States Attorney John A. Danaher told the court "it is difficult to know what to do with a woman in any case," and said the defendant had sold liquor at the Elms house even after she had been arrested and was awaiting trial. He said when the federal agents visited the place they found liquors of various kinds, an assortment of labels and burnt corks, so that it was possible for a customer to order any sort of liquor and have his order filled, or supposedly filled. He said she charged $3 a pint for the liquor, or 50 cents for a rye high ball.

Mrs. Flabish had a touching story to tell the court, but it did not touch as had been anticipated. She related that she took over the hotel to make a living for herself and family, and "had to sell it to make a living, you know." She said she bought the stuff from a Jewish or Polish man, "and it was all the same kind of stuff, you know," as he took it all out of one barrel. She said she did not know how to make it herself and she had a high rent to pay as well as other bills. Judge Thomas informed her she would have to choose some other method than one which involved the violation of law.

THOMA AUTOMOBILE SUITS BEFORE JUDGE SIMPSON

The two suits of Egidius Thoma and his daughter, Hilda, residing at 19 Lorenzo street, against David Feister, of 58 Fairmount street were on trial Wednesday afternoon in the superior court in this city before Judge Earnest C. Simpson, who took the papers and reserved decision after hearing the evidence.

Miss Thoma sues for $15,000 damages for injuries she received when struck by a motor truck owned and driven by Feister. Her father sues for $1,000 for loss of his daughter's wages, of about $18 a week, while she was unable to work after the accident which took place on the afternoon of April 8, 1925 on Boswell avenue near the corner of Elijah street when Miss Thoma had alighted from a trolley car and was proceeding towards the sidewalk.

It is understood that the insurance company carrying the Feister risk admits liability and the question for the judge to give decision on is as to the amount of damages to be awarded.

After the two plaintiffs had testified there was testimony from Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, Dr. J. W. Callahan, and Reinhold Thoma.

Brown and James are the attorneys for the plaintiff and Judge Arthur F. Libby for the defendant. Judge Libby gave Miss Thoma such a severe cross examination that she burst into tears at one point. He rested his case without putting in any testimony.

LIVES ON FARM IN OKLAHOMA

Happy Woman Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing.

They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 396, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

ACADEMY MEETS STONINGTON TODAY IN LEAGUE GAME AT THE CAMPUS

Yerrington, 3b	lf, H. Cragan
Mish, rf	c, R. Cella
Goldblatt, c	ss, F. Roever
Greene, lf	2b, Sklarew

At the Academy Campus this afternoon the Academy team will play Stonington in the second league game between these two clubs. In the last meeting the Academy won an easy victory from the Stonington team 13 to 2 with the help of one big inning in which they scored 13 runs. After being beaten by Chapman Tech last Saturday the Academy is not at all certain of a walk-away and will have to go to make it two straight from the Stonington boys.

For today's game Coach Brigham will send Lloyd Jarvis to the mound in an effort to turn the tide of defeat that has been swinging against the Academy. There has been a radical shift in the outfield for today's game. Hymie Sadinsky who has been playing left field has been shifted to centerfield and Johnny Greene takes Sadinsky's place in the left garden. Eddie Brewer the regular right-fielder has been benched and Mish will take the right field position.

For two days the squad has been put through their paces at a fast rate and in practice look peppy and play good ball but it remains to be seen if they can keep this up under fire. It is expected that Roever, the big left hander, who held the Academy to four hits for seven innings in the first game at Stonington will pitch today. Today's game is expected to be a battle of lefthanders and Coach Brigham is banking on Jarvis to give the Academy its chance to win the league title.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock and the Academy will go into the game with the determination to win as it is one of the most important contests of he league season.

AMERICAN TOOK BIG LEAD IN DEFENSE OF WALKER CUP

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 2—(AP)—Three American victories out of four foursomes played today over the links of the Royal and Ancient Golf club give promise that the Walker cup, emblem of international team supremacy in amateur golf will remain in American possession until another series of the competition, assumably in the United States two years hence.

All the American pairs, with the exception of one, playing against Great Britain's best today, were victorious in the 36 hole contests, and the tourney will include tomorrow with eight individual matches. To retain the cup the United States, which has already won the trophy three times, needs at the most to win half the matches. On the other hand, the British players to capture the trophy must win at leas five maches and halve another.

Jess Sweetser, recently crowned British amateur champion, and George Von Elm, had to their credit the most decisive victory of the day, defeating the British team Robert Harris and Major C. O. Beslet, 3 up and 7 to go.

Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn, the Atlanta pair, took a commanding lead of six holes over the former British amateur champion, Tyrill Tolley and Arthur Jamieson in the morning round, but in the afternoon they fell back a little, and it was a hard fought contest, which ended, 4 and 3 in favor of the Americans.

Robert Gardner, the American captain, and Roland MacKenzie battled it out with E. F. Storey and W. G. Brownlow, winning by one up. But Francis Ouimet and Jesse P. Guilford were not so fortunate as their teammates, meeting defeat at the hands of Roger Wethered and Sir Ernest Holderness, two of Great Britain's greatest stars, by 4 up and 3 to play.

The pairings in the singles tomorrow are as follows:

Jones vs. Tolley; Sweetser vs. Holderness; Ouimet vs. Wethered; Von Elm vs. Heslet; Guilford vs. Harris; Gunn vs. Brownlow; MacKenzie vs. Storey; Gardner vs. Jamieson.

RIVERVIEW CLUB FACES TWO HARD PROPOSISIONS THIS WEEK

Manager Zemke will have his work cutout for him this week end when he sends his team against two tough teams. On Saturday the New Britain Falcons who took a lose decision from the Riverview team earlier in the season, will be the Riverview opponents. In this game Gibbons will pitch. On Sunday the Riverview club goes to Bristol to engage the New Departure team. West will pitch at Bristol. Manager Zemke is confident of turning back the Falcons on the home lot Saturday but the Sunday game is uncertain as New Departure is one of the best semi-pro clubs in the state and hold decisions over Riverview in past meetings.

Manager Zemke has strengthened his club for these games having secured the services of Rafus of the Sub Base for the keystone sack berth. Rafus comes with an excellent record as a second baseman on various service teams.

YANKEES TAKE TWO GAMES FROM SENATORS

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Concentrating their strong attack in several big innings the New York Yankees twice defeated Washington here today by scores of 9 to 5 and 5 to 4.

Bengough starting his first game of the year for the Yanks behind the bat, won the second contest for the Yankees when he drove in three runs with a double off Johnson in the fourth inning.

Hoyt was poorly supported, and was relieved by Braxton in the ninth after Ruether and S. Harris opened with singles. Braxton repeated the fine rescue work of Pennock in the first game, retiring the side without a run despite the fact that Stewart and S. Harris worked a double steal.

A crowd of over 40,000 saw the two games, bringing the attendance for the last four playing days at Yankee staidum to approximately 180,000, a record outside of world's series.

The Yankees announced the signing of George Davis, star outfielder of the New York University team. Scores:

The Dawn of a Better Cigarette

A better cigarette my hearties!

All hands ashore, men! Man the gig... and pull a lively oar for the nearest cigarette-counter.

The booty is at hand. The long-sought treasure of a better cigarette.

A cooler cigarette! As cool as the sweetest breeze that ever kissed the Mediterranean.

A smoother cigarette! As smooth as the gentlest calm in the lee of a South Sea Isle.

A more fragrant cigarette. As pleasing as the prettiest lass that ever brightened a wharf to greet returning sailorman.

A better cigarette, my worthies!... such as every mate and man has been hankering for.

It is a COOLER cigarette. The heavier and coarser leaf has been discarded for hand selected lighter and finer leaf—requiring less draught and bringing less heat to the lips.

It is a SMOOTHER and MILDER cigarette. A new day method takes out all harshness in the tobacco, tempering the balance to gentle perfection.

It is a more FRAGRANT and PLEASINGLY GRATIFYING cigarette. Only the pick of the choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos is used in OLD GOLD, chosen and blended by old masters to bring out the utmost in aromatic smoking quality.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Jimmy Skunk Sets Johnny Chuck to Wondering

'Tis sometimes quite consoling,
To find a friend who's had
This very same experience
That seems to you so bad.
—Jimmy Skunk.

The word had gone all about that Johnny Chuck was living by himself in a hole under the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Pasture and was in such a bad temper and so sulky that he wasn't pleasant to be near. So pretty soon none of the little people came near him. They left him to himself. He pretended that he didn't care. He actually tried to make himself believe that he didn't care. But really he did care. Sulky folk soon become very, very tired of themselves, and Johnny was getting tired of himself. But, of course, you can't go off and leave yourself. It isn't done. But that is only because it can't be done.

Johnny was sitting on his new doorstep just a little before shadow time when who should come along but Jimmy Skunk. "Hello, Johnny Chuck," exclaimed Jimmy. "They tell me you are feeling out of sorts. I can believe it just to look at you. Why not try a grin just for old times sake?" Jimmy grinned himself when he said this.

But Johnny didn't grin back. No, sir, he didn't grin back. No, sir, he didn't grin back. He looked more sulky than ever, if that were possible. "I don't see anything to grin for," he grumbled.

Jimmy Skunk sat down. "Tell me all about it, Johnny," said he. "What are you so grumpy about? I know, but I want to hear you tell me."

"I don't believe you know and I'm not going to tell you," retorted Johnny Chuck crossly.

"All right" replied Jimmy. "I don't care. You see, I've been all through and I know all about it and I even know the reason for it."

At this Johnny Chuck pricked up his little black ears and took notice. "What do you mean?" he demanded.

"Oh, I mean that once a year I have to go off and live by myself, just as you are doing now. Once a year Mrs. Jimmy won't have me around. Until I understood it it used to upset me completely. But it is all right. Just you take it from me that it is all right. It will all come out right in the end."

"But I don't understand it at all," protested Johnny. "I hadn't even quarreled with Polly at the time Farmer Brown's Boy caught me and took me away; and then when I came back she actually seemed upset to see me. She made it perfectly plain that she didn't want me around. She even said so, and she said it as if she meant it."

"Of course, she meant it," replied Jimmy. "Of course she meant it. Now you take my advice and have a good time while you can. Yes, sir, you have a good time while there isn't anybody to ask you where you're going and what you're doing. You're lucky, only you don't know it. Here you are able to do just what you please, when you please and how you please and you don't know enough to make the most of it. Instead of sulking you ought to be kicking up your heels and hugging

"Tell me all about it, Johnny," said he yourself. I know. Yes, sir, I know. Nowadays whenever I get a chance like that I make the most of it. I can come home any time of day or night and no questions asked."

"But I don't understand it yet," protested Johnny.

Jimmy went over and whispered to Johnny. Such a funny look passed over Johnny's face. "Oh," he exclaimed, "is that it?"

"That's it," declared Jimmy. "Now take my advice, and make the most of a good thing while you've got it."

WISTERIA VINES CLIMB TO TOP OF TALL PINE TREE

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 2—One of the handsomest wisteria vines anywhere in this vicinity is to be seen at the home of Mrs. G. A. Haskell. The rain has not affected its beauty at all. It covers three sides of the house, running to the gable on one side. A pine tree probably 40 feet high stands in front of the house, and the vine has climbed to the top, and is blossoming among the topmost branches. The vine was planted when the house was built, 53 years ago. The two pine trees were set out at the same time and were so insignificant in size that one man called them "huckleberry brush."

MANY NEW LONDON STORE CELLARS A FIRE MENACE IN UNTIDY LITTER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—It is understood that complaint will be made to the fire marshal that the cellars of many stores and business places in this city are so filled with boxes and litter that, in the event of a fire, they could not be entered by firemen. That condition has been known to exist in the past, and the absence of inspection during a year or more has brought about the same condition now, some of the firemen allege. A change in this respect would be for the safety of property and would assist the firemen in the event that their services were demanded.

The state police at Groton, Centerbrook, and the police of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven, Hartford and Middletown have been requested to maintain a lookout for the stolen car. The automobile, a 1926 Buick sedan, was driven to a point midway of Green and Bank streets, on Golden shortly after 5 o'clock and there Goss parked it in front of property owned by his mother. He left the machine without locking the door or locking the transmission, making it an easy matter for the thief to steal the automobile, as the key was left in the transmission lock. Dimmock imposed a fine of $100 and costs, but remitted $50 of the fine, also imposed a sentence of 30 days in jail. Dickey and a companion were in New London May 15 and a bet was made relative to the automobile being driven from this city to Niantic in five minutes. It was while the drive was being taken that Rickey found himself under arrest for when the car reached Jordan village it crashed against a telephone pole. Dickey was thrown through the windshield and sustained lacerations that have kept him in the hospital since. So with his discharge from the hospital after being under treatment about three weeks he will now have to stay in jail at least four weeks and if he does not pay the costs of the case he will be incarcerated six weeks.

What is declared will be the final and most determined of efforts to raise the sunken submarine S-51 from her position at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean off Block Island, will be made either Friday or Saturday, according to navy officials. If the submarine is floated it is believed that the score or more bodies that went down with the submarine will be found in the various compartments of the boat. The work of placing the final two of the total of six pontoons beneath the submarine will have been completed some time Thursday, it is believed and it will be then that the air will be released from the submarine and six powerful tugs will lend a combined pull that, it is hoped, will bring the submarine to the water's surface. If the raising of the S-51 is accomplished she will be towed to Brooklyn navy yard, where the bodies will be removed and forwarded to the homes of relatives. The S-51 sunk on the night of Sept. 25 last, when rammed by the Savannah liner City of Rome.

BREAKING POLE DELAYS TROLLEY TRAFFIC 4 HOURS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—Trolley traffic on the main line, more particularly on the New London-Norwich line of the Connecticut company, was seriously interrupted for three hours this evening, because of the breaking of a pole of the Southern New England Telephone company on Main street, near the corner of Mill street. Broken portion of the pole, which snapped in two places, dropped across the highway, while the upper part of the pole, together with cross-arms, and feed wires carrying a considerable voltage, while suspended in the air, dropped several feet, but did not reach the ground.

The pole had undoubtedly become weakened by too great a strain on it, for it suddenly snapped off close to the ground and the heavy timber becoming parted, it again snapped off with about four feet of the cross arms. The massive section crashed to the pavement but no automobiles were passing Mill street at the time. The pole rested across the trolley tracks, but within a short time after the crash a repair gang from the telephone company and another of the trolley company arrived and a combined effort followed to effect repairs that would permit the resumption of trolley traffic. This was accomplished at 8:45 o'clock. During the progress of repairs, Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey was kept on duty there to guide vehicular traffic. The car arriving in New London from Norwich at 6:45 o'clock and each car thereafter until 8:45 o'clock was held up at the parade a half hour and until the scheduled arrival of another car. The two cars then transferred passengers at either side of the trouble and kept traffic open, but instead of a half hourly schedule, it was by an hourly schedule. Traffic on the main line, between State street was maintained through State, Broad and Williams street to Main street, but at that point the car was operated over the same route to the State street terminal as it was impossible to operate cars through Main street.

CALDERADOS CAUGHT WITH AUTO LOAD OF ALCOHOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3.—Herman and Joseph Calderado of 208 Mansfield avenue, this city, were placed under arrest about 10 o'clock tonight when Motorcycle Officer Arthur Hurley found about 18 gallons of alcohol in an automobile which they were driving on Ash street. Last Friday evening the Calderado home was raided by police officers and a quantity of alcohol with a bottle of Scotch liquor were seized. Joseph Calderado was charged with keeping with intent to sell, but due to circumstances the case was postponed for two weeks. Officer Hurley became suspicious when he saw the two young men driving the car and ordered them to halt. The alcohol was contained in cans covered with bags. The men said that the liquor was some that had been overlooked in the raid at the house and that they were on their way toward North Windham with the intentions of dumping the stuff out before it caused them further trouble. Both will be charged with transporting liquer in police court this Thursday morning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

46 STAR CARS AND DURANTS SOLD HERE

According to William H. Bailey, Norwich manager of the Star and Durant agency on Bath street, whose organization is holding a four day automobile sale, wherein new cars are being sold at prices one would expect to pay for an average used car, 46 Stars and Durants have been sold to date.

"There is nothing phenomenal about this unusual sale," states Mr. Bailey. "The fact that we have sold so many cars is vivid proof that we are offering exactly that which the public accepts as the gold standards of motor car values. Steady streams of buyers have been coming to our salesrooms to purchase their favorite model of the many we are showing. The selling of these cars in practically three days naturally establishes a sales record in automotive selling in these parts but I have every reason to believe that when this sale comes to an end we will have pushed the grand total up to astonishing figures.

"With all sales of this kind, certain popular models are becoming scarce. We find that two of ours, owing to their popularity, are more scarce than the others. Those who are interested in these makes must come to the sale immediately or they will be disappointed. Prices on some of the models will be advanced on or before the end of the sale."

Palace Theatre

Betty Bronson, twice honored by J. M. Barrie, has more than justified that noted author's faith in her.

It was Barrie, a year ago, who picked Betty, then an absolute unknown, to play the title role in Paramount's screen version of his immortal fantasy, "Peter Pan." And it was Barrie again, a few months back, who unhesitatingly selected the now world-famous Betty for the leading part in the picturization of his notable stage success, "A Kiss for Cinderella."

As the heroine of "Peter Pan," Betty scored a tremendous hit, but those who have had an advance peek at "A Kiss for Cinderella," which Herbert Brenon recently completed, claim that she does the finest work of her meteoric career as the wistfully appealing Cinderella. Local picture-goers will be able to judge for themselves, as the picture is scheduled to play a three days' run at the Palace, beginning Thursday.

Perhaps never before in the history of the screen has a girl of seventeen had honors heaped upon her as has Betty Bronson. In a little more than one short year she has risen from obscurity to world-wide prominence. Yet success has made no change in her. Many girls of 17 would have had their heads turned by this sudden rush of popularity and fame, but not Betty. She accepted it all gratefully, a little nervous and surprised to find herself in the limelight, but not the least little bit puffed up about it.

It is this natural, inherent modesty coupled with a charming personality that has won for Betty a host of friends both in and out of the studio.

Playing with Miss Bronson are two other favorites, Tom Moore as an English Bobby and Ester Ralston.

A New Adding Machine

A portable adding machine for use in the home, as well as in the store or office, is the latest innovation in figuring equipment to be announced by the Burroughs Adding Machine company.

"Pencil figuring is fast going out of date," said President Standish Backus in his announcement. "It's a sort of mental drudgery that most people dislike, and sidestep whenever possible.

"In the modern bank or business office, you never see anyone adding up columns of figures by hand. They always go to the machine. Pencil figuring is too slow, and too inaccurate.

The Burroughs Portable is a sturdy, good-looking machine, with a standard keyboard. It contains eight rows of keys and has a total adding capacity of $999,999.99, which should prove quite sufficient for most uses.

It is also equipped with all the regular features of the bigger adding machines such as total and sub-total keys, error key, repeat key, non-add key, and it is being sold and, of course, serviced by the company's regular agencies.

A good many of the new portable machines are already in use. The first machines were shipped out to the company's agencies last September.

"Most of our advance orders," said President Backus, "have come from small stores, business and professional offices and private homes. Our sales records show that to date we have sold 22,326 portable machines."

BUTTERMILK CREAM BEST FOR WRINKLES AND ENLARGED PORES

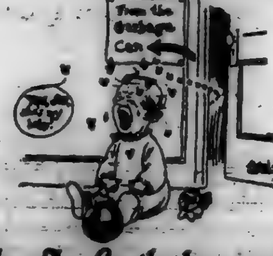
Howard's Buttermilk Cream Must Give Results in One Week. Guaranteed by Lee & Osgood Co. and All Good Drug and Department Stores

Big Demand for New Dressing Table Package Amazes Druggists

The old-time application of buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and reduce enlarged pores was grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first-class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's Buttermilk Cream."

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it's just common ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream.



To get the best effect, be sure to follow the simple directions. Druggists everywhere guarantee a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money.

IMPORTANT—Even the finest face creams fail if the soap you use is harsh. Howard's Buttermilk Cream Soap keeps skin smooth, soft and pliable.

A PERFECT MARSHMALLOW CREME

POETRY

You will meet this June from distance hills
Of academic wisdom, from quiet walks
Beneath the campus trees, from starlit talks
Of youth and life and God. Your future calls
Your into the swirl of cities and men!
You will not come this way again.

You touch my hand and speak sweet awkward words
Of thanks and parting. You will remember me
As long as singing birds and stars shall be—
And you—
You will forget.

I watch you go—
I who have trembled for you, hoped, rejoiced,
And stretched a grateful finger forth to guide you.

Your soul is a clean, white book whose pages glow
Clearer and gold and blue—I shall not know
The ending of the story therein voiced.
Your soul is a fragile moth with pale gold wings,
Unbroken from its crysalis; it clings
Hesitant upon youth's stem; I shall not see
The beauty of your flight, radiant and free.
Your soul is a delicate plant I have watched unfolding
Green leaf by clear green leaf;
But you will flower far, far, by beholding.
So frail remembrance of so rare so brief.
Your soul is a small brown bird whose heedless flying
I follow anxiously; I cannot shield
You from rough winds and storms. You flutter on.
A gleam of sunlight round you prophesying
Your soaring strength. Across the ripening field
You drift, and lift above the wood—on —on—until
You flash beyond the hill—
And you are gone.
—By Irene H. Wilson in Scribners.

More Benefice

Give me to die unwitting of the day,
And stricken in Life's brave heat, with senses clear;
Not swathed and couched until the lines appear
Of Death's wan mask upon this withering clay.
But as that old man eloquent made way
From Earth, a nation's concleve hushed anear;
Or as the chief whose fates, that he may hear
The victory, one glorious moment stay.
Or, if not thus, then with no cry in vain,
No ministrant beside to ward and weep,
Hand upon helm I would my quittance gain
In some wild turmoil of the waters deep,
And sink content into a dreamless sleep
(Spared grave and shroud) below the ancient main.
—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

A "death-noise" instead of a "death-ray" was the phenomenon discussed recently before the National Academy of Science, by Professor R. A. Wood and Alfred L. Loomis, of the Johns Hopkins university. The "death-noise" would have been inaudible to human ears, but it consisted of sound waves just the same, and it killed small fishes and other aquatic animals in vessels of water, in less than a minute. The two researchers generated exceedingly high-frequency sound waves by means of electrical apparatus. The waves were produced at a rate of from 100,000 to 400,000 to the second. The upper limit of audibility to human ears is between 20,000 to 30,000. If a beam of these sound waves is directed toward the surface of the water, Professor Wood said, the surface is hiccupped up in a mound. The vibrations heat the water a rise of nearly 10 degrees Fahrenheit in one minute has been recorded.

MARKET CLOSED STRONG

NEW YORK June 2—(AP)—A sharp upturn in prices took place towards the close of today's market after an early period of irregularity. Shorts, particularly in the motor group, scrambled to cover when strong buying support appeared in several sections of the list and it became apparent that the floating supply of many stocks was relatively small. Trading picked up measurably in volume the day's sales aggregating 1,547,300 shares, as compared with 894,200 in yesterday's dull and declining market.

The day's news was largely conservative in character. Call money rates eased as funds withdrawn for June 1 payments began to flow back here from the interior. The weekly steel trade reviews hinted at a further reduction in steel mill schedules in June but on the basis of increased business in the latter part of May, statisticians made a substantial downward revision of the earlier estimates of the reduction in the May unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation, which is now expected to be around 300,000 tons. The declaration of an extra on Associated Oil was accompanied by optimistic statements on the business of other oil companies. Particularly by some of the smaller units.

General Motors common led the late advance by climbing nearly five points to 129, largely at the expense of an overcrowded short interest. Wall street heard unconfirmed reports that the directors would declare another extra dividend of $4 in the next quarter. J. P. Morgan and company announced the private sale of a block of $9,000,000 General Motors preferred stock at 115 1-2, the closing market price of 119 representing a net decline of half on the day.

Sharp advances also took place in other motors.

Oils were under quiet accumulation. Lago, one of the most active issues, touched 23 1-2, the highest price since it was listed on the exchange, and Amerada Corporation crossed 29 to a new high level for the year. U. S. Steel common crossed 126 for a net gain of more than one point, after having sold down to 122 1-2, and Bethlehem advanced nearly a point to 40 3-8, but the turnover in each case was relatively small.

A drop of over three points in Atchison, presumably in further reflection of the statement of President Storey that no increase in dividend was likely for some time to come, was the only development of consequence in the railroad group, most of the other rails moved irregularly higher.

Reactionary tendencies again predominated in the commodity market. Active wheat futures declined a cent or more a bushel on further selling inspired by reports of favorable weather.

Cotton moved within a extremely narrow range. Raw sugar declined 1-16 of a cent a point, but futures were slightly firmer. Coffee prices ranged 5 to 15 cents.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent, and then dropped to 4, closing at that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were mixed, but the undertone was steady. Demand sterling ruled slightly lower just under $4.86 and French francs eased to around 3.96 cents. Belgian francs rallied over six cents to around 3.32 cents and Italian lire were slightly firmer at 3.54 cents.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Stock prices displayed a stronger undertone in today's curb market, but trading was only moderate in volume. Oils were again the most active feature with speculative activity centering largely in the South American shares, Carib Syndicate standing out with a gain of more than one point on total sales of over 20,000 shares. Most of the Standard Oil shares improved fractionally.

Brokers reported a tendency on the part of the public to await further developments in recently discovered oil fields, and their effect on crude production, the latest report of the American Petroleum Institute showing an increase of over 23,000 barrels in the daily average of gross output. Gasoline consumption, however, continues at record breaking levels. The Associated Oil company announced an extra dividen dof 40 cents and the White Eagle and Simms companies published optimistic statements on current business.

Industrials displayed some irregularity. General Baking advanced a point to 52 1-2 on fairly heavy trading while Continental Baking A broke 4 1-3 points to 70 on total sales of less than 1,000 shares. Motors failed to participate extensively in the advance in those issues on the "big board" although Stutz closed more than a point higher. Dresden Bank (American shares) advanced 2 points to a new high at 104.

Substantial gains on relatively small turnovers, also were recorded by Central Steel, Allied Packers prior preferred, American Seating, Lehigh Coal and Navigation, Pillsbury Flour, Tubize Silk B, and Victor Talking Machine.

Another advance of over [illegible] points in United Gas Improvement was the only feature in the public utility list.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Buying interest in today's bond market centered almost exclusively in foreign obligations, which responded to the better outlook for European affairs and hints of special developments at relaxation of money rates, domestic securities held their ground well, but trading in this division was colorless.

Heavy buying of Mexican obligations, which carried most of the government's assented issues above their previous high records for the year, was associated with reports that the distribution of interest-payments under the revised debt plan would be resumed on July 1.

Pending the house vote on ratification of the French debt settlement, the bonds of this country fluctuated nervously. French 8s sold within a fraction of the year's top price but later fell back, while some of the municipal and railroad issues scored substantial gains on the day. In connection with rumors that important German financing was in prospect, attention was focused on the strength of outstanding German issues. The government's 7s sold around their record high level and new peak prices were established by the agricultural bank, General Electric and Rhinelbe Steel issues.

Although it was announced that the Canadian finance minister was seeking authorization for a $150,000,000 loan, American bankers who have handled financing for the dominion government expect no bond offerings before next fall, at the earliest.

Price changes of corporation liens for the most part were insignificant. Atchison general and convertible 4s held firm in the face of a reaction in the road's common stock.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 3—(AP)—Sustained selling apparently from Winnipeg and the east today brought about a setback in wheat values despite an otherwise strong upward trend. Rains in Kansas and relative weakness of the Liverpool wheat market had considerable bearish effect. Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-4c to 1 5-8c net lower with corn 1-4c to 1-2c up, oats virtually unchanged and provisions varying from five cents decline to a rise of 15c.

Downturns in wheat values came chiefly in the late dealings and were accompanied by assertions that Argentina is shipping more wheat to Europe than was expected and that the Canadian visible supply has been slow to diminish. Crop deterioration officially reported from Kansas and Nebraska tended to lift the market at times.

A better milling demand for wheat was in evidence today and suggestions were numerous that domestic stocks will be sharply curtailed this month with receipts falling off to almost nothing.

Better demand for future deliveries of corn was apparent. Buying appeared to be based a good deal on the lateness of planting as likely to mean reduced production. Oats lacked feature.

Provisions were firm owing to the smallness of the increase of warehouse stocks here in May.

SHOULD WORK FOR HIGH PRODUCTION

When the United States department of agriculture announced some time ago that farmers' "intentions to plant" indicated only a 4.3 per cent increase in acreage of Irish potatoes over that of 1925 a great many people who had been selling (or buying) tubers for $3 to $4 a bushel were greatly surprised. In fact, some observers had expected as high as 15 or 20 per cent increase in the 1926 acreage as a result of the unprecedented high prices of potatoes during the past season. But when it came time to make plans for this year's crop the growers were confronted with the practical problem of increasing their acreage with extremely high-priced seed. As one grower put it, "I don't know whether to get along with the same acreage this year or sell the $200 worth of potatoes I would have to plant if I put out an extra five acres."

In this locality it is estimated that the 1926 acreage of potatoes will be 5 to 10 per cent greater than that of last year. According to the report of the department of agriculture it is the intention of farmers in the North Atlantic states to plant slightly fewer acres this year than were planted last year; for the North Central states, about 1 per cent more than last year.

With a prospective acreage somewhat below the five-year average and the practical assurance of a total crop somewhat below normal requirements (barring the possibility of a record acre yield) the potato grower should find plenty of encouragement to "make every acre of spuds produce to the limit" this year.

Seed treatment is probably the first, and a very important step in getting ready for a high-acre yield. The best method of treatment consists in soaking seed for one and one half hours in a solution of corrosive sublimate of two ounces bichlorid or mercury to 15 gallons of water, this to be done before tubers are sprouted or cut. Healthy, viable seed is the first consideration with potatoes as with any other crop. It will pay well to give the seed bed a little extra attention this year. Each extra hour's time with narrow, disc or roller may add two bushels or more to the yield when digging time comes.

Nothing that can still be done will go farther to insure a high yield of good quality potatoes than the addition of an adequate amount of available plant food to supplement that provided by the soil itself and the manures applied. The soil may be able to furnish plant food for a 50 or 75-bushel crop of potatoes, but it takes some help from commercial fertilizers to put across yields of 150, 200 or 500 bushels—the kind that make the big money.

In a series of field tests conducted in the North Atlantic states by the United States bureau of plant industry, it was found that the use of a heavy application of high analysis fertilizer increased yields by more than 55 per cent. In many counties increases of 25 to 50 bushels may be expected on the basis of experiments and field tests on a great many farms. The facts show that yields can be increased, quality improved and production costs lowered by the right kind of fertilizer treatment. It is not uncommon to hear it said that the extra bushels resulting from use of fertilizer cost only one third to one half as much as the other bushels grown on the same land without fertilizer treatment.

The best fertilizer practise for late potatoes in this section consists of th use of 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acr of a 4-8-4 fertilizer for heavier soils and a 5-8-7 fertilizer for the lighte soils.

TAFTVILLE

A surprise kitchen shower was tendered Miss Sadie Newtop Tuesday evening at her home on North A street in honor of her approaching marriage to Charles Marthers of Norwich. The bride-elect received a large number of kitchen utensils from the guests who attended. Games of various kinds were played, an amusing feature of the evening being the mock marriage with Miss Mary Taggart as the minister, Miss Elizabeth Houston as the bride, Miss Louie Unsworth as the groom, Miss Elizabeth Newton as the bridesmaid and Miss Mary Greenhalgh as the best man.

Later in the evening refresaments of sandwiches, ice cream, cake and punch were served by Mrs. Arthur Newton assisted by Miss Mary Greenhalgh. Miss Mary Taggart and Miss Elizabeth Houston. District No. 8, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique held its regular meeting Sunday afternoon at Parish hall, with President Joseph C. Morsan in the chair. There were about 300 delegates present many coming from Willimantic, Stafford Springs, Battle, Occum, Norwich, Jewett City, Plainfield, Moosup, Danielson, Goodyear, Grosvenordale Wauregan and Putnam.

There were very interesting addresses by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the Sacred Heart church, and Rev. Oscar Norman of All Hallows church, Moosup. The speaker of the afternoon was Attorney Woisard of Danielson, who gave a very inspiring talk on the duties of citizenship, and he urged the members who had not become American citizens to take the necessary steps without delay. President Morsan also spoke and there were remarks by Alma Forcier of Goodyear, one of the general directors of the grand union.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Joseph C. Marsan, (re-elected for the second time); vice-president, Mrs. Hawley of Danielson; second vice president, Mrs. Gamache of Moosup; secretary, Omer Tellier, Jr., assistant secretary, Felix Guillotte of Jewett City; treasurer, Wilfred Lavande of Willimantic; master of ceremonies, Mr. Lafreniere of Occum; mistress of ceremonies, Miss Roy of Jewett City.

The meeting with its routine business was very interesting, there being a discussion on some proposed new rules which were all accepted but two. Following adjournment refreshments of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee were served by the local committee.

The program which followed and which was thoroughly enjoyed by all was as afollows:

Overture, Sacred Heart orchestra; Cantique a St. Jean Baptiste, by choir of St. Cecile in charge of Miss Alice Frechette; remarks, Rev. Bachand; song, Always You, Miss Regina Savageau, accompanied on piano by Miss Alice Frechette; violin solo, Traumerl, Girard Bourdon, accompanied on the piano by Aime Pepin; address, "Union St. Jean at Large," two pupils of the Sacred Heart school, Miss Arpin and Miss Mathieu; violin solo, Miss Adela Marsan, accompanied on piano by Miss Blanche Fontaine; piano solo, Miss Mabel Gladue of Norwich; monologue, Armand Neveu of Putnam; song, Federation, choir of St. Cecile with Miss Flora Faucher as the soloist.

The next district meeting is to be held at Goodyear on the fourth Sunday in July, which will be the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Union St. Jeane Baptiste d'Amerique.

The operating table donated to the William W. Backus hospital of Norwich by the people of Norwich, and the fracture table given by the Taftville Field Day association, are on display in the windows of the People's Store, Inc., where many are taking the opportunity to see them. Each table bears a nickel plate, giving the name of the donor.

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NORWICH RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL

Eight churches of the city were represented Wednesday evening at the annual meeting of the Norwich Council of Religious Education, held in the parlors of the First Baptist church.

The meeting was in charge of President J. Harlow Graham, pastor of

REV. E. C. DUNBAR

Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, and after the routine business and annual reports had been completed the election of officers took place.

Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, was elected to head the council for the coming year, other officers elected being: Vice president, John B. Stanton, Trinity Methodist Episcopal church; secretary, Miss Edith A. Ellis, Central Baptist church; treasurer, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town.

Chairmen of the various committees were selected at the meeting, the one exception being that of vacation bible school. This office is to be filled by the officers at some future date. Those selected were: Finance, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church; leadership training, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church; week day religious instruction, Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church.

Members at large, selected by the council, included the following from several churches in the city; Miss Elizabeth Fuller, Mrs. E. Larue Bliven; Miss Alif Stevens, Miss Edith A. Ellis and Henry D. Johnson, Walter F. Lester, Edwin B. Floyd and Edward J. Graham.

The Norwich council of Religious Education is now conducting a school for leadership training on Thursday evening of each week at the United Congregational church. The attendance at these classes has been unusually large and the instruction received has been of exceedingly high order. The dean of the school is Prof. O. W. Warmingham of Boston university, who is assisted in the instruction of classes by Rev. W. B. Denby, graduate school of Yale university.

Dates for the various schools and classes to be held during the summer are to be announced later. These schools are in part to be run by the churches separately, with special classes or schools held jointly at various times.

URGE SERVICE MEN TO KEEP WAR RISK INSURANCE

That every individual entitled to revive or convert his government war risk insurance, who has not done so to date, should revive or convert this insurance before July 1 is the conviction of Harry J. Miller, second vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Pursuant to this conviction he has issued a circular letter to the more than 20,000 agents and managers of the Metropolitan Life asking them to use their utmost endeavors with former service men, with whom they come in contact, to see that they revive or convert the insurance they are entitled to carry or are carrying.

"Any person, who can possibly afford to pay his premium for revival or conversion of his government war risk insurance and fails to do so, shows an extreme lack of judgment," said Mr. Miller. "Every insurance man, worthy of the name, is desirous of keeping these government policies in force. The premium rates are reasonable and the United States government is the security in back of the insurance. I have not seen recent figures on the number who have converted or revived their policies but I understand that less than 20,000 had taken advantage of their opportunity on May first. With the millions of men in service, practically all of whom were entitled to this insurance, it seems that the majority should be interested in taking advantage of their rights.

"The government has set July first as the dead line when this insurance can be revived or converted so it behooves those former service men, who have not done so, to act promptly. We believe in insurance and the people of the country are coming to believe in it more and more. A greater amount of insurance is being placed every year and this year to date is proving no exception. Insurance is being used by business men and bankers to a greater extent than ever before. It is proving a boon in the settlement of big estates as the best means of providing ready money to settle inheritance taxes and other incidental expenses without sacrificing assets of the estate or needed ready money. More and more policies are being written on the income plan. Under this plan a man is sure that his family will be provided with a fixed income over a term of years and can be absolutely certain this income will be beyond the reach of smooth-talking promotors, impecunious relatives with a hard luck story and the thousands and one hazards of business."

FINED FOR FAILURE TO GRANT RIGHT OF WAY

At the Wednesday morning session of the city court August Sikorski of No. 10 Hadley street, was found guilty of failure to grant the right of way and Judge Arthur F. Libby imposed a fine of $10 and costs, total $21.94. Sikorski was involved in an accident Tuesday at the corner of North Main and Golden streets with a truck owned and operated by Jacob Zimmerman of Boswell avenue. The truck Sikorski was driving is owned by Charles W. Burton. This machine had a rear wheel taken off, but the Zimmerman machine sustained very little damage. Sikorski, it was charged, cut across North Main street to turn into Golden street, in front of Mr. Zimmerman's truck.

Unable to raise his fine of $3 and costs, total $14.75, James Cohen, a transient, was sent to jail to work it out. He was charged with intoxica-

Allis, Mrs. Edward Briggs, Miss Maria Briggs, Mrs. C. E. Carpenter, Mrs. Alfred M. Haring, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Mrs. H. E. Higgins, Mrs. D. L. Jones, Mrs. E. J. Jones, Miss J. E. C. Leach, Mrs. M. It was made to order in the Isle of Manila for an ancestor of Mrs. Lester and has been in her mother's family for generations. So fine is it that it has been drawn through a wedding ring and it is evidently made from 500 silk thread. In the border alone are from 18 to 20 patterns and the center and body of the cobwebby heirloom have almost as many. The costly shawl has been prized and handed down by members of the family in New York state, Mrs. Lester's home. A duplicate was made to order in Manila for the prominent Hart family, of Troy, N. Y.

Music Clubs' Luncheon

The annual state luncheon and business meeting of the National Federation of Music clubs was held Wednesday at the Cheshire Congregational church.

MERCHANT AND MINISTER SPOKE TO ROTARY CLUB

Two very interesting talks were heard at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon, one by Frank G. Aubrey, manager of the Mohican store, and the other by Rev. Morris B. Ailing, pastor of the church at Storrs. Mr. Aubrey's talk was a comparison of the grocery store 25 years ago and the modern public market of today. The talk by Rev. Mr. Ailing dealt largely with the new community church at Storrs which will be dedicated on Sunday.

Grocery Methods Compared

Mr. Aubrey said in part:

The largest and one of the most prosperous grocery stores in Norwich 25 years ago was owned by a man known to many of you, located in one of the stores now occupied by the Plaut-Cadden company nearest the Lee & Osgood Co.

About 50 years ago a gentleman came to Norwich and located at the above store. His capital was about $5000. The store, as I remember it, was long and narrow, reaching from Main street to rear door on Water street. On either sides of the store front were the usual grocery shelves used in those days, reaching from the floor to ceiling with bins for spices, cereals, teas, coffee, crackers in bulk, beans and sugar. About midway of store, cash booth a hand power coffee mill, a long counter used for putting up orders, an ice box with real ice—no Frigidaires then—one tub butter with one brand of creamery butter, one kerosene oil tank, now nearly obsolete, not over four kinds cheese and the whole rear of store used for storing a carload of flour in wooden barrels. Now all flour comes to us in cotton cloth sacks holding about 98 pounds. The delivery system consisted of two horses, two wagons and drivers for same. The store help consisted of three men, including the boss, two ladies, one cashier, one saleslady and the boy.

Also a very high grade of imported groceries. After 40 years of hard labor the owner of this prosperous grocery store was called to the great beyond, not too well blessed with this world's goods on account of his numerous credit accounts which many of his customers had neglected to pay.

The public market of the present day usually is located just off the high rent districts. That is firms like United Drug, Schulte's, Woolworth, are considered class A; grocery stores, furniture, hardware and markets considered class B.

The equipment required today to fit up a modern city market runs into many thousands of dollars. The whole unit or store is departmentized, consisting of meat, bakery, groceries, butter, fruit and fish departments, delicatessen, paper and twine and general expense. Each department has a foreman in charge with whatever help is needed to keep his department in best possible condition and give service. All foods products on display must be covered by plate gluss to which has been added a central refrigerating plant with ammonia circulating through frosted pipes.

The meat department equipment consists of meat cooler for which an iron track is provided to run in carloads of beef, lamb, veal and provisions. In the larger cities the meat cutting is done with an electrical saw which does away with the hand labor of sawing by hand. The bakery department includes modern baking ovens, bread making machines, cake mixtures for mixing larger batches of cake or whipping cream, proof boxes, in charge of foremen bakers, one night and one day baker with assistants. In connection with the manufactory of the bakery there is the bakery sales force.

The grocery department is also in charge of a foreman with a full line of groceries of recognized nationally advertised products. The butter or dairy department contains the finest butters, both tub and in print, 70 kinds of foreign and domestic cheeses, pickles in bulk, lard, and etc. Fruit department contains only the choicest foreign and domestic fruits and vegetables, nearly the whole year round, Emperor grapes from Africa, grapes from Argentine, South America, peaches from Chile, strawberries from Florida, California fruits and Bermuda products. Fish department has its own fresh seasonable fish, lobsters, canned and salt fish of all kinds.

In the larger cities delicatessen departments are very popular in charge of expert chefs.

Paper and twine is taken as a seperate unit, also are general expense items listed under this head such as heat, electric light, gas, coal for baking, office supplies, rent and advertising. To this is charged the managers, cashiers, book keeper and porters' salaries.

Every Saturday or when ever an auditor sees fit to look us over an inventory is taken of all these departments and the results obtained are sent to our New York office every Monday night.

We have no accounts, every sale is cash. We do not deliver and if we did we would be obliged to add an expense of 11 1-2 per cent for delivery.

The experience or business knowledge gathered from an institution of this kind is of great benefit to many young men, who have been connected with this system. Many Norwich boys have been promoted to higher and better positions throughout the chain of stores.

Community Church at Storrs

Mr. Ailing in his talk on the Storrs church and the work which it is expected to accomplish said:

In the early colonial days the town of Mansfield was an outpost of Norwich and then as the years rolled by there came changes. Mansfield became a town with a north parish and a south parish; and then as time went on the town became further divided. The history of Mansfield is interesting, for here the first silk mill in America was established as was the first bell foundry and many other manufacturing industries which have spread throughout America and to other parts of the world. The religious history is also interesting. There was the church at Storrs which flourished until about 1846 when it became divided as each little community drew away and established its own church. The church grew smaller and smaller until it was decided to tear down the church and for the past 75 years there has been only a little church to administer to the religious needs of a community where is situated several hundred students of various creeds and denominations. This church was the only center of religion for the college.

The need of a church embracing all religious tendencies of the student body was felt and now on Sunday such a church and community house will be dedicated on the spot where once stood the church forum—the old horse sheds where political and religious questions and policies were settled. The church is for the youth of Connecticut and is not only a place of architectural beauty but a spiritual edifice. Today in this church will be concentrated practically all the creeds and denominations found in the college. The Congregationalist, the Baptist, Methodist, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Lutheran and Jew will be preached to according to the rites in this church. It was even proposed to have an altar for the Roman Catholic in the church but for the present the altar will be in the community house where masses will be held. Every religious faith has supported this movement of a real community church and contributed largely to the project. The idea appeals and it will be watched with deep interest. You are all invited to the dedication on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Ailing's talk was heartily greeted and President Edwin A. Harris voiced the appreciation of the club to the speaker.

At the business session there was little other than routine business transacted. Secretary Edwin H. Jewett spoke on attendance records and urged a closer adherence to the attendance rule regarding make-ups. Arthur M. Thompson was the song leader and Alfred G. Lillibridge had charge of the after dinner programme. There were several excellent musical selections by the members of the club.

Moosup Well Child Conference

The normal child, as well as those that are underweight, should have some period of rest during the day and should go to bed early as growth is best accomplished during the sleeping time. Often all that is needed to bring a child up to normal weight is longer hours of rest. All children should go to bed early regardless of the possible change in the sun time.

All these measures for child health are discussed at the monthly well child conference. The next conference in Moosup will be held on Thursday afternoon, June 10th, in Franco-American hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

AGAINST NAT'L REFERENDUM ON THE PROHIBITION ISSUE

Senate Prohibition Committee Adopts Report Recommending That the Bill Be Indefinitely Postponed—The Action Still Must Be Approved by the Judiciary Committee—Reports Also Against Proposed Modification of the Volstead Act.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—Short shrift was made today by the senate prohibition committee of the proposals for a national referendum on the wet and dry issue and for modification of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Three of the five members of the committee, which recently held lengthy public hearings on the measures, quickly adopted a report by its chairman, Senator Means of Colorado recommending that the bills be indefinitely postponed. This action still must be approved by the judiciary committee.

Senator Means of West Virginia, and Harreld, Oklahoma, republicans, signed the report, which also has the approval of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, Senator Reed, democrat, of Missouri, the other member, and the wet on the committee, said he would file a minority report later.

With respect to the proposal of Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, for a national referendum on the prohibition question, the majority report said such a referendum was not provided for in the constitution and added it was the belief of the senators that it was not the intention of the framers of the constitution that a national referendum would ever be attempted."

The proposal of Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland for modification of the eighteenth amendment so as to restore control of the liquor question to the states was dismissed with the observation that "we believe this amendment to be morally right and economically wise."

The report added that so long as the prohibition amendment is a part of the fundamental law "it is the duty of all officers, legislative, executive and judicial to aid in its enforcement."

Turning to the Edge proposals and those of Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, for modification of the Volstead act, the committee said the question was directly or indirectly to authorize the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages "contrary to the spirit and intent of the eighteenth amendment."

The action of the committee had long been forecast and consequently caused no surprise. The wets anticipated it some time ago by offering some of their bills as amendments to the administration bill for strengthening the Volstead act which the committee recently reported favorably.

"The report was just as expected and the action has been discounted for weeks," said Senator Edge. "We have accomplished more than we had hoped at this time. We have effectively drawn the attention of the country to the complete failure of prohibition and the necessity for practical revision of existing discriminatory and clearly unjustified laws. Such action cannot ultimately be evaded."

Senator Edge said he took "unqualified exception" to the charge that the wets were seeking to authorize the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages.

"Time after time I have challenged wherein a single provision in any bill I have introduced on the subject was not within constitutional limits," he added "It is a little tiresome to continually hear the charge of 'nullifying the constitution' when a senator seeks to legally amend unworkable laws.

"Again it struck me as rather gratuitous in the report to say 'it is our belief that it was not the intention of the framers of the constitution that a national referendum would ever be attempted.' It's a safe prediction it was not in the minds of our forefathers that a sumptuary police power act would ever be added to the constitution."

Senator Edwards asserted in a statement that the committee's action was "in perfect alignment with the brass-tacking attitude of the congress since prohibition became a live and burning issue."

"The committee," he said, "saw fit to absolutely ignore consideration of measures which in my opinion would go far in easing a situation which is speedily growing worse and which if uncorrected will cause much wailing and gnashing of teeth in the political conventions of 1928."

"Another olive branch has been extended to the anti-saloon league by the senate of the United States. They have been given a new lease of life by the abject refusal of the senate to give consideration to the appeals of anti-prohibitionists who had the interests of their country as much at heart as have the so-called 'drys'."

HOUSE FILIBUSTER AGAINST RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—The house was plunged into a hooting, yelling bedlam today by a filibuster against the $36,000,000 rivers and harbors bill.

The babble of voices, which embraced the galleries as well as the restless membership on the floor, ebbed and flowed between near pandemonium and the confusing hum of countless undertones as accompaniment to charges, counter charges, denials and counter denials, of personal and group attacks against members of the house.

After four hours of almost utter confusion, described by Chairman Snell of the rules committee, as the "wildest scene I have observed since I have been a member of the house," the house had before it no business except discussion of the integrity of its members.

The protests of Representative Sosnowski, republican, Michigan, against an editorial in the Chicago Tribune which referred to him as an "embattled foreigner" using arguments "inspired by envy and malice," gave him the floor on a point of personal privilege. This recognition for more than two hours was the storm center of attacks on language used by members and demands for order swept the house with such rapidity as to defeat the goal they sought.

By a vote of 193 to 83, the house tonight defeated a move to eliminate the Illinois river project from the $36,000 omnibus rivers and harbors bill.

This action came after nearly three hours of debate, during which opponents contended the rivers and harbors committee had exceeded its authority in incorporating the project in the measure.

Representative Lehlbach, republican, New Jersey, presiding, sustained the contention of the opponents of the project, but the house overrode his decision.

The same vote defeated also a move to eliminate on parliamentary maneuvering two other projects, one to extend the intra-coastal-canal development along the Gulf of Mexico to Corpus Christi, Texas, and one to connect Graves End Bay with Jamaica Bay, New York.

TO INVESTIGATE INCREASED PRICE OF GASOLINE

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—A resolution directing the federal trade commission to investigate the increased price of gasoline and other petroleum products was adopted today by the senate without a record vote.

The resolution, introduced by Senator Trammell, democrat, Florida, requires the commission to report to the senate at the next session of congress whether the increases were "arbitrarily made and unwarranted."

The commission is further directed to determine if there are any agreements between oil companies to raise or depress prices or if competition is restricted by conditions of ownership of oil properties, refineries or marketing facilities.

Senator Trammell held the resolution before the senate for weeks and each time there was a lull in the proceedings he asked for action, but it was shoved aside repeatedly for some other measure. He accused the senate of wasting time over trivial affairs while the public was paying heavy toll to the oil trusts.

Joining in the debate Senator King, democrat, Utah, used the resolution as a medium to again attack the federal trade commission, declaring that as important as the resolution was he did not believe an inquiry by the commission with its present majority personnel would be fruitful.

Defending the oil industry, Senator Harreld, republican, Oklahoma, declared an investigation was not warranted as the rise and fall in oil prices was justified. He accused senators of being 'afraid to vote their convictions" when it came to the oil industry, which he said, is now being operated along ethical lines.

INDIANA DEM. NOMINEE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—(AP)—Albert Stump, of Indianapolis, a World war veteran who has never held public office, today was selected as the democratic candidate for United States senator at the party's convention. He will oppose Senator James E. Watson, republican candidate for re-election in the fall.

The election of Stump was viewed by politicians as the passing of democratic leadership in Indiana from Thomas Taggart to younger hands. The suddenness of the swing to Stump left the Taggart leaders who had been backing John E. Frederick, of Kokomo into position for nomination on the fourth ballot, without resources, and the quick appearance of the veteran Taggart as acting chairman failed to halt the procession of counties abandoning Frederick and William Cullop, former congressman of Vincennes, for Stump.

Stump, a graduate of Indiana university and the University of Chicago Law school, is a former school teacher. He served in the World war with the rank of captain. He is married and has three children.

THREE MEXICANS KILLED IN STATE OF DURANGO

NOGALES, Ariz., June 3—(AP)—A dispatch to the Herald from Mexico City today said that three members of the Juan Galindos bandit gang in the state of Durango, Mexico, are dead and three have been taken prisoner in a clash with a force of government troops and the main division of the outlaw band.

Reinforcements are being rushed to the federal troops in Durango, the dispatch said, and the capture of Galindos and his lieutenants, who have been plundering communities near the Durango-Jalisco line with no small toll of life is considered imminent.

The Galindos gang is believed to have been the captors of Conrad C. Braden and Jules C. Gallagher, kidnapped in Durango, and recently rescued from the outlaws by government troops.

HARTFORD, June 3 (AP)—Thirteen down-river fishermen caught 4,674 shad during May, according to a report made by Captain Christopher Colvers of New London to Superintendent John W. Titcomb. The catches of the thirteen men included 3,327 roe and 1,347 buck shad.

L. G. Bailey of Essex, and J. W. Rand, of Hamburg each caught 699 during the month. Other totals were: Hamburg, James Daniels, 240; G. Calkowski, 450; H. E. Banning, 98; E. S. LLOYD GEORGE WINS IN CONFLICT WITH ASQUITH

LONDON, June 3.—(AP)—Lloyd George apparently has had the advantage in the first round of his conflict with the Ealf of Oxford and Asquith. As leader of the liberal party Lord Oxford and his supporters have taken Lloyd George, as chairman of the parliamentary group of that party, to task for his attitude in refusing to participate in party councils when the general strike was in progress.

In accordance with a request of members of the party, Mr. Lloyd George summoned a meeting for today. It was held in the house of commons and after three hours discussion was adjourned until Tuesday next.

Mr. Lloyd George himself made a long and impassioned speech, justifying his attitude, and a large majority of those who spoke supported him. There was a motion of confidence in Mr. Lloyd George before the meeting, and it was clear that if it was pressed to a division, it would be carried by an overwhelming majority.

Accordingly no vote was taken, as Lord Oxford's partisians thought it would be desirable first to acquaint him with "the sense of the meeting," and the object of the adjournment until Tuesday is to hear his reply.

PRESIDENT OF POLAND TO BE INAUGURATED TODAY

WARSAW, June 3.—(AP)—At noon tomorrow Poland's new president, Ignaz Mosciki, will be formally inaugurated. Immediately after the ceremony, the interim cabinet set up after Marshal Pilsudski's coup will resign, but it is expected the ministry will be asked to continue, with possible changes in one or two portfolios.

Marshal Pilsudski apparently intends to have his way at tomorrow's inaugural ceremony. The marshal desired that the ceremony should take place in the reception hall of the historic castle of the Polish kings, not wishing that the parliament building should be used for this purpose. It was found, however, that the castle's reception hall was too small to hold the vast assembly, and the parliament building was again talked of for that purpose. But Pilsudski ordered that all the ante-rooms be thrown open in the castle, and these with the reception hall will probably prove adequate and are now being decorated with garland and flags.

FALLEN LIMB CAUSE OF AUTOMOBILE FATALITY

SUFFIELD, June 3.—(AP)—A large limb which had been wrenched from an elm tree and hurled across the highway between here and West Suffield tonight during a wind storm was responsible for the almost instant death of Mary Cusick, 19 year old Suffield high school senior, and the serious injury of Elbert Elcock, 20, driver of a roadster in which the couple were going to West Suffield. The girl received a fractured skull and internal injuries when the limb propped up by branches at one end hit the windshield, smashing it, and then the motorists as the car ran under it.

Elcock, a garage owner, was cut about the arms and face and received several fractured ribs. He was taken to his home.

For Theft of Jewelry

Mrs. Mildred Dervoe, 28, Charged With Having Stolen Several Hundred Dollars' Worth in New York.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Charged with having stolen several hundred thousand dollars worth of jewelry from Fifth avenue jewelers during the past twelve years, Mrs. Mildred Dervoe, 28 years old, was arrested today at the time she had $20,000 worth of jewelry in her bag, some of it identified as having been stolen from jewelers four years ago.

Police expressed the belief that the woman has disposed of very little of the jewelry she is alleged to have taken. They said her case is a strange one and that she is a kleptomaniac fascinated with jewelry. Detectives have been looking for her for years. It was said that she would enter a jewelry store, and representing herself as "Mrs. Driscoll of Port Washington, Long Island," would ask to look at some jewelry. She would then secret some of it in her bag and get out of the store before the loss was discovered. She would then disappear for a long period.

Word had been given all the Fifth avenue jewelers to watch out for her and today detectives received word that she was in a Fifth avenue store. The detectives arrived just as she was leaving and trailed her, arresting her at the entrance to the Ritz Carlton hotel.

Mrs. Dervoe's husband, Werner Dervoe, a salesman, told police tonight that his wife was related to the late Elbridge Gerry Snow, third, who died in Stamford, Conn., yesterday of injuries received in a polo game last Saturday. He said she was either a second or third cousin of Mrs. Snow and that her maiden name was Mildred Snow.

CARROLL GETS $2,000 FINE AND YEAR IN PENITENTIARY

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Earl Carroll, host at a Broadway "bathtub party" where a nude girl served drinks from a tub, was sentenced to a year and a day in Atlanta penitentiary and fined $2,000 today for perjury committed during testimony before two grand juries investigating the party.

Of six indictments originally returned against the theatrical producer, two had been dropped during the course of the trial and of the charges in two others, relating to liquor at the party, he had been found not guilty. The two indictments on which he received perjury convictions dealth with his testimony that no one occupied a bathtub at the party.

Judge Goddard imposed a sentence of a year and a day on each count, but made the terms run concurrently so that in a year and a day the whole sentence will have been served. He imposed fines of $1,000 on each count.

Carroll took the sentence stoically, without show of emotion, and was at once released on continued bail of $5,000 pending his appeal, which will be heard in October. Because his business interests necessitate some travelling, Judge Goddard announced that the producer would not be required, as is the custom, to remain within this judicial district.

Prior to imposition of sentence counsel for Carroll told the court that Carroll had learned his lesson, had already suffered sufficiently, and that as he had not perjured himself in any effort to obstruct justice (since the grand jury inquiry was concerned with the presence of liquor and the bathtub incident was immaterial to that) asked that leniency be shown. He produced a petition signed by nine of the 12 jurors who convicted Carroll asking that the producer be shown leniency.

MINISTERS LOST MONEY IN THE ECONOMY OIL CO.

ST. LOUIS, June 3—(AP)—Eight ministers testified today in the federal court trial of William E. Rutledge, former minister and editor of the Preachers' Magazine that they had lost money in the Economy Oil company promoted by Rutledge. He is charged with using the mails to defraud.

The witnesses included the Rev. Charles A. Marks, Norwalk, Conn., aged pastor emeritus of St. Matthew's church of Wilton, Conn.

All told a similar story of abiding trust in Rutledge. All but one were subscribers to his magazine.

Testifying in his own behalf, Rutledge said operations of the company began in Kentucky and Tennessee, where 23 wells were drilled with but little success. The company moved to the Texas and then to the Arkansas fields. All wells were good prospects, he testified, but frequently when oil was struck shale would fill up the well.

Rev. Marks testified he invested $2,500 in the company between 1921 and 1924 and received a $50 dividend. The witness volunteered to tell the jury how he raised the money to invest in oil stock, but the court ruled this was unnecessary and he left the stand.

On cross examination Rutledge admitted he had sold some of the company's Arkansas properties without notification to stockholders.

LONDON, June 3.—(AP)—A move to break the deadlock in the coal strike in Great Britain was taken today by the mine owners with the approval of the government.

The letter will be taken to Brussels tomorrow where Smith is attending a meeting of the Miners' International Federation. This new move is believed to be the outcome of negotiations during the past few days between representatives of the government and of the mining interests.

Wage Demands of Trainmen Refused

Road Officials Decline 20 Per Cent Wage Increase of 80,000 Men of Eastern Railroads.

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—The demand of 80,000 conductors and trainmen of Eastern railroads for a twenty per cent. wage increase was refused today by officials of the roads at the termination of a two-day conference with representatives of the brotherhood of conductors and trainmen.

It was stated, however, that the conferees had agreed upon mediation of the demands of the brotherhood under the Watson-Parker act for settling railroads labor disputes. The case will be submitted to the board of mediation provided by the act as soon as it is appointed by President Coolidge.

John G. Walber, chairman of the conference committee of managers of Eastern railroads, representing about 50 lines east of the Mississippi, issued a statement following the conference in which he stated that the railroads felt the demanded increase was not justified in view of present operating expenses and the present wage scale.

The wage increase demands were received by the railroads Jan. 3 last, at which time they were given until March 2 to reply. The demanded increase ranged to from $1 to $1.64 a day and it was estimated by railroad officials that if granted it would total between $85,000,000 and $95,000,000 a year.

Except for the Pennsylvania railroad, which chose to negotiate separately with its employes, the railroads replied jointly on March 2, refusing the demands. Further negotiations resulted in the appointment of the committee representing the roads to discuss the question with labor representatives.

W. G. Lee, of the brotherhood of railway trainmen, and L. E. Sheppard representing the order of railway conductors. Mr. Walber, head of the railroad officials's committee, is vice president of the New York Central railroad.

A conference in April resulted in an adjournment until yesterday in order that both sides might assemble data on which to base the discussion.

NAVY AIR SERVICE BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 3—(AP)—Sixteen minutes after it was taken up today, the house bill which would authorize a five year building program for the naval air service, was passed by the senate. It was approved with some amendments, which means it must go to conference for adjustment of differences between the house and senate.

The measure, which provides for an estimated outlay of $65,000,000 during the next five years, was passed without debate and without a record vote. The entire 16 minutes was taken up by a clerk in reading the bill, section by section.

Provision is made for the construction of 1946 planes, as well as two rigid airships, each three times the size of the wrecked Shenandoah, and the maintenance of a minimum strength of 1,000 useful heavier than air craft.

The bill also would create the office of second assistant secretary of the navy for aviation and other duties and provides that any officer of the marine corps or navy detailed to command an aviation school, station or air unit organized for flight tactical purposes shall be a qualified naval aviator.

The airships, of the type suitable for use as adjuncts to the fleet, would be approximately 6,000,000 cubic feet volume each and $8,000,000 was set as the construction cost for both.

By years the following heavier than air craft construction would be authorized: 1927, 255 planes, $15,285,000; 1928, 315 planes, $16,225,750; 1929, 335 planes, $17,282,500; 1930, 357 planes, $18,941,250, and 1931, 375 planes, $20,046,250. Provision also is made for the building of 33 other planes.

INVESTIGATING DRAINING OF POND IN EAST HAMPTON

EAST HAMPTON, June 3.—(AP)—A representative of the state fish and game commission came here from Middletown today to investigate the circumstances surrounding the draining of a pond by the Bevin Brothers Manufacturing company last Sunday. The stream flowing into the pond is a tributary of Lake Pocopotaug, which is under state control, and it is the claim of the state fish and game commission that the pond could not be drained without a state permit. This, it is claimed, the Bevin company failed to secure. The draining of the water killed a number of fish.

The Bevin company officials claim that the pond is the property of that concern and that this being the case a state permit was not needed to drain off the water. The water has been drained off several times in the past without a permit, it was pointed out.

The draining of the dam was necessary, officials of the company said, to repair the dam. The water in the dam is nearly 50 feet deep.

$1,000,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN BUSINESS CENTER LOWELL

Masonic Temple and Five Story Department Store Were Destroyed—Store Was Closed For the Thursday Afternoon Clerks' Holiday—Several Firemen Were Cut by Flying Glass—Firemen Prepared For a Night's Work on the Blazing Ruins.

LOWELL, Mass., June 3.—(AP)—The Masonic Temple and a five story department store were destroyed tonight by the worst fire this city has experienced in 20 years. The loss was placed at $1,000,000. Largely because the department store was closed for the Thursday afternoon clerks' holiday, there was no loss of life, but several firemen were cut by flying glass.

The fire was in the heart of the business district. It started late today in the basement of the store, a retail and wholesale establishment of the A. G. Pollard Company, where electricians were at work. The flames spread rapidly through the structure and to the company's adjacent building. A general alarm was sounded and help came also from Lawrence, Dracut, Chelmsford and Billerica.

The Masonic Temple soon caught. Valuable portraits and records were saved, but four lodges were made homeless and were housed tonight in the Knights of Columbus building. Other buildings suffered heavy losses from smoke, but at least half of the loss was sustained by the Pollard firm. After four hours fight, the fire was placed under control, but the firemen prepared for a night's work on the blazing ruins.

CHARLES PONZI DESIRES TO RETURN TO MASSACHUSETTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 3—(AP)—Charles Ponzi, erstwhile foreign exchange "wizard" today expressed a desire to return to Massachusetts and appeal his conviction in the state courts to the United States supreme court.

Ponzi said he was deterred from making this move by the fact that it would imperil those who furnished his bond here when he appealed his conviction on charges of illegal real estate operations to the Florida supreme court.

Counsel for Ponzi said his client is between the proverbial devil and the deep blue sea. "If he went back to Massachusetts," said Attorney Scarborough, "without regulation papers he would endanger the interests of his bondsmen here by leaving the jurisdiction of the court. At the same time, his bond of $10,000 in Massachusetts will be in danger should he not appear in court for sentence on the stipulated date."

Ponzi visited Duval county authorities today and was advised to confer with his attorney. It is expected his next move will be to ask the state of Massachusetts to issue requisition papers for him, should these be honored by Governor Martin, his bondsmen could deliver him to the sheriff and be relieved of further responsibility. Such a course would enable Ponzi to exercise his right of appeal when the Massachusetts court passed sentence upon him.

PLANNING TO ESTABLISH WEEK-DAY CHURCH SCHOOLS

HARTFORD, June 3—(AP)—Indication that it is about to launch an extensive campaign to more firmly establish week-day church schools in Connecticut communities, the Connecticut council of religious education announced this afternoon the appointment of Professor George Nesbitt McCluskey, supervisor of Bridgeport week-day church schools, as director of education for the council.

At the same time announcement was made of the re-engagement of Wallace L. Woodin, general secretary of the council since 1912, who some time ago announced his resignation as effective December 31, 1925. Ministers of every Protestant church in the state will be acquainted with the current school campaign through a circular letter, signed by James L. Chase, vice president of the council's board of trustees.

EVELYN NESBIT THAW'S SON LEAVES UNPAID HOTEL BILL

CHICAGO, June 3—(AP)—Russell Thaw, son of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, after an extensive round of entertainment in Chicago for two weeks, has gone eastward, leaving the Congress hotel with an unpaid bill for two weeks of lodging and entertainment.

Incidentally it was said the bill was forwarded to Harry K. Thaw, who still, it is understood, sends regular monthly payments to Evelyn, his former wife.

Russell had been in an eastern preparatory school and had not been seen in Chicago since his mother Frank poison while despondent after a prolonged New Year's celebration last January.

The managers said that an empty suitcase was all that was left in Russell's room.

Besides the expense of dinners for parties, room rent, there were motor car bills charged on his hotel bill.

REDUCTION IN VALUATION OF AVON COLLEGE BLDGS.

HARTFORD, June 3—(AP)—A reduction from $539,265 to $65,265 in the valuation as of October 1, 1924, of the Avon college buildings erected by a corporation inspired by Mrs. Theodate Pope Riddle of Farmington, was allowed by Judge J. P. Waldo Marvin of the superior court today, in a decision vacating the assessment of the Avon tax board of relief.

In arriving at his conclusion, Judge Marvin held that evidence of profit which might accrue from the operation of the school was of no value in determining the value of buildings in an incomplete state.

The cost of the buildings, running at that time to nearly half a million dollars, was indicative mainly of the value of the buildings to the owner, he said.

JUDGMENT SUSPENDED IN CASE OF TRINITY STUDENTS

HARTFORD, June 3.—(AP)—Judgment was suspended on payment of costs in the cases of three young men, two of them Trinity college students, cases against two others, both Trinity students, were nolled without costs, while a sixth case was dismissed for lack of evidence by Judge James B. Henery in the West Hartford town court tonight. The men were arrested more than a week ago, charged with breaking and entering and theft of ten bottles of pre-war Scotch from the home of Alfred B. Pimm, of Stratford road, West Hartford, following a "party" there a week ago Sunday. No evidence was submitted and no witnesses were questioned.

MIDSHIPMAN REFUSED TO TAKE INDUCTION OATH

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 3—(AP)—Midshipman L. B. Ziske of Garden City, Kansas, today refused to take the oath of induction into the United States Navy upon graduation with his class from the Naval Academy here. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who had delivered an address to the graduating midshipmen, and to whom the case was referred, ordered the young man assigned to a station aboard the battleship New York which leaves on a coastal cruise tomorrow.

The case was the first of its kind ever reported at the Academy. Admiral Louis M. Nulton, commander of the midshipmen, said tonight. After the class of 446 had received diplomas, they were marched to the commandant's office to be sworn into the naval service as ensigns and lieutenants. Midshipman Ziske then announced that he would not take the oath because he did not wish to continue in the service and felt that he "wished to do something else."

A ruling of the naval department, now in force, requires that a midshipman serve two years in the service after graduation before his resignation may be considered. The young man has been attempting to resign for several months, Admiral Nulton said, although his ranking in conduct and as a student has been high.

Admiral Nulton added that the young man was assigned to a ship with the rest of his mates to give him a chance to see at close range that navy life for which the youth believed himself unfitted. The remainder of the graduates accepted their commissions.

SHRINERS TO MEET NEXT YEAR IN ATLANTIC CITY

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—(AP)—Selection of Atlantic City, N. J., for the 1927 session of the Imperial council marked the close today of the 52nd council session. Ancient Arabid Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. The gathering will be held June 14, 15 and 16, with Crescent Temple, Trenton, which has jurisdiction over the seashore resort, acting as host.

Closing of the business sessions, however, did not end the brilliant spectacles presented by the Shriners daily since Monday. Pageantry and parades continued throughout the day and far into the night.

The Shriners Allegorical pageant and a Durbar held in the stadium tonight was one of the most colorful events of the week.

Composed of 33 floats, dozens of bands and mounted guards, the pageant started with a presentation of William Penn signing the treaty with the Indians. Adding to the historical interest were representations of Washington at Valley Forge, Betsy Ross making the first American flag, the Liberty Bell and Fitch's steamboat.

A great pyrotechnic and electric display climaxed the five days of gorgeous spectacles.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR THE PHILA. EXPOSITION FLAG DAY

HARTFORD, June 3.—(AP)—A special Connecticut train will carry the contingent from this state, including Governor Trumbull and staff, military units, the heads of various state departments and other visitors, to the Flag day exercises at the sesqui-centennial exposition at Philadelphia. Authority to arrange at state expense transportation for official representatives of the state and the members of the two companies of Governor's Foot Guards was given today by the state board of control to the governor.

Governor Trumbull has appointed Adjutant General George M. Cole in charge of arranging for the special train. General Cole said tonight it was uncertain how large the train would be as all requests for accommodations had not been made.

In addition to the two Foot Guard companies, the New Haven Grays will make the trip, $1,000 having been appropriated by the board of control to assist the organization. Company G, 102nd regiment, of Waterbury, also plans to attend on that day, making the trip at its own expense. The New Haven Grays, now officially known as Company A, 102nd regiment, was present as a unit at the centennial celebration 50 years ago.

The number of state officials who will attend has not yet been determined.

WILSON HAS MTILED $3,000 FOR DEBT PAYMENT

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Reports of financial disaster having overtaken the Elite Embassy club in a Fifth avenue building were dispelled today when attorneys for Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., sponsor of the enterprise, announced that checks had been mailed for $3,000 rent and other obligations.

The entire affair coming to light when a notice was posted on the entrance that the furnishings would be sold to satisfy creditors, was due to a misunderstanding over the week end Mrs. Wilson's attorneys said.

The club was founded by the younger social element in opposition to the counsel of older leaders. A new location must be found for it as the building is being demolished, but the announcement stated the club has had no other difficulties.

DEATH OF EUGENE ATWOOD AT HIS NEW YORK HOME

WILLIMANTIC, June 3—A telegram was received here Thursday giving notice that Eugene Atwood, 79, died in his apartment in New York city in the morning. He was born in Atwoodville, September 13, 1847 and attended the Washington Swift grammar school, which was on the road between Atwoodville and Chaffeeville. ALLEN JEWETT DIES AT CLARK'S CORNER, HAMPTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3—Allen Jewett, 86, for a long time correspondent of the Norwich Bulletin, died at his home at Clark's Corner, town of Hampton late Wednesday night. He was a native of Hampton, born August 18, 1839, a son of Ebenezer and Mary Jennings Jewett. Surviving him is a daughter, Miss Viola Frances Clark, who has cared for her father in his declining years; two sons, Wallace Nelson Jewett of Hampton, engaged in farming, and Elmer Clarkin Jewett of the town, freight and commercial agent of the New Haven railroad at Norwich, now at the New Haven office. Mr. Jewett received his elementary education in Hampton schools, graduating from Calvin C. Foster high school, Hampton, in 1858. He taught school in the town of Champlin for one term and then set out to learn the carpenter trade under the direction of his father. He continued in that occupation until Postmaster General Wilson appointed him postmaster of Clark's Corner, in March, 1870. Two years later he resigned and again gave his attention to carpentering and painting. For ten years, commencing in 1874, he had a meat wagon route through the countryside and later purchased the grocery store of H. C. Green at Clark's Corner. After twenty-two years of active business he sold the store in April 1912. He had been reappointed postmaster in 1885 and having served continuously for 13 years he resigned in 1911, including his previous appointment he had been postmaster there for a quarter of a century. He was agent at the Clark's Corner station for four years from 1909 to 1913.

The store was sold to D. C. Hatch and Mr. Jewett moved to his farm on the Smith road, a half mile from the station and postoffice. Throughout his life he figured in the political life of his community. He was an ardent democrat. In 1891 he was elected town clerk of Hampton being the first democrat to be chosen to fill that office in over sixty years. He was a member of the school board for over a score of years and acting school visitor at the same time. He served as justice of the peace, town auditor, tax assessor and constable. In all this public work he held a remarkable record for accuracy and faithfulness in the performance of his duties. In religious faith he was a Spiritualist.

Surrounded by his family, his books and curios, he found much contentment in life. His library was the largest in the town of Hampton, containing close to one thousand volumes some of them rare old books printed in England and others among the first books printed in America. He gathered a large collection of valuable Indian relics which had figured in historical events and he had firearms of ancient workmanship.

He was a member of the Connecticut Historical society. His memory was very accurate on the history of this section of the state and many sought his knowledge on historical data.

He married Miss Fannie Elizabeth Wheeler, a native of Stonington, December 13, 1866. They celebrated their golden wedding December 13, 1916 in the company of one hundred and fifty guests. They had five children, three of whom survive. Wallace Nelson, born at Hampton June 26, 1870; Elmer Claflin born January 11, 1872, and Viola Frances born January 2, 1889, the last named being the widow of Edward Clark. Also surviving are two grandchildren, Ulmer Manning Jewett and Faun Elizabeth, and two great grandchildren, Allen Charles Jewett and Ulmer Manning Jewett, Jr.

JEWETT CITY

NEW CUT IN MILK PRICE SERIOUS FOR PRODUCERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 3—Producers who send milk to Boston from Jewett City every morning in the year stand to loose a considerable revenue by the cut of one cent a quart, becoming effective in the next payment, dating as of June 1st.

A daily average of from 80 to 100 20-quart cans are shipped every morning in a special milk car in charge of Alec Raney.

Thursday morning's shipment was 1,800 quarts, which means a cut of $18 a day for Griswold and Lisbon farmers, or in round number $540 each month.

The milk car gets the first of its cargo at the Jewett City station and when daylight saving time is in operation, the hardship of the local milk producer is evident when it is seen that he must drive from three to seven miles, and be at the depot at 4:34 a. m. This is to say nothing of the time consumed in milking a dozen cows, several hours before daylight. One farmer said Thursday it doesn't matter to what time they advance clocks, or to what hour they set them back "When we must get up at half-past two, you can't fool anybody, cows in particular, as to what time it is. The night "feel" is there, and night sounds, and there are three hours before the day sounds begin."

The pupils in Riverside grammar school are fortunate because its several teachers are qualified to give more than amateur notice to the flowers brought in each week, at this season by the children. Some of the young flower-hunters possess more activity in hunting and skill in mounting than others, while in some cases the rare spring flowers have come to the pupil who stumbled upon them by accident. Many a pupil, in his early teens, is able not only to name, but to classify a hundred of the local flora. A visit now planned to the Tadpole cedar swamp, will reward the party with a half dozen discoveries, to be met with neither in the field and woods, nor along country lanes. Coral-root, one of the orchids popularly considered unworthy to bear the name, and gold-thread, one of the daintiest little decorative plants that carpet the northerns bogs, will be found blooming in there. Both plants have an added attraction below the surface of the damp mold in which they thrive. The former, as its name signifies, has a curious root formed like unfinished coral beads. Gold thread has long roots, as though of twine colored with gold.

With regret some of the older residents of the borough read in The Bulletin of the death of Henry J. Adams at his home in Norwich. Mr. Adams was a railroad man of the old type, one of the sort that loved his machine, and was glad he was an engineer. Two or three alive today can testify to the kindly, indulgent sympathy Mr. Adams felt for the little barefooted boys, that in the Jewett City freight yard, 45 years ago, used to stand in solemn awe, and gaze up at the then great black machine, and the wonderful smiling man, who could make it go. Some of the boys recall today how on one grand great occasion, Mr. Adams allowed two of them to climb the steps and actually stand within that worshipped precinct, the cab of a locomotive, and once, with the cup of happiness filled to overflowing, they were allowed to ride the length of the freight house siding. Mr. Adams was one of the few, who, having back 50 years ago run the Uncas, Pequot and Mohegan, lived to see the great Pacific "thirty-hundreds," which compared with the engine he drove at the close of the Civil war are as a mountain to a mole hill.

Although many local weather records kept here stand to prove that there have been cold and backward seasons, yet none have to show more radical temperature changes. Wednesday at noon, the mercury stood at 84 degrees in the shade. Thursday there was no reading, all day, over 50 degrees.

The Misses Kennedy of Bondville, Mass., have been guests at Miss Beatrice Reed's.

(Special to the Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, June 3—Arthur J. Melbourne, of Stafford Springs was ordained to the Episcopal ministry Wednesday morning by Rt. Rev. C. B. Brewster bishop of Connecticut. The ordination took place at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Middletown. Mr. Melbourne was presented for ordination by Rev. George D. Wilcox, rector of Grace Church, Stafford Springs. He is the first native of Stafford Springs to enter the Episcopal ministry.

Last summer, while acting as assistant in a boys' camp near the Rocky mountains, he climbed Mt. Evans and Pike's Peak, each more than 14,000 feet above sea level. He expects to sail for Southampton, England, June 12th and will spend about two months in England and on the continent. Upon his return to the United States he will begin the active work of his ministry in the missionary district of South Dakota.

DANIELSON

MILL MAY BE AUCTIONED TO SATISFY TAX JUDGMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 3.—This town may witness the sale at public auction, during the late summer, of a mill property to satisfy a judgment in a foreclosure proceeding instituted by the town of Killingly, after tax liens had been placed by the town and disregarded by Charles R. Kapstein, of Providence, owner of what is known as the Whitestone mill property, East Killingly.

The judgment is not a large one, amounting to $599, and was obtained in the superior court at Willimantic this week, when Attorney E. L. Darbie appeared as town counsel. Unless the judgment is paid in the meantime, the property will be sold at public auction, under authority of the court, that the town may collect what is due to it on tax assessments of 1922, 1923 and 1924. Taxes on the property under lists filed in October, 1925, also are unpaid, but the amount due on this current list is not included in the judgment obtained this week, that being an additional incumberance on the property, now little more than a ruin, though there is a valuable water privilege and a water wheel of considerable worth.

Sunday night, December 3, 1922, the mill was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. Some time prior to that it had been acquired by Mr. Kapstein at a public sale at a nominal price and he had installed some machinery and was getting ready to operate on an extensive scale when the conflagration put an end to his plans. The mill, a four-story stone structure, built about 1857-58, and with an interesting history, was completely gutted and the stone walls crumbled and toppled over under the intense heat. The ruins stand as they were after the fire. Mr. Kapstein collected a generous amount of insurance to cover his loss and since has allowed the property to stand idle.

From time to time Mr. Kapstein has been notified by officials of the town that foreclosure proceedings were contemplated. On each of such occasions he would write and inquire as to the amount of the taxes due, but never paid. Finally, the town considered further delay out of the question and the foreclosure action was brought to a head, and it is the first action of the kind, insofar as can be recalled, for many years.

Considering the water privilege, the water wheel and other assets of the property, competent judges rate its value at far more than the judgment the town has obtained. If Mr. Kapstein does not pay before August, the property will be offered to the highest bidder from the auction block.

WATER SERVICE OF TOWN IS BEING EXTENDED

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 3.—Gradually the Crystal Water company in extending new and larger mains from its reservoirs near East Killingly into Danielson center is progressing. This work was undertaken last year, between Elmvale and Judd avenue, and now concerns the replacing of six-inch mains through Mechanic street with a line of ten-inch main, that the central section of the borough may have not only an adequate supply of water for all ordinary needs, but an abundance ample to meet emergencies. The new line of mains now reached through Mechanic street as far south as Oak street, where a gate was being put in Thursday. Eventually this line will be extended down to Academy street, then through that street as far east as School street and then again, southerly, through School street.

Tax Collector James R. Walsh will file today, June 4, his final accounting of collections during that period between April 19 and May 19, that marks the greatest activity of the entire year in garnering from taxpayers the money assessed against them by the town each year. This final report will show that the collections to date are the greatest up to this time of any fiscal year in the history of the town, and amount to approximately $113,000, including a small percentage of taxes due on lists of other years—back taxes. This year's list under the current tax rate will raise, roughly, $125,000. Mr. Walsh will be concerned from now on with the collection of these overdue accounts—and interest at the rate of nine per cent per annum.

A colorful invitation dance and entertainment was given Thursday evening by the Danielson Girls' club. A representative of the state organization and guests had a delightful evening. In addition to the dancing there was special entertainment. Refreshments were served.

Efforts that have been made here the past few days to arouse enthusiasm for a general observance of the Fourth in Danielson has met with no great response. It would appear that the Fourths of happy memory when Danielson celebrated in old-fashioned style are gone at least temporarily. It seems that there are too many outside attractions nowadays, and that transportation to them, over any reasonable distance, is both ample and comparatively inexpensive.

An organization that Danielson hears little about during the course of any year, yet one with a real mission, is electing its officers for another 12 months today (Friday) when it meets with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby of Academy street. This is the Good Samaritan association. It is closely allied with the Civic federation through its membership and intent to do good for unfortunate humanity and through all of the many years it has been in existence has compiled a record of good works from which nothing has been detracted by the meagreness of the publicity it has received. Nor has the association sought to broadcast anything relatives to the good it has done. It has labored effectively and its reward is the appreciation of those who have been its beneficiaries.

Four new disc wheels for the Captain Put pumper have arrived here and are at the central fire station. When tires that are expected at once are pressed onto these wheels they will be mounted on the big piece of fire apparatus, replacing the artillery type of wheels with which the machine was equipped when it was received here in 1918, and which have been in use ever since.

Repairs of considerable importance have been undertaken at the Danielson inn, which was damaged a bit by fire a few weeks ago. The work now underway includes reshingling of certain parts of the structure, which has been in use here as a hotel for approximately half a century.

HOT WATER BOTTLE HOLDS HOOCH, IN PLAYER-PIANO

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 3.—Illicit liquor has been found in about every kind of household utensil from the stove-pipe to the kerosene can, but an original hiding place was uncovered in a raid at the home of Joseph Jaklukiewicz, of 116 Chapman street, early Thursday evening. Moonshine was found in a rubber hot water bottle hidden inside of a player-piano. Capt. of Police Frank McLean with Officers Arthur Hurley, Daniel Connell, Leo Piche and Pete Marrotte made up the raiding crew. As they entered the house a woman started to pour liquor from a jar into the sink but she was stopped while there was still about a pint of liquor left in the container. Officer Hurley was attracted to a piano by a peculiar smell which he knew did not come from roses and upon looking inside the instrument, fished out the hot water bottle. Jaklukiewicz will be in police court Friday morning on charges of reputation and keeping with intent to sell. He was convicted about seven weeks ago on a liquor charge.

PUTNAM

THE CITY COUNCIL ACTS TO END FALSE FIRE ALARMS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 3—There have been so many false fire alarms of late that the city council has offered a reward of $25 for information leading to the conviction of any one for that offense. In the past few weeks there have been several calls to which the department responded only to find that there was no fire, and that no one could be located who had sent in the call. An alarm from one of the boxes in Ward Two two weeks ago is reported to have been turned in by an occupant of a motor car with a Rhode Island registry plate.

R. E Thurston, head of the fire department, thinks that there is imperative need for some substantial improvements. He favors a new Central fire station for the combined pump and chemical and hose truck, and the hook and ladder truck. He also thinks that the fire alarm telegraph plant should be located in a separate, fire-proof building, and that the hook and ladder truck should be replaced with a new one or rebuilt, and he does not greatly favor the rebuilding.

FIRST NAT'L BANK CONDITION ENCOURAGES DEPOSITORS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 3—An encouraging situation at the First National bank of this city, which failed in August, 1924, is revealed in the last quarterly report to the treasury department at Washington by Receiver George M. Coffin.

There are no wremaining liabilities totaling $595,593.13, to pay which there are uncollected assets and cash aggregating $829,718.13. Of course, the remaining uncollected assets are perhaps the hardest to collect, but the showing given out inspires hope to the depositors.

CAN YOU SWIM?

In Larchmont harbor two men who were sleeping in a small boat, a yacht tender, were forced to dive overboard and swim to shore when awakened by a fire on the tender. They made the several hundred feet to shore in spite of burns about their faces and hands. They were fortunate in being able to swim.

We have reached the season of the year when many more people are going to be in and about the water than during the winter and spring. There will be more in boats including canoes it may not be that there is danger of fire in the small craft, but it is no secret as to what may happen at any time in a canoe, especially if those inside do not understand such cockleshells or do not respect the danger involved. It is highly important that everyone who goes canoeing should know how to swim.

All that is needed now is some warm weather in order to find large numbers going to rivers, ponds and seashore to take a dip. There will be those who can swim and there will be those who can not and there will be those eager to imitate the swimmers. The disposition is to disregard the danger, to get into the water beyond one's depth, to incur risks without knowing how to swim or while learning.

It should not be inferred that it is the non-swimmer alone who takes chances, for many swimmers are drowned and many swimmers indulge in that dangerous practice of diving into too shallow water with fatal results. But with the season at hand when so many more will be in and about the water, and when so many drownings are apt to be reported it should awaken an increased interest in being able to swim, and thereby to provide that protection which the two men aboard the burning boat in the Larchmont harbor found so valuable in an emergency.

Do you know how to swim?

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

The drunken automobile driver is just as dangerous in Connecticut as he is in any other state. It is a menace to highway users from the time he takes hold of the wheel until he leaves it and it is not in any way unusual that there should be a demand for imposing punishment in such cases that would protect the careful driver and serve to reduce a generally acknowledge danger.

In the state of Massachusetts the drunken driver has been the object of attack by the registrar of motor vehicles for the past several years. He has not hesitated to point out the specific instances where the courts have failed to do their duty to the public, where prosecutors have failed and where more consideration has been given to the public menace than to public safety.

Conditions in Rhode Island have given rise to the state safety conference declaring that one drunken driver is a greater menace than a dozen sober men, and it has been shown that the manner in which the drunken driver cases are treated acts as no discouragement for, as the Providence Bulletin points out, the record of cases and prosecutions during March show that the average driver "is fined only about one third of what the court could fine him and is jailed for only one twelfth of what the court could jail him."

Under such conditions, with the menace of the drunken driver real and not imaginary, it is logical that there should be a demand for the courts to have a greater regard for their duty and to see that through their work a greater protection will be thrown about the traveling public. In these days with highway conditions what they are it is only proper that the person holding the wheel, stepping on the gas and using the brake should be in full possession of his faculties. Even then he will have trouble enough taking care of himself and respecting the rights of the other fellow.

PEACE PREVAILS

Peace often bobs up when not expected, although it is bound to be welcomed most any time. For months fighting has been going on in Morocco and Syria. When it seemed as if the peace efforts were going to fail in the former and it would be necessary to go through a long drawn out struggle of suppression, the inevitable was recognized and surrender of the rebels quickly followed. Almost as suddenly the dove of peace settled over Syria after the French had encountered much difficulty in pacifying the tribes and awakened no little criticism because of methods employed.

While such an outcome in both of those instances was to be expected in time it meant much that no further bloodshed was necessary. But the spirit of peace seems to have prevailed also in connection with the dispute which has prevailed too long between the British and the Turks over the inclusion of Irak in the territory over which the British have the mandate.

Efforts to get a settlement through the league of nations was unsuccessful. The Turks refused to abide by the investigating committee's report. That was a big disappointment for it was regarded as a test case for the league, although the folly of Turkey rushing into war with Great Britain as threatened, was fully understood. When the matter was turned back to the channels of diplomacy predictions were rife that results would be obtained. Those predictions were correct. Diplomacy has been able to effect peace. Turkey yields after being assured a certain royalty from the oil fields of the Irak region, but the outstanding feature is that peace has been accomplished, but feelings can be expected to disappear and something besides fighting can be contemplated. Peace has its satisfaction for all concerned.

OIL POLLUTION

Next week there will open in Washington a conference for the consideration of oil pollution. It will be an international gathering for the discussion of means by which the practice of dumping oil waste in harbors or where it will eventually be thrown up on the shores and become a nuisance or a menace to health can be stopped.

It is not a new proposition. Indignation has been growing against the practice and protests have been numerous. To get rid of the waste the easiest way is to throw it overboard. That might be all right if that was all that was involved, but it isn't. Such waste not only kills sea life, but damages and endangers vessels and is a decided nuisance along the shores to which about a fifth of what is thrown overboard at New York, estimated at 500 tons a year in that harbor alone each year, floats.

Some better method of disposing of such waste must be possible. Even the study which the representatives of the various nations have given the problem there ought to be no serious difficulty involved in requiring ships passing with such waste to dispose of it would conform to regulations, and if it is possible to make use of such refuse to see that it is employed in that way rather than as a nuisance and a menace.

DEADLY WORK.

"You smiled at him," insisted the jealous young man with a grievance, who intended to air his objections thoroughly, once for all. "And it wasn't so much the smile as the—er—kind of smile, you know, that I didn't like, Algeria! I——"

"What kind of smile do you like?" inquired the pretty girl, reasonably enough, with an air of complete and polite innocence.

"I—why, what I like has nothing to do with it!" declared the jealous young man, positively. "I should think you should know that! The kind of smile I might like isn't at all the sort I'd like to have you scatter around promiscuously on other people, and especially people such as Howcomb Thatway! He——"

"I don't see why you should cut Howcomb off from any pleasure he might get out of life," objected the pretty girl. "It looks to me as though you were discriminating against him."

"No such thing," the young man told her, violently. "Next thing you'll be saying I am jealous of him! I have nothing at all against Howcomb, and you should know it. I was coming along through the hall and I must say it was a shock to me to see the way you were looking at each other."

"What manner?"

The young man began walking up and down and running his fingers through his hair. "It seems to me that you are trying to make this very hard," he objected. "I am merely trying to tell you kindly that you are giving Howcomb an entirely wrong impression by looking at him as I saw you look the other day! And you know perfectly well that you are engaged to me."

"And so there can't be any one else visible to me but you. Is that it?" asked the pretty girl, with the patient air of endeavoring her best to acquire his meaning.

"Heavens, no!" protested the jealous young man. "If I am anything I hope I am broadminded and reasonable and all that—and it seems to me you are not taking this in the right spirit, Algeria! You had your hand on his coatsleeve, too——"

"I was taking off a thread," she explained gently, with the eyes of a wounded dove. "When a girl sees a thread or anything like that on anybody it is a perfectly automatic reaction, taking it off, you know! I had just a perfectly natural expression on my face——"

"That's just it!" declared the young man sternly. "You've looked at me like that hundreds of times, and that's why it didn't seem right——"

"I might practice looking unnatural, I suppose," the pretty girl mused. "It might be good fun! Whenever any man but you appeared I could drag down the ends of my mouth and make my face wrinkle all up and squint my eyes."

"I don't like your levity," he told her.

"If you weren't so vague, Howard, this talk might do me good," said the pretty girl. "There is nothing clear at all about your woe and I don't see how it is possible for me to reform. The more I think about it the more I am convinced that we've made a mistake, and I don't believe we ever could be happy together, especially if I am likely to spend my life trying to stop smiling at other people, and so here's your ring——"

"Algeria!" barked the jealous young man, backing away from the diamond. "You don't—you can't—I didn't mean—oh, Algeria, you wouldn't make me so unhappy! I knew the minute I saw you look at him that you were crazy about him. You're just grabbing at this for an excuse——"

"Anyhow, it'll give you something else to think about, Howard," the pretty girl told him sweetly, dropping the ring into his pocket. "And keeping in a rut is so bad for the brain—your course in psychology should have told you that, Howard! I've got to go now because I've promised Howcomb——"

But the jealous young man with a sort of howl dashed out into the atmosphere and the pretty girl, with a relieved sigh, as though she was mentally dusting her hands, stepped off in a sprightly way, looking as though some kind of smile was just about ready to appear.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Robert Owen, the Saddler's Boy, the Great Reformer

One of the interesting things about poor boys who have grown into great men is that almost every one of them has made some effort to give help to others who may be in need of just such help in order to rise to positions of much they can do great good for humanity. This common characteristic of generosity and helpfulness is one of the most beautiful attributes of many great men. One poor boy grew into a man who devoted his life to an effort to relieve the world of poverty. That was Robert Owen.

When Robert Owen was a boy he knew what it is to be poor. His father was a [illegible] and iron worker, and dealt in horse equipment and iron [illegible]. Robert was able to go to school [illegible] three years, and all his schooling came to an end when he had reached the age of nine. For a long time he worked with a cloth dealer and learned all about cloth. Through [illegible] he made he found an opening as head of a cotton factory [illegible] hundred people came [illegible]. He eagerly took [illegible] and discovered that he not [illegible] but that he also had [illegible] people. He won [illegible] his employers, introduced [illegible] of work, and made [illegible] into big factory. He [illegible] was that life can be made [illegible] mechanical, too dependent upon [illegible] machinery. In New Harmony, Ind., he [illegible] a town that should be governed [illegible] principles. There and elsewhere he was disappointed in his efforts to lead people into happiness and he lost much of the money that he had made. IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William B. George, who celebrates his 60th birthday anniversary today, is probably the only man in contemporary history who has the supreme right of voting any of the legislative acts of a "republic within a republic." Mr. George is the founder of the George Junior Republics, and he it is to the credit of the citizens of the domains that he is seldom called upon to exercise his prerogative. It was in the early '90s that he first became interested in the welfare of poor children in New York city. Becoming convinced that the large number endeavoring to live on charity, in 1894 he conceived a plan or requiring payment in labor for everything the children received and in addition instituted self-government. From these reforms came the idea of the Junior Republic, first put in operation at Freeville, N. Y., in 1895, and which now has branches in many parts of the states.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In Tobacco and Onion Fields

Mr. Editor: How many of the mothers of Connecticut know that while children 14 and 15 years of age working must have employment certificates, children under 14 are not required to have any, hence they are free to be exploited in the tobacco and onion fields. According to recent study made by the childrens bureau over one half of the 1109 children working in the Connecticut tobacco and onion fields were under 14 years of age. These children worked from 7 to 12 and 1 to 5. It is one thing for these children to work on their parents fields and quite another to work for corporations nine hours a day, with only one hour for dinner and rest. They are treated like beasts that have the same time for eating and rest. What do these children do? The boys usually pick the tobacco leaves the girl sewing or stringing, which means all day standing string 20 pairs of leaves to each lathe. Onions are raised in the same region and the two crops dove-tail so well that these children pass from one kind to the other. The main work is weeding, this involves crawling on their hands and knees along the rows. We can plainly see that all during the summer days when these children should be laying up their strength to begin their school life in the autumn are compelled to be standing or crawling on their hands and knees for nine hours, six days in the week. This is the most critical age for girls. Are we living in the dark ages? It would seem that we were on the perilous edges of it. It is very easy to see why Connecticut voted against the child labor amendment at The hope for the future welfare of these children lies in the fact that the Federated Women's clubs now in convention at Atlantic City have voted for a child labor amendment. It cannot be possible that the mother heart of the nation can be blind to such injustice to the children. The Federated Women's clubs also struck the right note when Mrs. A. A. Packard of Massachusetts said: "Only rely on can [illegible] mankind from the law of the [illegible] It must not be religion as an [illegible] action or matter of sects, but religion as a mighty law and principle of [illegible]."

How much longer must we wait for this kind of religion to permeate the hearts of the men and women of Connecticut, to put on the statute books of their state a law that will protect the childhood from such barberous exploitation by greedy corporations. Let us hope that the women, who represented Conn., at this great convention in Atlantic City were roused to a sense of their duty and will return to shoulder their responsibility for the care of these helpless children. Surely the liberal blood in their veins must boil with indignation when they think of those little girls standing or crawling on their hands and knees, nine hours a day all through the hot summer days! We women can not say we have no responsibility in this case—we have the vote, which is all powerful and share the responsibility with the men.

"What is that to thee? Follow thou me." Christ took the little children in his arms and blessed them. Can we as Christains do anything less?

Stories That Recall Others

A Serviceable Cold

The pupils had been on good behavior as long as they could stand it. A rather timid bought some chemical but could not bring himself to open it. One, who loved to be the hero of the hour said he would do it. The stage was all set and the teacher went out of the room at a fitting time.

Such keen attention was given when she returned that she realized something either had or was about to happen. Time passed but she could detect nothing. Finally, as his hand held his nostrils one boy spoke out: "We can't stand it any longer. May the windows be opened?"

"Can't stand what?" asked the teacher.

Then it dawned on all of them. They were the victims of their own joke. The teacher had a cold class continued to the end of the period to the consternation of the pupils and the outward chuckling of the teacher.

A Pure Regard

Two little girls, city bred, had been taught a prayer. In it were the words: "May the souls of the faithful departed rest in peace." As they were saying it one evening before retiring their mother overheard them. They said: "May the souls of the fire department rest in peace."

Gain Firm Flesh This New Way

Graceful Figures for Women and Fine Physiques for Men.

To gain weight, to maintain weight and firm flesh and healthy muscle, your body must get the elements usually lacking in our daily food.

It has been proven that these elements are the wonder-working vitamins and the organic plant salts of phosphorous, iron, and lime, but only as they are found in Nature, like in fresh vegetables and Cod Liver Extract. In drug form they are not absorbed by your body and do you no good.

Everybody knows that Cod Livers are full of all these body and health-building food factors. But its nasty, fishy taste has prevented most people from enjoying its benefits.

But now Science has found the way to include the life-giving elements of Cod Livers into pleasant-tasting tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

They have done wonders for thousands of thin, weak, run-down people everywhere. Many people have gained 15 to 20 pounds within a month. In fact, they have been so remarkable in their results that you can get them at Lee & Osgood or your favorite druggist—60 tablets for 60 cents, with a specific guarantee that if you do not add at least five pounds of sound, healthy flesh after taking them for thirty days, your money is to be immediately refunded. Don't drug yourself in the hope of getting well. Give Nature a chance. Take McCoy's Tablets and see how much better you feel after just a few days' treatment.

The Inevitable

I like the man who faces what he must
With step triumphant and a heart of cheer;
Who fights the daily battle without fear;
Sees his hopes fail, yet keeps unfaltering trust
That God is God—that somehow, true and just
His plans work out for mortals; not a tear
Is shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp—better, with love, a crust
Than living in dishonor; envies not
Nor loses faith in man; but does his best
Nor ever murmurs at his humbler lot;
But, with a smile and words of hope, gives zest
To every toiler. He alone is great
Who by a life heroic conquors fate.

Johnny Takes Jimmy's Advice

Troubles you will always find
Are very largely in your mind.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy ought to know. He has very few troubles. He goes through life minding his own business and not worrying in the least. The result is that he has very little trouble. Those who try to make trouble for him usually find that they are the ones who are in trouble and that Jimmy's peace of mind isn't even disturbed. "If you don't carry your troubles around in your mind, you won't carry them at all," says Jimmy.

Johnny Chuck certainly was feeling a whole lot better after Jimmy Skunk's visit. He was almost [illegible] as he watched Jimmy Skunk amble away to look for some fat beetles. When Jimmy was out of sight Johnny sat up on his doorstep to look around. "It's too late to go anywhere tonight," said Johnny. "I'll have to be here and I ought to be in bed. But tomorrow will be another day. I half believe that Jimmy Skunk is right. I wonder I didn't think of it before. If he is right, why there's nothing to worry about and I may as well have a good time while I can. I have found Polly Chuck a little fussy sometimes. She seems to think I ought to do what she wants to do and generally I do. It's easier to get along that way. But now I can do just what I please, and she won't know anything about it. I certainly will do a little looking around tomorrow."

So Johnny Chuck went to bed in his hole under the old stone wall and for the first time since he had been there his dreams were pleasant. He dreamed that he didn't have a care in the world. The result was that when he awoke early the next morning he awoke in the best of tempers. The day before everything had been all wrong when he awoke. This morning everything was just right. The air was just cool enough for comfortable walking; there was just dew enough on the grass to make his feet feel good; the clover was just exactly right—just sweet enough; he never had heard his feathered friends sing so sweetly. Johnny actually tried to cock up his little back heels. Yes sir, that's what he did. Welcome Robin, who happened to see him just then, laughed right out. Johnny looked up at him and winked. Welcome Robin was so astonished that he sat there and stared foolishly for a few minutes. Then he hurried to tell the news to all the rest of the people in the Old Orchard. As soon as they heard that Johnny Chuck was his old happy self they all hurried over to say hello to him. The Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind rumpled up his hair and pulled his whiskers. Johnny laughed. He liked it. "Do it some more," he cried, and the Merry Little Breezes did.

Not once did Johnny Chuck look over to see if Polly Chuck was sitting on the doorstep of their old home. Instead, after breakfast he scrambled over the old stone wall and went exploring. There was some places along the edge of the Green Forest that Johnny had always intended to visit, but never had. Polly Chuck always had warned him that he would be foolish to think of doing such a thing, because he might get into trouble of some sort. Now he would do it and there would be no one to stop him. He rather hoped that Polly saw him climb over that old stone wall and the direction he took, but he didn't look back to see.

All that day Johnny Chuck did those things that he wanted to do and left undone those things that he didn't want to do. In short, he did some things that he knew were foolish, and he did them because they were foolish. He felt foolish doing foolish things and it tickled him to do them with no one to stop him. He wandered about wherever and whenever he wanted to. He had adventures. He got his coat muddy. He even spent the night in a strange place. In short, Johnny became a sort of tramp. He was taking Jimmy Skunk's advice and following it, and he was having a perfectly good time doing it.

CHILD TRAINING

Small Sons and Parental Team-Work

Ada Kyle Lynch

Mahlon Moore was eleven years old, and his brother James was seven. Mahlon and his chums had a baseball team that Jimmie was anxious to join.

"Aw," scoffed Mahlon, "you're too little. You couldn't throw a ball so a fellow could hit it!"

That night Mrs. Moore noticed that Jimmie was very quiet, and asked him if he was not well.

"I'm all right, Mother," he replied, but his answer given in an absent-minded way, troubled her.

After she had heard his evening prayer and tucked him into bed, she partly closed the door and stood outside wondering if she should go back to see if he was all right when she heard him get out of bed. In a moment she heard him say: "Please, God, help me grow big fast, so I can join Mahlon's team and throw the ball so they can hit it."

Back he clambered into bed, and Mother heard him say as he snuggled down: "There, now I'll grow fast."

Slowly she went down to her husband.

"Daddy Moore, we have a problem; let's get the answer," she said and then told him the story.

At about ten days from that time, Jimmie had a birthday and some of his chums were invited to help him celebrate. As it was so important a day Mr. Moore left his office to be with them for an hour.

"Boys," said Mr. Moore as he came in, "how would you like to have a game of baseball?" Vigorous clapping of hands met this question. Just then an expressman drove up and a moment later brought in a large package. It was addressed to James Archibald Moore, Captain of the Winner Baseball Team.

Now Jimmie was the only "James Archibald" in that family, so he was told to open the package. In it were gloves, bat, ball—indeed everything to please the heart of a baseball lover. Down to the vacant lot the merry party went, and there a happy coincidence was discovered. There were just enough for a perfect team!

"Boys," said Mr. Moore, "here is a plan you may like to follow. Let James be the first captain because this is his birthday. Let him be captain until the next boy on the team has a birthday, and so on through the team. Fortunately, your birthdays all come in moderate weather, I have learned, and a few weeks apart. Each captain should name his 'officers' and the boys serving with Jimmie step out when the new birthday comes and so on, in order that all may have a chance to help make the team a success."

Just then Mahlon and his team came up. "May we play, too?" said Mahlon to his father.

"No, Mahlon, you are all too big," answered Mr. Moore. The brothers exchanged glances, and Mahlon remembered his "Aw, you're too little." Sometimes to be "too big" can be as great a handicap as to be "too little" was the lesson Mahlon learned from that answer.

That night Mrs. Moore deliberately listened outside her small son's door.

Soon she heard: "O, God, never mind about helping me grow fast. I have a baseball team of my own. Amen."

OBITUARY

Rev. William S. Oakley.
(Contributed.)

The sudden death of Rev. William S. Oakley, pastor of Leffingwell Baptist church, has brought sorrow to the community, where he was highly esteemed by everyone.

Exceedingly broad-minded in his ministry, he was mainly concerned that men should find and love the eternal God. As he had known temptation and sorrow in his own life, so he was able to give sympathy and comfort to those who were in trouble. He was especially successful in his work with the young people. Into the B. Y. P. U. he had gathered nearly every young person in the neighborhood. Under his direction they were conducting the meetings which were most interesting and helpful. They were doing most of the work themselves and the results were far-reaching. In the school league he had played a prominent part, and there, too, he will be greatly missed. He has fought the good fight, he has finished his course, henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness.

Dr. John W. Kenney

John W. Kenney, D. D. S., 49, died suddenly Wednesday in his automobile near his home on Washington avenue, Northampton, Mass. His wife, formerly Miss Rose Tarrant of this city, was with him at the time, and his brother, Dr. Thomas H. Kenney was driving the machine. Dr. and Mrs. Kenney were on their way to a theatre when he was taken ill with acute indigestion. He stopped at a drug store and Mrs. Kenney called his brother who started to drive the doctor and his wife back home.

On the way Dr. Kenney said he was becoming dizzy and within a short distance of his home he died. He was a native of Pittsfield, Mass., and was graduated from the Pittsfield high school and Philadelphia Dental school. He was a member of the Northampton lodge of Elks and had practised his profession for about 30 years.

Surviving are his wife, four children, John, Richard, Rosemary and Robert Kenney, two sisters, Mrs. William Plunkett of New York, and Miss Margaret Kenney of Pittsfield, a brother, Dr. Thomas H. Kenney of Northampton and his mother. Dr. Kenney and family were summer visitors at Groton Long Point and he was well and favorably known to many Norwich people.

URGES THAT NORWICH WAKE UP FROM DRIFTING

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club at the Wauregan hotel drew the usual large attendance. President William A. Anderson presided and Earl Tagart was the song leader, Louis M. Crandall was the five minute speaker and gave an interesting talk on Co-operation. President Anderson presented as the speaker, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church.

In the course of his address Rev. Mr. Abbott mentioned the events occurring at the last town meeting, the new school house, the allotments for community purposes, all of which were done by a few more than 400 citizens in the town meeting. He analyzed the opposition to the adoption of those events as of three classes, those constitutionally opposed to any project, those opposed to it on financial grounds and those opposed to it on sectional grounds. In discussing his subject he stated that in matter of population Norwich had gained 6,500 in the last 30 years, an average of 216 per year. In the matter of industrial expansion he said, this being an industrial community, growth, decay or marking time must be measured in terms of the community's industrial life. He described the general economic situation, the housing situation, the mercantile situation and the cultural reaction. Two general evidences of the public inertia caused by the aforenamed factors were the failure of charter revision and the failure of adopting a thoroughgoing method for immediate tax equalization. He suggested four definite things to eradicate the process of "Marking Time," as, 1, The Change from a Dual Community to a Single Community; 2, Thoroughgoing Tax Equalization; 3, Charter Revision, and named as the fourth, the following two concrete suggestions toward bringing these things to pass: the formation of an inclusive group of men and women to study the community with a determination to advance it and the concentration of the public press on the problems raised by such study.

The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address after which the meeting closed in the usual form.

SAYS SHE WAS PINNED AGAINST TREE BY PARADIS' AUTOMOBILE

Before Judge Earnest C. Simpson and a jury in the superior court here Thursday the trial was begun in two suits brought against Joseph Paradis of Taftville by Mrs. Lucy Shalkowski, wife of Aleck Shalkowski, of 92 Boswell avenue, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Blanche Shalkowski of Lisbon. Damages of $10,000 are asked in each case for injuries sustained by the two women when they were struck by the Paradis automobile on the Newent road at the corner where a road leads to the shooting club on the night of Sunday, May 24, 1925.

Mrs. Lucy Shalkowski was pinned up against a tree, she testified, two bones in her right leg above the ankle were broken and she was in the hospital from May 24 to July 6. The baby she was carrying in her arms at the time was knocked out of her arms but was not hurt. It was picked up by Mrs. Blanche Shalkowski, who carried it to the home of her father nearby, but fainted as she reached the house. Mrs. Blanche Shalkowski, who is the wife of Bronislaw Shalkowski, testified that she was hit in the back by the Paradis machine.

The testimony of the two women was that the night was rainy and that they had been visiting at the home of their father, who lives on the road to the shooting club. About 10 o'clock they left to go home, Mrs. Lucy Shalkowski was carrying the baby and her two little girls accompanied her with Mrs. Blanche Shalkowski. As they reached the corner, where they came to the Newent road, Mrs. Blanche Shalkowski said they walked by the side of the road and off the tarred surface. She felt something hit her in the back and heard her sister-in-law scream. She saw the baby on the ground with its head against the wheel of the automobile and she picked it up and carried it back to her father's house, where she fainted. She described the effect of the injuries she had received and said she is so nervous and subject to dizzy spells that she has been afraid to go back to her work at the Ponemah mill, where she earned $16.31 a week as a warper. She is afraid of falling into the machinery if she should have a dizzy spell come on.

When Mrs. Lucy Shalkowski was called on to testify an interpreter was sworn in, but Judge Simpson had the interpreter withdrawn when Mrs. Shalkowski began to answer questions without waiting for them to be interpreted to her.

Aleck Shalkowski, the husband of the plaintiff, testified that he was walking some distance ahead of her when she was hit by the Paradis machine. He said he was obliged to stay away from his work for 13 weeks in order to be at home and take care of the four children in the family and do the housework. He had also paid a woman $38 for work she did at the house and had spent $50 for medicine. He said he expected his wife to pay this back to him.

Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher explained a plan and pictures of the location of the accident and medical testimony was given by Drs. W. T. Driscoll, J. W. Callahan and R. R. Agnew.

When court opened for the afternoon session, considerable time was spent in an attempt at settlement, but this proved futile and the trial was resumed. Attorney Thomas M. Shields is counsel for the plaintiffs, Brown and James for the defendant.

The plaintiff rested at 2:22 and the defendant, Joseph Paradis, was called to the stand. He testified that he was driving the machine and was not traveling faster than six or seven miles an hour. He was intending to turn into the shooting club road, he said, and was unfamiliar with this corner. Mitchell Glaube, who was riding with him, also testified, saying that they were driving slowly as it had taken them an hour to come from Jewett City.

The trial will be taken up again next Tuesday morning. The following is the jury in the case: John H. Powelson, Norwich; Appleton Main, Robert A. Peckham, William McKelvey, Preston; Patrick F. Driscoll, Griswold; J. Lee Gardner, Albert B. Kenyon, Ledyard; Frank B. Miner, North Stonington; Ernest E. Smith, Franklin; Charles F. Charon, Sprague; Harry Resnick, Lisbon; Edward H. DeWolf, Salem.

BROTHERHOOD OUTING WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The annual outing of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church was held Thursday afternoon at Camp Tippecanoe, Beach pond, Voluntown. After going from the state highway the balloon tired autos easily held the right of way and Dr. H. B. Campbell and J. A. French were the first arrivals, who after striking the high spots, brought the party to the camp about four o'clock.

After the important work of lighting the campfire, bringing water and starting the chowder was accomplished the men proceeded to unbend in the lighter work of baseball and fishing.

Two nines captained by Deacon Cary and Dr. Urquhart started the heavy artillery, both "at random" and "at will," according to the definitions in the light arms firing manual. The principal features of the game were the long drives of Harold Robbins and Walter Lester, the ability of Rev. Mr. Abbott to drop his flies into the right hand service court and the habitual difference of opinion between Capt. Cary and the base line umpire. Special patrolman, No. 20049, Jean Kieffer (fisherman's badge), kept perfect order among the spectators. Without listing the disabled and the missing, the members at the end of the barrage were:

Dr. Urquhart, captain, Mr. Buchanan, Harold Robbins, Rev. A. H. Abbott, Chas. Smith, Arthur Crowell, W. S. Williams.

Deacon H. B. Cary, captain, Deacon W. F. Lester, Mr. Partuns, Oscar Mosessian, L. Sterritt, Richard Peale.

Umpires, Joseph French A. L. Peale.

The final diagnosis of the score was 24 to 18 but the two scorers were divided in their opinion as to which patient had the higher temperature.

Three cheers were given Pres. Hugh Campbell, acting chairman of entertainment committe, Joe French and Supreme High Chef John Jencks for making the 1926 outing such a pronounced success.

DRIVERS ARE WARNED AGAINST GIVING "LIFTS"

With the nearing of the summer season and its accompanying increase in the use of automobiles throughout the state, the Connecticut committee on public service information has issued a bit advice to motorists against the danger of giving "lifts" to "ride-jackers" or that type of people who line the highways seeking to avoid the payment of trolley fares by asking free transportation from passing drivers.

While an empty rear seat may seem a waste of space which might just as well be filled by some one seeking a ride, nevertheless the motorist who fills the vacant space with some stranger is legally liable for any accident or injury occurring to his passenger, according to high court rulings. Cases have often occurred in this state in which motorists have lost large sums of money in damage suits brought by some stranger whom they befriended by giving a "lift" and who was later injured in an accident. One recent case is on record in which the parents of a child sued a driver who had kindly carried the child home from school only to have her lose a finger by catching it in the door of the car.

Many truck owners in Pittsfield, Mass., according to the committee, are now placing huge signs on their trucks bearing the words "No Passengers." These truck owners have learned by experience the danger of having their drivers pick up people who seek to avoid trolley fares. The signs make it easier for the drivers to refuse rides. One nationally known oil company now carries similar signs on its trucks.

Motion to Set Aside Verdict

A motion to set aside the verdict for $4,711.83 in favor of the plaintiff, returned Wednesday in this city by a jury in the superior court before Judge Earnest C. Simpson, in the case of Jacob Solomon against Harry M. Shalett, both of New London was filed late Wednesday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court by Attorney John C. Geary of the firm of Geary, Davis & Keefe, counsel for the defendant.

WILL SHOW JEWISH WOMAN'S WORK AT SESQUICENTENNIAL

Jewish Woman's work in America is to be featured by the National council of Jewish women at the Philadelphia sesquicentennial international exposition. The National council of Jewish Women will be represented by its exhibits featuring the contribution that has been made to the life of America by Jewish womanhood of this land, working through the National council of Jewish Women. Among the activities that will be vividly portrayed are its work at the ports in welcoming the emigrants, its citizenship classes, its health and scholarship program among the children of the public schools, its vacation camps to build vigorous motherhood, boyhood and girlhood, its work on the farms and in the rural districts in developing a growing Jewish farmer group, its civic program and the preparation of its own members for intelligent participation in political affairs. The exhibits will also present the comprehensive philanthropic program of the council in the cities of the United States as well as its religious and cultural activities. The National council of Jewish Women has participated in many of the most significant expositions held in the United States. It was awarded a gold medal for the effectiveness of its exhibit at Jamestown's exhibition in 1907. In the very same year it was given a similar recognition at the Paris exposition. These exhibits were arranged during the incumbency of Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon of Chicago as the organization's first president. A second recognition in America came from the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco in 1915. During the presidency of Mrs. Nathaniel E. Harris of Bradford, Pa., this exhibit, which had been arranged by Miss Rose Brenner of Brooklyn, N. Y., past president of the National council of Jewish Women, was also awarded a gold medal.

The exhibit at the sesquicentennial international exposition in Philadelphia will also feature several new activities that have been undertaken since its last public exhibit at any exposition. The participation of the council in Philadelphia exposition recalls the interesting fact that its birth took place at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, where the congress of Jewish Women assembled under the leadership of Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon for the world's parliament of religion.

JARVIS BLANKS STONINGTON HIGH WITH ONLY TWO SCATTERED HITS

Pitching airtight ball and allowing the Stonington team only two hits Lloyd Jarvis pitched the Academy to a 12 to 0 victory over Stonington in a league game at the Academy Campus Thursday afternoon. Only 28 men faced Jarvis in the nine innings and only twice did a Stonington player get as far as second base, once in the sixth and again in the ninth inning on an error by Goldblatt and a hit to right field. Jarvis fanned ten men and passed two.

While Jarvis was master of the situation in the field his teammates pounded Roever the Stonington southpaw for 16 hits which included a home run by Captain Jerry Burke. Every man on the Academy team hit safely at least once and Ray Yerrington led the attack with four hits, three singles and a double. Burke had three hits to his credit in four times at bat.

The Academy team played a nice fielding game in back of Jarvis executing two double plays, one in the second inning and one in the ninth which cut off Stonington's only chance of scoring. Roever proved no puzzle to the Academy hitters who pasted his offerings to all corners of the lot and aided by eight errors the Academy pushed 13 runs across the plate.

The Academy opened the scoring in the first inning when errors by Levanti and Burnham allowed Cimikoski and Sadinsky to get to third and second from where they were scored ahead of Burke who poled out a home run to deep left field. Yerrington singled and went to second on the wild throw by Roever and scored on Mish's hit to left field. This ended the scoring for the Academy.

The fourth inning was a big one for the Academy when five runs scored. Johnny Greene opened the inning by driving the ball to Levanti who booted it and Greene was safe. Greene stole second and went to third on Cimikoski's single. Sadinsky fanned but Jarvis hit for two bags and Cimikoski and Sadinsky scored. Jarvis advanced when Burke singled. Burke went to second on the next pitch. Tombari was out when hit by a batted ball. Yerrington singled scoring a minute later when Mish singled to left field. Goldblatt popped out to Levanti.

One more tally was scored in the fifth inning when Greene singled and on two passed balls went to third. Cimikoski flied out to Roever. On the squeeze play Sadinsky laid down a perfect sacrifice and Greene scored. Jarvis walked and advanced on Burke's hit but was caught when he attempted to steal third with the pitcher holding the ball.

Two singles by Tombari and Yerrington and a sacrifice by Goldblatt netted another run in the sixth. In the seventh a single by Cimikoski and a double by Sadinsky and a sacrifice fly by Burke scored the last run of the game.

Little did the fans that saw the game Thursday afternoon realize that Ray Yerrington playing third base for the Academy was playing under a great handicap. Ray was a sick boy and was just about able to drag around to say nothing of playing a brilliant game, as his four hits show. After the game Ray went to a doctor and it was found that he had a high fever and was suffering from an attack of grippe. He was ordered home and to bed and it is doubtful if he will be able to play in the game Saturday against the Hartford high team.

This game gives the Academy a chance to tie for the league title with Chapman provided both Chapman and the Academy win their remaining game. The score:

AGGIES WIN HARD GAME FROM RHODE ISLAND AGGIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., June 3—Connecticut Aggies fell on the offerings of Lachapelle, star twirler of the Rhode Island state nine here this afternoon, to win a closely fought ball game by a 9-7 score.

The Nutmeggers jumped into an early lead which they held throughout the game, though Rhode Island staged a rally in the ninth that brought them to within two runs of Connecticut's total.

Eddy started Connecticut's scoring in the first inning, when with two men on, he slammed one of Lachapelle's shoots over the tennis courts for a home run and the longest hit seen here this season. He also started at centerfield, accepting two difficult chances that stopped threatening Rhode Island rallies.

Things looked tad for the Aggies, as Rhode Island scored three runs in the ninth. Blake walked and scored on Dragetti's triple. He scored as Grigo was safe at first. Stevens singled. A balk by Mekofski sent Grigo home, and Stoebens to second. The Aggies then settled down and retired the side in order.

Yantic Is Very Confident

What should prove a one sided ball game is scheduled to take place on the Yantic ball diamond, Sunday the 6th, between a team managed by Patrick Sullivan (name of team unknown) and the Yantic Athletic Association team. Pat Sullivan hails from the wilds of Bozrahville or sometimes called Gilmanville, and has conceived an idea that he can get together a ball nine capable of slaughtering the Yantic fast team. Yantic fans are quite willing to cede to Pat's ability as a manager but feel he will meet with the same fate as befell one eminent manager in the person of Bill McManus, who once upon a time tried to produce a team capable of delivering a knock out blow to Yantic. Bill was told at the time that Yantic ville had not had a ball team since the days of the Fields Brothers', Francis McGibbney and others who acquitted themselves with these old timers in days gone bye. Bill failed to rally a strong team and we feel confident Pat will follow Bill's failure.

We understand Pat is scouting around Hartford and Manchester for some real fast players which causes considerable amusement to the Yantic fans. What really gets the Yantic fans stirred up is that some one has stated that a majority of the players are to hail from Fitchville, and the Yantic boys consider this of more or less an insult as they feel what players were in favor of cancelling the ferior brand, some of the Yantic players were infavor of cancelling the game and probably this would have been done had it not been learned that Manager Sullivan was going to Hartford and Manchester for a line up.

One thing certain, Pat, you will have to go farther than Bozrahville or for Fitchville if you expect to make the game an interesting one for the critics who attend the Sunday games at Yantic. We understand Manager Sullivan is trying to get to-gether an organized gang of rooters to come down and help him along, Yantic has a few disgruntled fans who contribute very little to support the local team but who criticise our very able and efficient manager Sam Carden, these fans no doubt will be glad to join your rooters as they joined Baltic last Sunday.

Yantic was very fortunate to get such an able manager as Sam Carden, Sam was a star in his day and was known throughout Eastern Connecticut as the great south paw from Yantic. Sam says he is going to play his regular lineup and says there will be nothing to it. Yes Manager Sullivan you will have to produce some exceptional players if you intend to go back to the wilds of Bozrahville with the bacon. After Sunday you will be able to sympathise with your friend Bill McManus, as to what you might have done with the Yantic boys if you had gone out to the National League for a lineup against them. The writer hopes you will not take your defeat too seriously.

Yours for clean sport.
A FAN.

Galetin Wins Feature

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—George D. Widener's Galetin brought off a sensational comeback after an unsatisfactory start early this season by winning the speed handicap today at Belmont park. Galetin covered the five and one half furlong route in 1.05 4-5, breasting a stiff wind to defeat Mino, Powhattan, Noah and Silver Fox in that order.

MORGAN KNOCKS OUT SULLIVAN AND DELANEY KAYOES BURNS IN N. Y. BOUTS

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP) — Tod Morgan of Seattle, successfully defended his junior lightweight championship here tonight when he scored a technical knockout over Steve (Kid) Sullivan of New York, a former title holder, in the sixth round of a ten round match at the Brooklyn National league baseball park.

Morgan was away to a big lead right in the opening round. He topped Sullivan to the canvas with a left hook which bounced off Steve's chin as the Brooklynite was rushing in. Sullivan took nine and came up, weathering the remainder of the storm with difficulty. The same thing happened in the second. A left hook caught Sullivan off balance and he went down for nine. Morgan was the aggressor in all the skirmishes.

The fight ended after two minutes and five seconds of the sixth round when Sullivan's handlers tossed in the towel to save the Brooklyn boy from further punishment. Sullivan's nose was badly cut by Morgan's lefts and the blood was streaming down his face. Jack Delany of Bridgeport, Conn., scored a technical knockout over Tommy Burns of Detroit in the second round of their ten-round match.

The referee stopped the bout and awarded the verdict to Delaney after one minute and 50 seconds of the second round. Burns was apparently hopelessly outclassed and was being hit almost at will be Delaney when the official stepped between them.

Burns started well, and although Delaney had a shade, the Detroit man made a favorable impression.

When Burns came up for the second, he started to swap punches with Delaney and thereby invited disaster. Delaney drove him to a corner with a terrific right which almost floored him. Delaney then launched an offensive which was not halted until Referee Tommy Crowley stopped hostilities, with Burns virtually 'out on his feet.' Burns weighed 170, Delaney 168.

Arthur Dekuh, Italian heavyweight, outpointed Carl Carter of Cuba in the first ten rounder.

Jimmy Lorenzo, New York featherweight, won a judges' verdict over Kid Wolds of Jersey City in 6 tour

ELIZABETH STREET ATHLETES WIN GRAMMAR SCHOOL FIELD MEET AGAIN

Some exciting athletic competition took place at the Fairgrounds yesterday afternoon, when the best athletic material of five of the city's grammar schools clashed to determine the season's athletic supremacy, with the result that Elizabeth Street copped the honors for the second consecutive season, registering a substantial lead over their closest rivals, Broadway, who scored 18. Greenville followed with 9 points, and West Town Street 8 points.

Despite the wide margin in the scores, their seemed to be no easy going for any of the schools, each team setting a pace in each event that called for considerable effort in order to win.

The relay races and tug of war contests proved the big features of the meet, bringing the good sized crowd that nearly filled the big grandstand to their feet.

Following the contest, Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. presented the handsome trophy cup that was contributed by the Alling Rubber company and complimented the boys and girls on their good showing in athletics and sportsmanship displayed in the meet. The scores were as follows:

Boys 75 yard dash—1st and 2nd in semi-finals; G. Kacay, L. Williams (B) V. Zukowski, A. Gauthier (G) G. LaRochelle, E. Odgers (E) F. LaPierre C. Hough (T) M. Horniski, E. Kaskell (W. T.)

The April term of Superior court for Washington county, Judge Copotosto on the bench, closed at the county court house in Westerly Thursday morning.

A case in equity, Mildred E. Ellis, Eliza Meritt, et al, was started. Before the case had proceeded far, it was shown that an attempt was being made to have the Rhode Island court place a construction on the will of Peleg S. Barber, a resident of Pawcatuck, in which to have it known who certain legatees under the will to the Barber Memorial building on High street were to be. It was shown that the probate court of the town of Stonington at one time entered the name "Alber" on a blank line after which appeared the surname "Brayman" as the original will was drawn, but left blank as to the Christian name. It further developed that by order of Connecticut Superior court this entry as made by the Stonington Probate court has been ordered erased.

Judge Copotosto sustained the demurrer as to the present action and gave a 10 day period for submitting new papers also ten days for the filing of answers. The matter, the judge said, would go to Rhode Island Supreme court, under R. I. statute, for decision.

Dr. John Champlin, following a trip abroad, arrived in Westerly Thursday morning on the New England express from Philadelphia.

Hillard, of Pawcatuck were among Westerly physicians present in Providence Thursday, at the 115th annual meeting of the Rhode Island Medical society, beginning at 10 a. m. at the Medical Library on Francis street. Luncheon was served at the library at 1 p. m. The afternoon session included the induction of the newly elected officers. The annual dinner of the society was at 6:30 at the Metacomet Golf club.

Westerly Lions' club held its weekly luncheon Wednesday, when plans were announced for an outing next Saturday afternoon at the site of the new Westerly Boy Scout camp, recently purchased by the Lions and to be turned over to the Scouts at that time. Next Monday at Pawcatuck Charter Night will be held when representatives from the national organization of Lions will be present to turn over the charter to the Westerly group.

"The History of the Development of the Granite Industry in Westerly" was the subject of an address given before the Lions by Isaac G. Smith of Westerly. Mr. Smith traced the growth of the industry from the time when granite was first quarried in Westerly, 80 years ago, when the industry became an outgrowth of the selection of field stones for walls of dwelling houses. It was the first industry, the speaker said, to become established in Westerly. As the industry progressed it became known that Westerly possessed a fine quality of stone which was also noted for its hardness. "For a number of years," the speaker declared, "Westerly had no competition in the granite business."

EUGENE ATWOOD'S DEATH ENDS NOTABLE CAREER

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 3—Following an illness which did not become acute until Saturday, the death of Eugene Atwood, Stonington manufacturer of silk machinery, occurred at his apartment, 300 Park avenue, New York, at 3 a. m. Thursday.

Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. F. G. Hartman of Danville, Pa., Mrs. Arthur K. McComb of Poughkeepsie and Mrs. Frank F. Dodge of Stonington, also by three grandchildren, Eugene Atwood Hartman, John Edwin Dodge and Pamela McComb.

Mr. Atwood's whole life had been devoted to the establishment and conducting of the Atwood Machine Shop. He and his father started the company about 63 years ago. For many years Mr. Atwood served as its president and at the time of his death was advisory director. He was a member of the United States Silk commission which was sent to Japan and China two years ago.

Mr. Atwood was known for his philanthropies. He established, in memory of his father, a fund for worthy students.

In his youth Mr. Atwood became associated with his father in the machine company plant. He was the third generation of his family to have been interested in the manufacture of silk and silk machinery.

William Atwood, his grandfather, was one of the pioneers of the silk industry in the United States—not only the manufacture of silk, but also cultivating the silk worms and handling the raw material from cocoon to the finished article. He was one of the six men who organized the celebrated Mansfield, Conn., Silk company in 1829. His wife was Irene Hartshorn. They were both descended from early Colonial families in Massachusetts.

John Edward Atwood, father of Eugene Atwood, was born in Mansfield, Conn., Sept. 13, 1827 and died in Stonington, Sept. 20, 1903.

In 1850 he started out in a small way to manufacture silk machinery in Atwoodville, town of Mansfield, Conn.

His son Eugene as soon as old enough became associated with him. Their first shop, 24x40 feet in size, proved inadequate as years passed on, and the superior quality of their product became known among silk manufacturers.

In 1870 they moved to Conantville, near Willimantic, opening a larger shop. At this time the firm was known as the Atwood Machine company and so continued until 1898.

Following the destruction of their building by fire in 1876, the company removed to Stonington and incorporated, January 1896, under the same name with Eugene Atwood as president and treasurer, and E. E. Bradley, secretary and vice-president. In 1898 the Atwood Machine company became consolidated with the Morrison company, with Eugene Atwood president and treasurer, E. E. Bradley, vice president, and J. H. Walden, assistant treasurer. The name of the new company was the Atwood-Morrison Machine company.

Later there was another reorganization, and the firm took the name of the Atwood Machine company. Five years ago Mr. Atwood, who was president, became an advisory director, and his son-in-law, Frank F. Dodge, became president.

Eugene Atwood was born in Mansfield, Sept. 20, 1846. He was the worthy son of a gifted father, and spent nearly his entire life in the business association of his parents. From his father he inherited a love of the work with which through early association he became familiar and which his constructive genius had so assisted in expanding to its present mammoth proportions. He had been the guiding hand in commercial pre-eminence. His home was in Mansfield, Conn., until he was 37 years of age, and there he was married, first to Alice Harvey, of Ashwood, Conn. They had three children, Eugene and Alice, who died in childhood, and Agnes Genevieve Hartman, who survives. Mrs. Atwood died in Mansfield.

Mr. Atwood married the second time in Brooklyn, N. Y., to Miss Annie Y. Cutler, daughter of Capt. B. F. Cutler. Children born to this marriage were Mrs. Anne Dodge and Constance McCoomb.

Mr. Atwood was long a member of the Masonic fraternity. He was a member of the board of managers of the Westerly Branch of the Industrial Trust company.

Alumni and former students of the Rhode Island state college, who were in the audience Wednesday night attending "What Every Woman Knows," a four-act play presented in the town hall by Phi Delta fraternity of Rhode Island state college, a dance followed the play. Music was furnished by the Rhode Island Collegians.

Eight college students comprised the cast which was directed by Prof. Helen E. Peck. The cast: Aleck Wylie, James B. Dow, '29; James, Ian M. Walker, '28; David, Gerald A. Cleary, '28; Maggie, Laura E. Murray, '27; John Shand, Thomas O. Mulcahy, '26; the Countess, Martha O. Sayles, '26; Lady Sybil, Margaret E. Macrae, '28; Mr. Venables, Alvan M. Anderson, '29.

Joseph Quebec, 84, one of the last of the Civil war veterans residing in this community, died at about 1 a. m. Thursday morning at his home, 284 Canal street. He had been in failing health for several months. Last Monday was his 84th birthday.

Mr. Quebec for years held the membership in Budlong post, No. 16, G. A. R.

The deceased, a native of Canada, had resided in Westerly 45 years. He is survived by his widow, Mary A. Maynard Quebec, a son, Richard Quebec, of Narragansett Pier, and two daughters, Mrs. Carrie Brown of White Rock and Miss Harriet Quebec of 284 Canal street. Another member of his family is Richard Maynard, a nephew of Mrs. Quebec, who has made his home with the Quebecs since infancy.

Miss Jane Mudge of 5 Jay street, Westerly, graduate nurse of Lawrence nurse of Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, sustained injuries to her ankle Thursday morning, when struck by a Ford coupe, operated by Joseph Gentile of Pierce street, near the junction of Beach and Wells Sts., after alighting from a Mooney bus. She was rushed to the hospital by Mr. Gentile who reported the accident to Officer George H. Champlin.

L. W. Daizell and family of Pittsburg, arrived in Westerly Thursday morning on the New England express and proceeded to Watch Hill to their summer home "Belveduto" cottage.

Aldrich, wife of Rhode Island Second District Congressional Representative of Providence, who occupied last summer the Watch Hill cottage "Longshore," on the East Beach, will sail for Europe Saturday on the steamship France. At the conclusion of this session of congress, Representative Aldrich will join her. Mr. William S. ORNAMENTATION IN THE COUNTRY.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Most farmers have a vigorous and outspoken contempt for the frills and flounces of life.

They are so constantly and so strenuously engaged in producing life's necessities that they come to consider its ornamentation as a trivial matter, rather beneath the consideration of real "he-men."

In other words, they have to scratch gravel so steadily and earnestly, just to gain the means of existence, that they are apt to come to the somewhat sordid feeling that mere existence is life.

Which it isn't, —isn't now never has been and never will be.

Existence is something we share with horses and hyenas and hats and angle-worms: Life is something we may, if we will, share with archangels.

Existence bears to life about the same relation that the pile foundations of the palace, buried deep in subterranean mud, bear to the glory of its soaring arches and sky-pointing turrets. The piles are necessary, but only to uphold the real structure, which rises and aspires above them.

Or, to take another figure as illustration, existence is to life what the bony skeleton is to the human body. It is an essential framework on which to hang the flesh and the muscles. It is little more. Divest it of these and it is neither useful nor desirable nor attractive.

Yet there are farmers who in effect, want to strip life of its real forms and go out to work, sit down to eat, and go to bed to sleep with its skeletons.

Are you who read this of that sort? If so, don't waste another minute over what you'll be sure to consider trash.

For I'm going to talk a bit about a phase of life which an intensely "practical" man like you will think can be of interest only to school-girls and "dudes" and dilletantes.

But if on the other hand, your nature is not completely satisfied by raising potatoes and fattening hogs, if you can sometimes lift your eyes from the row you're hoeing to take in the gracious sweep of grassy fields and, beyond them, the lifting glory of the distant hills,—then you and I can talk together for five minutes with mutual satisfaction and, perhaps, improvement.

For to us, you and I, the farm is not solely dirt out of which to grow cabbages, but also the cradle in which to nurture beauty. Nor have we any call to hide our feelings or be ashamed of them.

"Since eyes were made for seeing,
Then beauty is its own excuse for being."

Eyes were not made solely to tell their possessor when the bugs have arrived on his potato patch or when the grass is fit to cut for hay. They were also made to appreciate the beauty of yonder field where the green of the growing grass and the yellow of the spangling dandelions combine to make a veritable "Field of the Cloth of Gold," more vivid and, in the true sense, vastly more precious than that which the kings of France and England once had spread for their royal feet. Eyes were made to take in and love the undulating contour of the blue horizon-rim. They were made to linger on the stately beauty of some century-old tree, and suggest the thought voiced by the poet,—with only one word changed,—

"Harvests are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

What do you, for example, think of trees, to take one single feature for special consideration? Are they to you just so much firewood for next winter; so much lumber to sell? Or do you actually grieve to see them felled, preferring that they should stand till their natural time comes. Impressive and delight-giving examples or that mysterious generative force with which nature teems?

Near my home is a country road which has become the favorite drive of the neighborhood. It is led, part of the way, between precipitous hills, it bends around a sleeping mountain-lake. It companions several babbling trout-brooks, it passes tamed and disciplined farm-lands and wilder pasture-ranges; it discloses constantly varying scenes of rural and sylvan beauty. Yet I think that its most attractive stretch would be voted by a majority of its admirers to be where, swinging around a gentle curve, it turns into a tree-arcaded avenue, marked on both sides by the mossed trunks of huge old trees and hooded-in above by their meeting and interlacing branches. Even the chatter of the average picnicking party is apt to cease, there. The very rattle of the wholly mechanical motor seems to take on a new and less annoying note.

I am getting too old and tired to feel any longer the acute pangs of envy. Nevertheless, there are times when I can't keep my eyes off the magnificent rows of ancient sugar-maples which dignify the approach to my next neighbor's home. I'm glad he has them; I do not want to deprive him of them; but I wish, oh how keenly! that when his great-grandfather was setting them out, my great-grandfather had set out a similar row in front of my old farm-house! Something very real, if not vital, would be taken out of my own life, if some vandal should suddenly take it into his head to cut down that stately file of vegetable monarchs. Though they are not mine and stand before another man's house on that other man's land their beauty and strength are as much mine as his.

He could get quite a few dollars for them, if he should turn them into fuel or sell the planks they would make to "antique" furniture fakers. But, while they stand, he and I and every chance passer-by get something of uplift and of comfort and of peace from them. Perhaps they would sell for $1,000. A thousand dollars would pay for several lobster-champagne suppers, even in New York city. But their removal would take something out of his life and my life and the lives of countless others. And isn't the body yet worth more than raiment, and the life more than—lobster-champagne suppers?

As we have said, too many farmers profess a contempt for mere looks. Ye, when you come to think of it, almost every farmer is more or less anxious to "fix up" his own place. What is that but a desire to have it look well in his own eyes and the eyes of others? Even those who sneer most openly at the idea that there is any real value in beauty usually have some appreciation of it concealed within them. Perhaps they may not suspect it, but it is more often there than not. Even the stoical red men had it. We are accustomed to think of them as caring only for feeding and fighting. Yet one of the most successful collectors of Indian relics in eastern Connecticut once told me that his rule, when setting out on a hunt for arrow or spear points, was to find a "pretty place," one which appealed to his own sense of natural beauty. He was almost sure to find that such nooks had been favorite resorts for the Indians, too.

I've often wondered what the effect would be on residents and visitors if every farm-house along the Queechy road stood behind such a guard of trees as protect my neighbor's home; if its entire length were arcaded by such growths as make the vista I have earlier spoken of.

How if every road in the town, in the county, in the state, were thus adorned?

Many highway commissions or boards are making a feature of setting out shade trees along the new state-roads. Some, set when such roads were first laid, are already giving promise of the beauty they will give, later. I find, however, that in too many cases they are setting out exotic trees, simply because they are quick growers. My own feeling is that New England trees are the appropriate ones to plant along New England roads. The old farmers, when they want to set out a row of shade trees, didn't buy them from any nursery. They went into their own woods and picked out thrifty maples or elm or beech or hickory or basswood saplings, sorts acclimated and natural to the soil and the climate. Seems to me they showed better taste than those who line the highways with catalpas or buckeyes or other imported growths.

The activity I speak of is limited to state roads, anyway. If the dirt ways, the winding country back-roads, are to be made and kept beautiful it will have to be largely through the care and work of the abutting farmers. Yet it is these very roads, with their seductive curves, their hill-climbing propensities, their intriguing unexpectedness, which offer the very best media for enhancing rural beauty.

Nature, which isn't apt to be kindly to farmer-folk, shows a helpful disposition in this very case. Along miles and miles of such winding trails she brings into life countless bushes and shrubs and saplings. Indeed, she supplies them in such profusion that they are apt to encroach upon the highways and impede travel. Then the road commissioner decrees them a nuisance and has them cut off in the interests of public convenience and safety. Why could he not, in this exercise of his duty, instruct his workmen to cut out the mere bushes, the strangling vines, the shrubs which will never make trees, but save such youngsters as would grow into something worth while? It would take but a few years of such selective clearing to transform many a mile of unkempt back-road into a trail of woodsy beauty.

Then, again, the question of whether shade is desirable or not on any particular bit of road must be considered. Thick shade which cut off the free admission of sunlight thereby delays the drying out of muddy roads in the spring or after hard rains. Such roads or parts of roads as are apt to be muddy on the least provocation, should, perforce, be kept as open to the sun as possible. Not even the aesthetes would persist in demanding that utility be sacrificed to beauty.

But such considerations do not affect the cemented state highways, nor the many miles of hilly or sandy dirt roads, where no amount of shade can produce mud, but where it can and does reduce the stir-up of dust.

The country is going organization-mad. I din't think it would be necessary or even wise to wait for the formation of "village improvement" associations, or "rural beauty" clubs, and turn over the whole subject to them. If every farmer who feels the urge to "fix up" his own front-yard would extend the ambition to take in the roadsides on which his fields abut, and give a very little time and work to keeping them trim, it wouldn't be very many years before a good many roads that are now narrow lanes between tangles of jungle would become inviting approaches to desirable homes.

UNION

A very interesting Memorial day service was held at the church last Sunday morning. The text of the pastor Rev. H. A. Coolidge, was I came not to bring peace but a sword.

Monday the 31st, the decoration and memorial service was carried out as usual. Frank's Junior band of Stafford led the line of march from the town hall to the cemeteries, in the morning. Although rain was falling, other friends joined with the children in carrying flowers for the graves of the heros. After the return to the monument and brief exercises conducted by P. E. Tyler, the band and the children were served ice cream and cake, in the town hall. At 1 p. m. the exercises in the church opened with a selection by the band, and prayer by Rev. Henry A. Coolidge. The program was interesting throughout. The band is one of the best in this vicinity and played a number of fine selections. The children from the schools gave songs and recitations, and the address by the pastor, Rev. Henry A Coolidge, was one of his best. The church was filled, extra seats being brought from the town hall. Memorial day in Union is in some respects, an Old Home day. It always brings back many friends from other towns.

Fairman Howard who has been spending two weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb H. Howard, returned to Syracuse university last Friday. This week he went to the New York state college of Forestry School, at Cranberry lake, in the Adirondacks. This school is a part of the regular course in forestry and is held for three months. The students have real camp life and fixed hours of study.

Miss Florence Barrows of Connecticut college who was at home for the week end, returned to New London Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Willis of South Manchester were in town Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Moore and son of Worcester were at their Mashapaug cottage for the week end.

Supervisor Robertson held a teachers' meeting at the Rock Meadow school Wednesday.

Field day of Union schools is to be held at the Center on Tuesday afternoon, June 8. The schools are to meet at the town hall at 2 o'clock (standard time.)

Even after the shower of Tuesday night, the apple blossoms are still very lovely.

Mrs. Frank Peck, of South Lyme has been the guest of her mother, Mrs C. A. Proulx.

Mrs. Frank Peck, of South Lyme has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. C. A. Proulx.

Otis Burnham, Michael and John Sedlak, Jr., and Stephen Yeugasks, Jr returned to W. B. Maine and Sons' mill at Groton, this week.

Memorial day brought many friends from other towns. George Horton and family, Mrs. Minnie Horton, Mr and Mrs. Clarence Marsh from Worcester; Leon Oliver and family, Edwin Oliver and family from Thomsonville; Walter Robertson and family from Monson, Mass.; Mrs. Nora Howard from Putnam, Wayland Heck, from Sturbridge, Mass.

An investigation at the United States bureau of standards has shown that tire treads containing 35 per cent of reclaimed rubber gave an average service of about 7,000 miles of road travel.

CLAIMS HE CAN'T READ ENGLISH, NEW LONDON MAN HAS AUTO LICENSE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—Attilio Palvarari was charged in the city court today with a violation of the parking regulations of the city and was fined $5. He explained that he resided nearby and parked his car during the night on Howard street, near his home. He could not speak English and said he could not read the street signs nearby, so it was wondered how he obtained a license to operate a car. He had such authority in his possession, nevertheless. Then it was wondered whether Attilio was as ignorant of the English language as he represented.

Business slowed up a bit in the police court this morning for there were only a couple of cases to be acted upon when court convened. Frank Strauss, a United States sailor, was charged with intoxication. He admitted that he was rightly accused and pleaded guilty. Policeman Philopena found Strauss taking up the entire sidewalk as he navigated North Bank street, and hailing him requested him to shape his course toward the ship on which he was registered as a member of the crew. Strauss did not take the advice kindly and became abusive of the officer, so he was arrested. He had overstayed his leave of absence so there will be discipline for him on the ship. This led to a suspended sentence for Strauss.

Miss Constance Binney, nationally known screen star, and Charles Edward Cutting, of Boston, were married today at Old Lyme church. The ceremony was witnessed by a few relatives and intimate acquaintances, together with a large number of members of the profession. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Appleton Lawrence, son of Bishop Lawrence, Episcopal bishop of Massachusetts. Rev. Mr. Lawrence was assisted by Rev. Howard Wells, pastor of Old Lyme church. The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. David Carlton Sloan, of Baltimore. The best man was Major Francis Colby, U. S. A., of Boston. There were 16 ushers. The bride entered the church, walking with her uncle, Basil Miles, of Paris, France, and was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. H. William Gray, who is spending the summer at Gray Cables on the Connecticut river, where the bride had been spending several weeks. It was stated at the Gray mansion that the bride had abandoned the screen stage. She has not appeared in motion pictures for some time. Mr Cutting is a member of the brokerage firm of Lee, Higginson company, Boston.

Ferry service to Groton has been curtailed of late because the steamer that has been running on the line from this city is undergoing repairs and has been for two weeks or thereabouts. No vehicles can be transported across the river on the boat that is in use now. The expense of repairs will be somewhat in excess, it is understood of what was expected necessary when the boat was withdrawn from the line. The city of New London is liable for 75 per cent of that expense while the borough of Groton will pay the other 25 per cent. The ferry is an expense to New London and Groton as the patronage does not amount to the sum the operation of the line involves. There was a time when the ferry was a paying proposition for the city, but that was prior to the opening of the highway bridge over the Thames. That way of going to and coming from Groton took the cream from the ferry line milk and the boats have been operated at a loss for a considerable time.

Fruit dealers in New London are not satisfied with the high cost of the stock they have to sell and some of them are disposed to meet the situation in a way they anticipate will be successful They propose to go to the big city markets and get their goods and then to bring them here by truck. They represent that they can go to New Haven at night, late, buy in the wholesale market at the first hour the markets are open and bring their purchases here and have them for sale at the opening of business in the morning. In this way they declare they can get the advantage of the cheaper prices, save the commission they now pay to middlemen and avoid transportation charges that now enter into their bills with the jobbers.

Some of the fraternal organizations —those paying sick benefits—have been hit pretty hard in the past months to pay members who have claims against them for benefits that attach to members who are incapitated because of illness that prevents them fro mworking steadily. One such society is said to have paid more than $1,000 in a single month recently. The money to pay these benefits comes from the dues paid into the lodge by members so that there has been a drain upon this source of revenue.

The warm weather changed this evening for the wind shifted to the northwest during the later afternoon. Top coats and wraps were necessary.

An automobile owned and driven by Albert Carlucci 15 Cliff street, knocked down John Saunders, residing on Willetts avenue, on that thoroughfare this evening. The boy was taken to Lawrence hospital by Carlucci. He sustained no more serious injuries than bruises and scratches.

The manhole cover at corner of Reed and Colt streets is in a dangerous condition. Every time a vehicle of any description passes over the cover, the iron covering tilts considerably.

Clifton Blake, a patient at the Rhode Island State hospital at Howard, R. I., escaped from that institution recently and this afternoon State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, Groton barracks, took Blake into custody when he was found on the highway between Groton and Mystic. Blake is demented, but is not violent. The Howard authorities have been notified of the apprehension of Blake and an attendant from the institution will come here tomorrow and take charge of the patient.

Mrs. Sven Johnson and infant daughter, of Waterford; Mrs. Daniel Driscoll and infant daughter, Waterford; Mrs. Edward Sullivan, Groton, and Miss Teresa McHugh, New York, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Oscar Long, of Bristol street, is spendin ga few days in New York.

Miss Ermina Banfield has returned to her apartment at the Hotel Mohican, having attended the funeral of her mother, at Elizabeth, N. J., Wednesday.

Donald Harwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. LeRoy Harwood, 226 Ocean avenue, is a patient at Lawrence hospital where he underwent an operation yesterday for appendicitis. His condition is reported as favorable.

Miss Ruth Cavanaugh, 18 Warren street, is entertaining her cousin, Miss Esther Buckern, of Palmer, Mass.

A fellow whose identity has not been established is courting serious trouble if he continues his actions of last night to the extent that he committed, if proven to by a trial in the police court, would result in a severe penalty. The man has been loitering in the vicinity of Williams street, corner of Lincoln avenue. About 11 o'clock, when a young woman residing in that neighborhood was walking to her home the fellow seized her by the throat and attempted to throw her to the sidewalk. The young woman fought off her assailant and succeeded in frustrating his efforts, presumably because of the approach of a man. The attacker then fled through Lincoln avenue and disappeared in the darkness. The woman made known the facts to a neighbor and the police were notified. The motorcycle officer was sent to the place, but no trace of the man was obtained. The only description the young woman could give of him was that he wore dark clothes. The young woman refused to reveal her identity.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the operators' licenses of Charles Lawsky, 125 North Bank street, and Sam Hartley, United States Coast Guard academy. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the license of John Wall.

Alice Lipka, an inmate at the State Farm for Women, Niantic, made her escape from the institution last night. This morning the superintendent of the farm requested the New London police to be on the lookout for the woman, who is described as being about five feet, seven inches in height, weighing about 115 pounds, has blue eyes and light bobbed hair.

Leonard McKenzie, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard, complained to the police early this morning that he had been robbed of $10 by three colored men while he engaged in coversation with them on John street a few minutes before he lodged his complaint. McKenzie stated that in passing through John street, he came upon the Negroes and stopped a few minutes to talk with them. During the course of the conversation, McKenzie declared, he displayed his shoulder for the purpose of revealing a scar and while he was doing so that the money was removed from the pocket of his blouse. The alleged robbery occurred about 5 o'clock. Sergeant Patrick Murphy was sent to John street, but he could find no trace of the negroes, nor anyone who had seen them loitering there.

Owners of the business places at Ocean Beach declare that the season has not yet started up there. That's absolutely right, too!

Mrs. Max Smith and infant daughter, of Quaker Hill; Mrs. Hugh McKenzie and infant daughter, Waterford; Mrs Michael Barry and infant daughter, 19 Lewis street; Mrs. Carl Cohen and infant son, 14 Steward street and Mrs. Aaron Haynes and infant daughter, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Clementa Giri, 75, wife of John Giri, died last night at her residence, 77 Smith street, after a lingering illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Giri is survived by two sons, Girolamo and Ricardo Giri and two daughters, Mrs. Attilio Paolini and Mrs. Stephen Tomacci, all of this city. Mrs. Giri was born in Italy, but had resided in New London about 35 years.

Annie Kennedy Erickson, of Bank street, and Angelina Bottomley, of Waterford, were in the Waterford town court late yesterday afternoon charged with breach of the peace. They pleaded guilty and each was fined $10 and costs and given a sentence of 15 days in jail, but the execution of the sentence was suspended a year. The Erickson and Bottomley women were arrested late Tuesday night by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Frank Kulowski, the women engaging in a fight at the home of the Bottomley woman. The battle created such a disturbance that the authorities were informed and the arrest of the principals resulted.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Coming to the Bread

"The Volga Boatman," Cecil B. De Mille's latest picture production, will be on view at the Breed theatre for three days beginning Sunday. This is a gripping story of the love of a plebeian boatman for a Russian princess. The leading roles are in the capable hands of William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Theodore Kosloff and Julia Faye. The picture is said to be extremely absorbing and one of the best photoplays produced by Mr. De Mille in many years.

Broadway Theater

D. W. Griffith's master productions Hearts of the World, the enormity of which is declared to surpass his former triumph, The Birth of a Nation, is announced for a special engagement here, to be seen at the Broadway starting Sunday starring Dorothy and Lillian Gish and a wonder cast.

Mr. Griffith's standing today as the unrivalled peer of all producers adds materially to the importance of this event and promises to afford an entertainment entirely unique. Those who were privileged to see his Birth of a Nation and Intolerance, and who have followed his career since, will be interested to know that Hearts of the World, has been declared by the most eminent critics his masterpiece. The unfolding story of a wholesome romance amid the historic villages of France has given Griffith an opportunity to demonstrate his rare skill in handling big themes in a manner quite apart from the methods employed by other producers.

It comes here direct from a six weeks engagement at the Tremont Temple, Boston, where it played at advanced prices.

The Broadway management advises that there will be an augumented orchestra with small popular prices.

Lyceum Theater, New London

There is not a word in "Stray Sheep" which could offend any "Clean Up The Theatre" movement; not an incident in which virtue is not threatened but remains intact; not a character who is not as synthetic as any of those dedicated by the public taste at its worst.

Take Charles Washburn's word for it. He asserts boldly his play deals with present-day failures, stray sheep who attribute their ill luck solely to "bad breaks." His hero is a notable young man who has grown strong and innocent on a farm. His central character is a "mammy" song writer who never wrote a tune anyone would sing.

The heroine is besieged on all sides; she flies from naughty men and comes out safe and pure. Even the song writer is so noble that in rescuing a damsel from distress he scrupulously refrains from the rewards which are generally supposed to await the successful knight errant. And it is clean. There isn't a cuss word in three hours of it.

"I have merely put modern technique into an old-time tale," frankly admits Mr. Washburn. "I have added thrills which serve as the coupons given at the corner store. The public wants a full measure of value for the price. I have tried to give them that in 'Stray Sheep.'

"The only merit to his play is in the reminder that there is nothing new under the sun and that heroes and heroines can be just as false to life in a successful play as they are hopelessly mid-Victorian in the popular magazine. Public taste demands certain standards. Glorify the underdog. That's the main trick. It has been done to the queen's taste in 'Stray Sheep.'"

This play comes to the Lyceum theatre for two days starting Friday, June 4. There will be a matinee on Saturday.

CHAS. J. DYER'S PROTEGE SCORES CONCERT SUCCESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 3.—Under the auspices of the New London branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women one of the brilliant musical programmes of the season was given at the Bulkeley auditorium tonight in a recital by Henry LaFontaine of Norwich, baritone, and Mrs. Evadna Lapham of New York, pianist and accompanist.

The large audience was enthusiastic and spontaneous in its applause, calling for encores from both artists, and a beautiful bouquet was presented to Mrs. Lapham, whose accompaniments for Mr. Fontaine furnished just the right background for the singer and whose solo work was exceptionally fine. For encore numbers she gave To Spring (Grieg) and The Sea (Palmgren).

The programme was given as follows:

Vittorio Mio Core (Carissimi); Where'er You Walk (Handel); Lord God of Abraham from Elijah (Mendelssohn); Vision Fugitive (Massenet), Mr. LaFontaine.

Three Spring Songs, (a) Jensen; (b) Moszkowski; (c) Binding; Mrs. Lapham.

The Lotus Flower (Schuman); Der Asra (Rubinstein); Serenade (Brahms); Ungeduld (Schubert).

Three Bird Songs; (a) Henselt; (b) Grieg; (c) Palmgren; Mrs. Lapham.

Songs My Mother Taught Me (Dvorak); Murmuring Breeze (Jensen); Cargoes (Dobson); Trees (Rasbach); Water Boy (Robinson); On The Road To Mandalay (Speaks); Mr. LaFontaine.

For encore numbers Mr. LaFontaine gave Then You'll Remember Me (Moore), Kitty O'Toole (Old Irish) and Parted (Tosti).

Mr. LaFontaine was in excellent voice, singing with artistic expression and feeling and giving evidence of an unusually thorough and comprehensive training under careful tutelage. As a protege of Charles J. Dyer of Norwich, whose reputation as an artist is well known in musical circles at home and abroad, Mr. LaFontaine has been exceedingly fortunate. It is a little over two years ago that he came to Mr. Dyer for advice on his voice. Recognizing the latent possibilities of the organ, Mr. Dyer decided to help the young musician and with a world of enthusiasm and a fund of rich experience has devoted his time and energy unstintingly to his self-appointed task. The technique and culture which Mr. Dyer developed in his pupil was supplemented by a summer's travel abroad, when as the guest of world famous musical personalities, who were personal friends of his patron, Mr. LaFontaine was given a rare opportunity for association and study. In Mr. Dyer's knowledge of the various schools of singing and art, the German, French and Italian, his unique experiences as fellow artist and friend with the great artists such as Melba, Nordica, Denina, Frau Wagner, Lilli Lehman, Schuman Heink, Olive Fremstad, his travels and intensive studies, his kindness to and sympathy with the young, he possesses qualities that should place him in the front rank of teachers should he decide to take up the profession.

Broadway Theater

First honors is still held by that photodramatic masterpiece Stella Dallas which has been held over for the remainder of the week at the Broadway theater. If you have not yet seen it, make arrangements now as only two days remain.

As added attraction a four act bill of KeithAlbee vaudeville is offered, each one of which is a distinct hit.

Monkey Shines with Gold and Gold is a lively musical melange put over in a humorous vein.

Bell and Manning in Bits O' Musical Comedy offered pleasant moments of melody, harmony comedy and a few steps.

Wilson and Godfrey followed with a comedy assortment of all that goes to make up a big time offering.

Redford and Wallace in Versatile Moments closed the bill. It has to do with juggling tricks, comedy and snatches of dances.

Lyceum Theater, New London

This city will see Sunshine the new play by Henry C. White before it is shown in New York. The play, known as a "comedy of kindliness," comes to the Lyceum New London for two nights beginning Monday June 7th.

Henry C. White is also the author of Night Hawk the sensation and success of last season at the Bijou theater in New York. He is also the author of several other plays and one outstanding novel of stage life, Back Stage, published by the MacMillans. In Sunshine Mr. White says he has put all his theatrical resourcefulness and ingenuity and believes that his characters are such as will be readily recognized by every resident or visitor of and in our smaller communities.

The play is exceptionally well cast as a glance at the roster of players will prove. Percy Pollock plays the leading male role; Eleanor Griffith is cast for the leading feminine part. Others of equal distinction are Hobart Cavanaugh, Bryon Beasley, Peggy Allenby, Georgia Harvey and Robert Craig. Victor Morley who staged and directed Night Hawk and who is now playing the part of the English Major in Is Zat So directed Sunshine.

Those who have been privileged to read the book of the play and to witness the rehearsals in New York say, Sunshine is filled with rich wit and humor, is typically American and yet so human and consistent that the tears are never far from the surface, a combination indispensable to a successful play. It is freely predicted up and down Broadway that in Sunshine Mr. White has written a play that will live as long as Lightnin' and will be as well loved as Abie's Irish Rose.

Palace Theatre

Herbert Brenon, who recently completed filming "A Kiss for Cinderella," rises sadly to remark that for him the monkey will ever be associated with revolution rather than evolution. One of the big scenes in this picturization of Barrie's famous stage success is a magnificent dream ball, at which four hundred guests make merry to music furnished by a dozen organ grinders, each accompanied by a Simian companion.

While this scene was being photographed, one of the monkeys suddenly decided to inject a little comedy of his own. His idea of fun was to dance the Charleston on the head of one of the young ladies present. A blood-curdling shriek issued from the throat of the lady thus unexpectedly honored. In a moment, pandemonium reigned.

Cameras stopped, and a five minute chase ensued, ending with the capture of the Simian funster. But this experience has soured Mr. Brenon on the whole tribe of monkeys.

If you are not too grown up you will not fail to see this wonderful picture. Showing at the Palace the last two days of this week, and 5 big acts of vaudeville.

POETRY

God Loves New England

God loves New England, I am sure of it—
I feel His love in all its loveliness,
As though His hand had lingered to caress
The beauty He had fashioned, bit by bit.

For oh, He made it slowly, I think, too,
Not in a mood of epic tragedy,
As when He carved the canyon's majesty,
And flung the Rockies up to pierce the blue.

And not in awful anger as when He
The torrent of Niagara let loose—
But for His creature Man, and for his use,
He made New England's sweet serenity.

And God must love the beauty man has made—
I think He must feel pleasure when He sees
Above the old stone fences, apple trees
Bend down to give the weary travelers shade.

And He must love the villages so neat—
White cottages, with hollyhocks about,
And slender spires, where the bells ring out
Above the elms that shade the quiet street.

And oh, I think God listens when a bell
From such a spire rings out upon the air
To summon all the villagers to prayer—
Ah, yes, I think God loves New England well!

And that He made it in a tender mood,
I, who am not New England born, still guess—
I feel His love in all its loveliness . . .
God made New England and He found it good!
—Roselle Mercier Montgomery.

The Night Watch

Beneath the midnight moon of May,
Through dusk on either hand,
One sheet of silver spreads the bay,
One crescent jet the land;

Their ghostly tresses shake—

When will the mor

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks, strong. Van Sweringen rails rally, motor share gain.

Bonds, steady, foreign issues higher.

Foreign exchanges, mixed. Norwegian kronen advances.

Cotton, steady, heavy rain Oklahoma.

Sugar, barely steady, commission house selling.

Coffee, firm, European buying.

Chicago

Wheat, higher, bullish Liverpool cables.

Corn, strong, investment buying.

Cattle, weak.

Hogs, steady.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery today in response to a series of favorable financial and trade developments. These included the house's ratification of the French debt agreement, lower call money rates, the publication of bullish government statistics on gasoline consumption and the continuation of record-breaking freight traffic, for this season of the year.

Trading showed a substantial increase in volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,645,200 shares, as compared with 1,287,500 yesterday and 294,200 the day before. Several large blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares changed hands during the day, particularly in the motor group where urgent short covering appeared to be in progress.

Rails took on a new lease of life on a revival of unofficial rumors that the Van Sweringens were prepared to announce a new "Nickel Plate" merger plan, the terms of exchange of which would be somewhat similar to the old plan except that non-voting stock would be eliminated and minority interests would be given representative [illegible] boards of directors.

[illegible] trucks and Hudson assumed [illegible]eadership of the motor group, [illegible]losing 2 points higher at 111 3-4 and [illegible] 7-8, respectively.

There was a good demand for the so-called standard industrials. U. S. Steel common and Baldwin Locomotive each advanced 1 1-2 points to 125 1-2 and 109 1-2, respectively, and American Smelting showed an extreme gain of 3 points at 121.

Commodity prices also displayed a firmer undertone, Wheat futures rallied 1 to nearly 2 cents a bushel in sympathy with an earlier advance in Liverpool. Cotton closed unchanged to 8 points higher in featureless trading. Sugar prices were practically unchanged and coffee advanced slightly on buying for foreign trade accounts.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent, and then dropped to 3 1-2 closing at the bottom. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular with sharp recoveries in the Norwegian, Spanish and Polish rates, as the feature. Demand sterling held steady just under $4.86 but French francs yielded nearly five points to around 3.21 1-2 cents Belgian and Italian currencies showed nominal recessions. Norwegian krone rallied 28 points to 13.14 cents and Spanish pesetas moved up 11 points to 15.14 cents. Polish zlotys advanced half a cent to 9 1-2 cents.

FINED FOR FAILURE TO GRANT RIGHT OF WAY

On a charge of failure to grant the right of way, Alfred M. Heibel of Lisbon was fined $10 and costs by Judge H. H. Petts in the city court Thursday morning. Heibel figured in an automobile accident Sunday night with a Ford sedan owned and operated by Harry Allyn of Gales Ferry. Several people were injured in the accident, which occured near the Poneman Wheel club in Taftville.

Heibel claimed that one of his front tires was flat which caused the car to pull towards the left of the road. He did not realize he was so far to the left until the accident happened. Heibel was rendered unconscious in the crash, Mr. Allyn, operator of the other car, was shaken up and Miss Amelia Loback of No. 111 High street was cut in several places. Walter Lewis, a passenger in Mr. Allyn's car was also lacerated.

Constable Joubert of Lisbon testified that about five minutes before the accident Mr. Allyn's car had nearly run into him.

An employee at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company, was in court on a charge of intoxication and was fined $5 and costs. About 10:30 o'clock Wednesday night Officer Joseph Gendron overheard the man say something to several girls who were passing which the officer thought was of an improper nature. He told the man to move on and they had some words. Finally the man moved on and had gone only a short distance when he turned around and thumbed his nose at the officer, who then arrested him for intoxication. Officer William Sherwin corroborated Officer Gendron's testimony.

VERDICT OF $6,711.89 IN SOLOMON VS. SHALETT

Jacob Solomon of New London was awarded a verdict of $6,711.89 in the superior court here Wednesday morning, in his suit against Harry M. Shalett of New London, manager of the Shalett Cleaning & Dyeing Co. The superior court with Judge Earnest C. Simpson on the bench. Solomon was represented by Attorney Thomas E. Troland as counsel, while Geary, Davis & Keefe represented Shalett.

Testimony in the case, in which three attorneys, C. Hadlai Hull, Arthur T. Keefe and Marion P. Davis were called as witnesses was finished last week and the case was adjourned until Wednesday for Judge Simpson to give his charge to the jury. Judge Simpson concluded his charge to the jury at 11 o'clock and a plaintiff's verdict was brought in about an hour later. Appleton Main was foreman of the jury.

Solomon, in his suit, alleged that on or about April 18, 1920, the defendant, Shalett, wanted to borrow from the Union Bank & Trust Co., $5,000 to be used in the conduct of his business. He alleged that in order to induct the plaintiff to endorse his note as an accommodation endorser, the defendant falsely and fraudulently stated to him that Attorney Marion R. Davis and Arthur T. Keefe had agreed to endorse the note and also that the lawyers would be jointly liable to with him. Solomon alleged that the defendant also agreed to secure the note with a mortgage which was never given although he signed the note.

Solomon also alleged that he endorsed a number of renewals but when the note was presented for payment, it was protested, and the lawyers paid the money. Then, according to the allegations, they sued Solomon as he was the prior endorser, and obtained a judgment against him for $6,177, which he paid.

STORRS HENS AVERAGE 96 EGGS FOR 30 WEEKS

For the second consecutive week, production fell off in the Storrs egg laying contest, the 1,400 pullets laying 5,556 eggs, or 57 per cent. This is 347 eggs less than were laid in the previous week, and 123 eggs less than the lay for the corresponding week a week ago. Up through the 30th week of competition, which ended Saturday night, the contest flock laid a grand total of 134,645 eggs. This is an average of 96 eggs per bird.

Barred Rocks and White Leghorns divided on the four honor roll positions for the week, with a pen of Rocks taking first honors. This was the entry of Merritt M. Clark from Brookfield Center, Conn., with a score of 58 eggs. Second place saw a tie between a pen of Barred Rocks and a pen of White Leghorns, each with a score of 55 eggs. They are the Rocks entered by R. W. Davis and Sons from Rockland, Me., and the Leghorns entered by C. T. Darby from North Branch, N. J. Third place for the week was taken by another pen of the same breed, the entry of Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., with a production of 54 eggs. For fourth place, once more two pens of Rocks and Leghorns divided honors, each laying 53 eggs. They are the Rocks owned by Ontario Agricultural college from Guelph, Ont., and the Leghorns entered by Tolvonen Farm from Girard, Pa. Of interest in connection with this week's honor roll is the fact that two previous contest winners are represented. They are C. T. Darby and Hanson's Leghorn Farm.

John Z. LaBelle's Rhode Island Reds from Ballouville, Conn., which at present are the ranking pen in the contest, had 16 eggs cut off their lead during the past week. This represents the difference in production between the Leghorn entry of Tolvonen Poultry Farm from Girard, Pa., at present runners-up among the contest pens. Present indications are that LaBelle's birds must brace in the near future if they are to hold their favorable positions, for the Leghorns from Pennsylvania show no signs in slackening their rate of lay. There were two changes among the leading pens in the Rhode Island Red class, the entry of George B. Treadwell from Spencer, Mass., went up into second position, displacing the entry of R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate, Vt. In the White Leghorn class, the entry of R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., went up into second position, displacing the entry of Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass.

The three leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes
The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn.	1169
Winlay White Wyandottes, Mystic, Conn.	1139
Barred Rocks
Edgar Stoughton, Wapping, Conn.	1166

SHORT SUPERIOR COURT SESSION IN ROCKVILLE

One of the shortest sittings of the opening day of the superior court in Rockville was held Wednesday morning with Judge John W. Banks on the bench. All court and jury assignments were put over until the next sitting of the court, which will be held in about three weeks.

While a score of cases appeared on the short calendar list, but two were heard. Josephine C. Curry was granted a divorce from Thomas Curry on grounds of cruelty. They were married September 22, 1920. She was granted the custody of her child.

The criminal business presented was also brief. The first case, that of Julius Markanskas of Somers, charger with rape, was heard before Judge Simpson in April. State's Attorney Noone, after a consultation, nolled the case upon payment of costs.

The second case was that of Mrs. Julia O'Hara Tinti, charged with disposing of a dead child's body on April 18, 1926. She was defended by Lawyer John F. Foley of Hartford and pleaded guilty. This girl was bound over from the police court on the charge of murder. State's Attorney Noone brought out the fact that the child died on March 28 last in Hartford and on April 18 it was found in a shed at the rear of the girl's home on Brooklyn street, Rockville. State's Attorney Noone asked the maximum penalty while Lawyer Foley asked the minimum penalty. Judge Banks sentenced Mrs. Tinti to not less than four years in the Connecticut state farm for women at East Lyme.

PANAMA CONCESSIONS TO BRITISH AROUSE BORAH

Introduced a Resolution in the Senate Calling on the State and War Department For All Available Information on the Subject—White House is Satisfied That the Concessions Are Without Objectionable Features.

WASHINGTON, June 4. — (AP) — Aroused by reports that British interests have obtained concessions on vast tracts of public lands in Panama on both sides of the canal zone, Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, introduced a resolution today calling on the state and war department for all available information on the subject.

Immediate consideration of the resolution was requested by Senator Borah, but on objection by the republican leader, Senator Curtis, Kansas, the measure went over until tomorrow when action again will be sought.

That this government already has investigated the concessions was made clear later in the day at the white house where President Coolidge was said to understand that they were surface and subsoil concessions to a British corporation and without objectionable features. The president assumed, however, that the government departments involved would continue their inquiries to make sure he contracts were satisfactory so far as the interests of this country are concerned.

Senator Borah acted on the basis of information furnished to him by Richard O. Marsh, of Brockport, N. Y., who at one time was in charge of the American legation at Panama City. His understanding is that the concessions were obtained for the purposes of producing rubber and he has presented his data to a number of senators as well as to the war and commerce departments.

While state department officials declined to comment, it was learned that a concession was made to British interests by Panama more than a year ago and that the text of the concession is in the hands of that department. It covers prospecting rights for gold and sub-soil minerals in two large areas.

Officers of the state department have not thought it necessary to take up the subject with the Panama government in diplomatic correspondence now, on its face, the concession appears to be a typical grant for the exploitation only of mineral deposits.

Senator Borah explained he specified the British government in the resolution because that was the only way he could reach the subject by such a move. He added that he had no doubt that if British interests had obtained concessions in Panama it was with the knowledge and approval of their government.

The resolution of inquiry is as follows:

"Resolved, that the secretary of state and the secretary of war are hereby requested, if not incompatible with the public interests, to advise the senate of all facts and circumstances of which they have official cognizance relative to concessions secured of which they have official cognizance relatives to concessions secured by the British government in the republic of Panama; and the extent to which the British government has secured control over the public lands and natural resources of Panama.

"Secondly, copies of all correspondence and all communications had with the British government relative to such concessions and to acquiring the control of the natural resources of Panama."

LENGTHY DEBATE IN SENATE ON ITS RULES

WASHINGTON, June 4. — (AP) — Starting off in humorous vein, the senate wound up late today a lengthy debate on its rules with an intensity and fervor seldom shown in that chamber. The leaders of the discussion, at odds on the issue were the democratic leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Senator Underwood of Alabama, who for years headed the democrats in both the house and senate.

Senator Curtis, the republican leader, came in for a share of the attack and Vice-President Dawes, who was presiding, was assailed as an advocate of rules that would silence the voice of the people.

A number of senators joined in the discussion and the day ended with the question still unsettled and several members clamoring for recognition so they might express their views.

The fuse was set off when Senator Underwood called up his resolution to limit debate on revenue and appropriation bills. He compared filibustering to a "little game called draw poker," and the senate immediately seized upon this for fun-making. For some time the chamber was swept with roars of laughter at the jibes and thrusts.

As the debate went along hilariously the vice-president rapped vigorously for order in an effort to get the senate to consider seriously the Underwood proposal which he favors. When he did get order he became absorbed in the debate and sat in the chair most of the day with serious mein.

Replying to Senator Underwood, Senator Robinson declared that Senator Curtis, taking advantage of his absence from the chamber had obtained unanimous consent for the Alabama senator to speak when the resolution was not before the body and there was no chance for a vote.

"You speak of archaic rules of the senate and you do not use the ones we have," He asserted. "You lay aside farm relief which Senators have been clamoring for and devote hours to a discussion that does not lead anywhere."

Senator Curtis explained that he merely wished to give Senator Underwood an opportunity to express his views and did not think any point of order and its objection.

Senator Robinson charged Senator Underwood with bringing "disgredit to a brilliant and glorious career by his speech and resolution.

"The senator from Alabama has enjoyed a long and distinguished service in the congress of the United States," he added. "When his services in the senate is approaching an end he challenges the procedure of the body in which he has served so long. He concludes his service by attacking the senate as incompetent and inefficient."

Shaking his finger at Vice-President Dawes, the democratic leader shouted:

"Now let me say to you sir, sitting there in the chair, with broad business experience, with patriotic purpose and motives, that nothing worse could come to the people of the United States than the condition which the resolution of the senator from Alabama would impose.

"The senate can and does transact business efficiently. The trouble is not in its failure to act but in its speed without proper deliberation. Instead of putting the whip on the backs of congress we ought to do something to slow it up as we have too much legislation."

Declaring that numerous bills of importance including Muscle Shoals and farm relief, were being held up, Senator Underwood declared passage of his resolution would give the majority power to control at least a part of its business.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, asserted the constitution did not intend for the majority to control. The majority is generally wrong, he said, adding that majority crucified Christ and drove the Jews into exile, by unlimited debate of scoundrels and reformers.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, said he was in "sharp disagreement" with the colleagues. Senator Underwood, and announced he would oppose any measure that would cut off debate.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, contended the resolution would substitute house rules for the senate rules.

HOUSE PASSES RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

WASHINGTON, June 4—(AP)—An omnibus rivers and harbors bill, brought before the house last week as a $36,000,000 proposal, was passed by the house today with a score of additional projects greatly increasing the total of its passing authorization after surviving one of the bitterest filibusters in recent years. Estimates of the total ranged from $52,000,000 to $80,000,000.

By a vote of 219 to 157 the measure was sent to the senate retaining all of its original 150 projects, the adding those of Little River drainage, resurvey of the All-American canal routes across New York state, and government purchase of the Cape Cod canal for $11,900,000.

An amendment for navigation development of the upper Missouri favored, estimated to cost more than other projects combined was added amid cries of "pork barrel."

All amounts specified in the bill are maximum authorizations, based upon engineers' estimates of costs, for which appropriations must be made by congress in separate legislation to initiate work on any of the proposals.

Senate leaders will seek action on the measure at this session. Senator Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the republican steering committee, announced after the house had given it approval. In view of its controversial provisions, however, doubt was expressed in some quarters whether the bill could be put to a vote in the senate before adjournment.

Last minute attempts to eliminate the most controversial provisions failed as a well defined majority roared its opposition to proposed changes.

Resurvey of the proposed All-American canal route by army engineers is proposed, with no specific expenditure authorized for this purpose.

IGNATZ MOSCICKI INDUCTED AS PRESIDENT OF POLAND

WARSAW, Poland, June 4.—(AP)—Ignats Moscicki, until a few days ago, a comparatively obscure professor in Lemberg university, and now president of the Polish republic, was formally inducted into office at noon today. The ceremony took place in the historic castle of the Polish kings.

The only untoward incident of the inauguration was a demonstration by communists, which came immediately after President Moscicki had taken the oath of his office before the national assembly which elected him president on Tuesday, after Marshal Pisudski had declined the office the previous day.

Shouts of "We want the political prisoners released!" and "Give us work for the unemployed!" were heard. The acting president, M. Rataj tried to silence the communists, without avail, when the assembly, with vigorous cries of "Long live Poland!" "Long live the president!" drowned them out.

The interim cabinet, set up after the coup de'etat of Marshal Pilsudski brought about the resignation of President Worciechowski and the Witos government, presented its resignation through Premier Bartel, but President Moscicki requested it to carry on until a new ministry is appointed.

While it is expected that the new cabinet will be virtually the same as the provisional one, there is a growing feeling that Poland will be ruled by an unofficial triumvirate made up of President Moscicki, Marshal Pilsudski and M. Bartel, who will propound general orders collectively, though they will be issued in the name of the president.

Marshal Pilsudski had a prominent place on the platform during the inaugural ceremonies. He sat in a special elaborate arm chair, surrounded by the other members of the Bartel cabinet.

NEW BRITAIN MAN DIED ON LINER MAURETANIA

NEW YORK, June 4—(AP)—C. H. Chamberlain, 74, of New Britain, Conn., a passenger on the Mauretania, died of pneumonia as the vessel was pulling into its slip here today. Relatives were waiting on the pier to greet him and the ship's doctors had been fighting to keep him alive until he could see them.

Mr. Chamberlain left here last winter on the Laconia for a world cruise.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, June 4.—(AP)—Baron Hans Hermann Von Berlep a former minister in the Prussian cabinet, died at his home here, 83 years old. He was one of the early leaders in the movement for social reform in Germany.

BRUSSELS, June 4.—(AP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies adopted most of the new tax measures proposed by Finance Minister Houtard, which is was estimated would yield 2,000,000,000 francs annually in additional taxes.

VENICE, June 4.—(AP)—The gondoliers of Venice who long have been clothed in romance, dropped their role for a short time today in pursuit of a 16 foot dolphin which made its way into the Grande canal. They pursued the fish for some time but were unable to capture it.

DUBLIN, June 4.—(AP)—The threatened strike of railway workers in Ireland was averted at a conference between representatives of all the Irish railways and the National Union of Railway men. The men had threatened to strike as result of wage cuts which were scheduled for June 10.

GLASGOW, Scotland, June 4.—(AP)—Sir Stewart Stockman, chief veterinary officer of the ministry of agriculture, died today in his 58th year. He recently returned from Argentina after an investigation into the meat trade there with a view to preventing the introduction of the foot and mouth disease into Great Britain.

BEST MAY IN HISTORY FOR THE NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad probably had its best May in its history, and the most profitable in more than ten years, surplus after charges being estimated at between $900,000 and $1,000,000, twice the amount in May, 1925, which amounted to $454,000. This would bring surplus for the five months this year to about $2,800,000, equal to $1.50 a share on $157,117,900 capital stock. Railroad statisticians figure the road may earn $7 a share or more in 1926 against $4.72 a share last year, and $5.67 a share in 1913, the next best previous year. This belief is encouraged by the company's steady improvement, in contrast to deficits in recent years, as heavy as $4,688,000 in 1923.

Landslide Kills Three Children

Were Playing in a Sand Bank Early Last Evening in Waterbury.

WATERBURY, June 4—(AP)—Three of five playmates are dead and two are recovering from suffocation following a landslide of a 30-foot sand bank on Watertown avenue here early this evening.

One member of the group was partially buried as he prepared a hole to jump in on the bank. As his companions laughingly worked to extricate him, tons of sand descended upon them. Three were entirely buried and two were partially covered.

The dead are: Eugene Chesney, 13, of 40 Colley street; John Bowen, 10, of 16 Colley street; Harold Serrell, 14, of 21 Colley street; Robert Williams, 11, of 10 Colley street, and Edward McDonald, 11 of 71 Robbins street, were partially suffocated but were discharged from the Waterbury hospital where they were resuscitated, an hour after the accident.

The children had just finished supper and were at the sand bank for a short playing period before darkness set in. Neighbors said play room in the neighborhood is scarce and the youngsters have been using the sand bank as a recreation spot.

Shortly before the first slide young Serrell and Vincent Bowen, brother of one of the dead boys, were preparing a soft spot for jumping. Vincent escaped in the slide that partly covered young Serrell. The group were at the side of Serrell but a few moments when the bank gave way. John Bowmon was the first to see the danger. He attempted to jump to safety but he was hit by the falling sand and thrown against a steam shovel at the bottom and entirely buried. Chesney and Serrell were also entirely imprisoned.

Passersby saw the landslide and hurried to the assistance of the imprisoned children. Firemen were called and in ten minutes the bodies were removed from beneath twelve feet of dirt. Three were dead when removed from the pit. McDonald and Williams were partly conscious.

All of the group were schoolmates at the Russell school.

Mothers of the three dead children were on the verge of collapse tonight following notification of the death of the boys.

BRIDGEPORT, June 4.—(AP)— The will of the late John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut, was admitted to probate this afternoon when presented by Attorney Charles Stuart Canfield, counsel and close friend of the republican leader for more than a score of years. The entire estate is left to Mrs. Eleanor J. King, his widow.

Couched in simple and brief phraseology, the will was drawn by Mr. Canfield on Saturday, April 29, 1922, and was witnessed by Mr. Canfield, his wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Canfield, and her sister, Mrs. Anna M. Hyde. It is in three parts, directing payment of debts, devising the residue and appointing an executrix. Mrs. King is designated as executrix in the document and will act in that capacity.

Little is known of the value of Mr. King's estate at the time of his death. He was a man who kept his personal financial details to himself.

Estimates as high as $7,000,000 have been made, but all are of doubtful foundation. Some of those who knew most about him say they would not be at all surprised whether the value is in the millions or a hundred thousand dollars or two. All are a loss.

Insurance of more than $100,000 was carried by Mr. King on his life, but this is not classed as part of his estate.

Read of Other Women Who Found Health

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Hegmann of 35 Central Ave., was in a run-down condition and could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at sometime in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," wrote Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

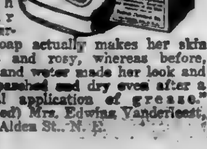
Little girl suffers five years from unusual skin trouble

Resinol relieves and heals

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 9:—"Sometime ago my little girl's whole body became dry and scaly. The skin where her shoes were laced and under her toes cracked open, which made it very painful. We were advised to keep her skin soft with a good cold cream or pure lard and for five years I have spent many hours and used numerous half-pound cans of cold cream, but to no avail. As she grew older the trouble gradually became worse until I remembered that when she was a baby I had cured a bad case of eczema by using Resinol Soap and Ointment.

So for three weeks she has had no other soap on her skin and I cannot begin to tell you how much improvement has been made. Her feet are almost normal and the rest of her body is better than it has been for years. Up to this time I had never been able to bathe her oftener than was absolutely necessary, but now a bath with your wonderful soap actually makes her skin moist and rosy, whereas before, soap and water made her look and feel parched and dry even after a liberal application of grease." (Signed) Mrs. Edwina Vanderleest, 1226 Alden St., N. E.



The Victoria—Your Second Car

At last this family decided to buy a second car.

And it's a family of four.

We just had to have another automobile to keep peace.

Our first was a Sedan.

But we don't all ride at the same time—and no two seem to want to go to the same place.

We cannot afford a chauffeur.

Father has to go down town in the morning, and we live in a suburb.

Unless we go with him and park him at the bank we have to go down later on the street car and get the automobile.

Afternoons are always busy.

Mother wants to go to one place—daughter another—and son still another.

Breakfast table conversations were tense at times.

So we just had to get another car.

It is a Jordan Victoria, and we call it Mother's car.

It is a light, commortable, compact, good looking enclosed car to carry four people with greatest ease.

It is not bulky like old fashioned cars—it is easy to steer, easy to turn around and snappy in the traffic press.

We had a choice of interesting colors. We could have had one of many cars.

But father thought that the Line Eight motor and the body with the all-vision front would bring more in the second hand market a year from now.

He is always thinking of economy.

Daughter thought it had pep and style, and would really make her happy and envied among her friends.

Son loves the snap, get-up-and-go of the motor. People stop and look as he passes by.

It is a fit companion for all other Jordans—the all-steel, all-vision Sedan, and the famous Playboy.

The Jordan Victoria was our happy choice of a second car.

COMMENCEMENT PLANS BY H. S. ALUMNI ASS'N.

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 4—Announcements went forth Friday from their executive committee to the members of the Killingly High School Alumni association, relative to the association's plans for the commencement period. There are some innovations this year.

The first event is the Alumni banquet, one of the new things. This is to be held at the Attawaugan hotel on the evening of Wednesday, June 16. Principal Ernest R. Waren, an alumnus of Killingly high, will be the toastmaster. Incident to this banquet the annual meeting of the association is held. This arrangement will permit leaving the night of the association's reception in honor of the graduating class free for that particular purpose. In the past it has been customary to hold the business meeting co-incident with the reception. It is felt that having the meeting at another time, as will be done his year, will have distinct advantages and that more members of the association will attend. Following the banquet and the annual business meeting there is to be an Alumni dance in the assembly hall at the high school.

The Alumni-K. H. S. annual baseball game will be played this year Wednesday, June 8 at Connecticut Mills field. C. Clinton Cleveland and Norman Reeves will form the Alumni team and are interested to hear from candidates for places among the players.

The important affair of commencement week for the Alumni is the time-honored reception and dance which it will give for the graduating class. This year, on account of repairs being under way at the armory, the affair will be held for the first time at the fine new dance pavilion at Wildwood park and Currier's orchestra of Worcester will play for the dancing. The pavilion will afford more space for dancers than the armory floor and, should the night be unduly warm, the pavilion can be opened and the cooling breezes from the lake invited to al din adding to the comfort of the dancers.

This year, contemplating the enlarged high school that will be the town's in the early fall, the Alumni association is intensely interested in getting every possible graduate of the high school within its ranks. There are many things it can do for the prestige of the honored institution and the association hopes with the proper cooperation from eligible members to do many of them.

The Alumni committee is made up of Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, president; Arthur F. Hughes, vice president; J. Leo Bodo, secretary-treasurer; C. Clinton Cleveland, Norman A. Reeves and Florence P. Hargraves, executive committee.

NEW TWILIGHT LEAGUE MADE UP OF SIX TEAMS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 4—Six teams now make up the newly organized Twilight league, which is scheduled to play games Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening during the months of June, July and August. Abel L. Reeves is president of the league and J. Leo Bodo secretary-treasurer.

The teams are the Paco Curtain Makers, Delord Grennon manager; the Kilowatts, D and P. Gas and Electric team, William Snagster manager; the Nail Drivers made up exclusively of carpenters, Joseph LaBelle manager; the Buddies, American Legion team, Lucien Lambert manager; Connecticut Mills, Charles Lowry manager, and the Beavers, C. Clinton Cleveland manager. The officers with the team managers constitute a governing body.

This league has already caught the imagination and stirred the enthusiasm of the people of Danielson. In games played during the present week hundreds have crowded to Paco field, south of Cottage, to cheer the players and get all het up over this or that feature of an exciting contest.

It may be said that the Twilight leaguers are playing good baseball. These are no scrub teams, but real honest-to-goodness combinations of good players, many of them with years of experience and fine diamond records. The rosters are exclusively confined to local men. No player is eligible if he plays on a mill or lighting company team, unless he has been employed by the concern he represents for at least 30 days. On other teams players must have a bona fide residence of at least three months in Danielson.

Of interest is the fact that there are five LaBelles on the Nail Drivers team—every one of them a carpenter.

Next week's schedule of games is as follows: Tuesday, Nail Drivers vs. American Legion, at Paco grounds; Wednesday, Kilowatts vs. Paco, at Paco grounds; Thursday, Connecticut Mills vs. Cleavers at Connecticut Mills grounds.

All games start at 7 o'clock. Seven innings are played. No admission charges are made, the collection going for the necessary equipment as a team uses. The league is not intended as a money-making proposition, but good sports will not see it die—and the interest it greatest lost—through stinginess, where giving a very small sum, a dime or so, will keep it going and give Danielson more baseball than it has enjoyed in a decade.

In the town court before Judge W. Fenner Woodward, Friday morning, Hermanigilde Lajeunesse, who lives on upper Maple street at the Riverside park property, was fined $5 and actual costs, a total of $9.74, when he pleaded guilty to not giving the right of way when his car was in collision, Tuesday afternoon, with a machine driven by Alfred Flira of Brooklyn. He was represented by Attorney L. A. Wolsard. Helen Flira, 7, was cut under and over the left eye in the accident. Meanwhile Mr. Flira has instituted a civil action for damages against Mr. Lajeunese, attaching both his house and his car.

A lively and very interesting debate between representatives of the senior and junior classes was held at Killingly high school Friday morning on the proposition—Resolved, that the United States should cancel the French war debt. The juniors, represented by Miss Winifred Hammett and Harriet Beecher had the affirmative, the seniors, represented by Henry Stoddard and Walter LaPierre, upholding the negative. The seniors won. The judges were Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, Rev. Roger C. Stimson and Rev. Chester J. Armstrong.

When the chamber of commerce meets next Tuesday evening it will discuss two matters of special interest—one pertaining to the establishment of a credit bureau, the other relative to a previous agreement that had to do with refraining, through mutual agreement, from subscribing to any fund not endorsed by the chamber association committee and likewise to abstain from participating in any stamp-giving, coupon or other premium arrangement. A recent development here has revived the issue relative to premium giving, which is strenuously opposed by numbers of business men. The proposed credit bureau would be a medium through which business men would keep in touch with the business men's experience with bad accounts and furnish the members valuable information for their own protection.

My colored clothes wash brighter

—this easy way

IT'S wonderful to watch everything come out so fresh and clean. I never knew colored things could get so bright and new-looking. And I don't even touch a washboard.

I just soak the wash in rich Rinso suds. Dirt and stains float off by themselves. Clothes get whiter and brighter than I could scrub them.

Rinso is a granulated laundry soap, and it's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or harsh chemicals. I like it because it softens the water and gives thick suds.

So easy on my hands! They don't get a bit red or washworn. Ask your grocer for MRS. H. H. DAVENPORT DIES SUDDENLY IN PENN.

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 4.—Mrs. H. H. Davenport, 68, formerly of Pomfret, died suddenly Wednesday in Harrisburg, Penn., where she and her husband have been making their home since they left Pomfret, except during the winter seasons which they spent in Florida. No details of the death have been received here. It was not known that she was ill.

A meeting of the K. K. K. or White-hooded order was held Wednesday evening on a vacant lot near Burrill's Grove on the Providence road. The automobile began to arrive about 8 o'clock, the first one carrying on the radiator a large cross about three feet high lighted by red electric lights. Some of the other cars had smaller crosses on them. It is reported that there were nearly 150 cars parked in the open lot, most of them carrying Rhode Island registrations, some from Massachusetts and a few Connecticut. The meeting lasted from about 8 o'clock until 10:30. This is the second meeting held in this vicinity, the first one being held last fall a little further east. It was a very orderly affair and farmers, attracted by the number of parked automobiles, could hear band clapping after several speeches that were made. A large wooden cross was seen burning for more than half an hour and was estimated as being about 15 feet high. Members of the order could be seen putting out sparks as they fell to the ground. It has evidently not been noticed by the Klan that the membership of the order in Connecticut has dropped to one-tenth of what it formerly was and that the treasury is empty.

The joint committee from the Meth-odist, Congregational and Baptist churches decided that it would not be practicable to hold a Vacation Bible school this year as they were having difficulty in securing teachers. JEWETT CITY

FROST FRIDAY MORNING DOES DAMAGE TO GARDENS

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 4—Old frost records were cracked, if not actually broken, Thursday night when, as reported by Charlie Butts, one of the night patrolmen at the Aspinook bleachery between 3 and 4 o'clock Friday morning the mercury at the plant dropped to 40 degrees. Early milkmen coming from the south part of the town, reported frost, "all white" on the fence rails, as they came along the road before dawn. The white frost which appears on fences and housetops, it is explained by local weather sharps, forms at two or three degrees higher temperature than the frost that affects vegetation. At Victor Campbell's, the mercury at 5 a. m. Friday had fallen to 34 degrees and a heavy frost killed all his early beans that were above ground. Several farmers along the Quinebaug valley report low temperature, but with a little show of fog rising from the river, and no frost.

W. C. Terry, in his old weather records finds that beans were killed by frost in early June in 1878.

One farmer remarked, that a man would be likely to have gray hairs in his top knot, to have been alive when it was a colder night, during the first week in June.

Antoine Maynard, one of the oldest residents of the borough went to Westerly Friday to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Joseph Quebec.

An unusual number within the borough limits are receiving treatment for ivy poisoning. Physicians are saying that while some people are immune, and can handle ivy with impunity, others are poisoned by a wind that may blow across the plant toward them, as they pass near by.

A recent visit to Bishop's crossing by a party of local people, to witness the interesting activity going on, in connection with the elimination of the railroad crossing, served as the stimulus for a discussion, at a recent notable gathering, relative to the re-routing of the state road, as applied to, and touching the borough of Jewett City. It is believed that the matter is practically settled, so that the new and accepted survey will leave the borough side-tracked and entirely off the main highway. It is pointed out, that had this not been the case, Bishops, a far from dangerous crossing, would have been undisturbed.

It is expected that the new road will leave the present state road near St. Mary's cemetery, go over a new bridge across the Aspinook reservoir at Pott's Point, then strike the present level, at a point just north of the lower bridge at Tadpole, known among motor drivers as the "S" curve bridge.

Not in several years have early southern strawberries offered in the local markets been as fine as at present. Friday prime berries found ready buyers at 30 cents a box. It is estimated that 5,000 boxes will hardly be a sufficiently high figure for the week's sales.

One local hardware merchant has sold two dozen lawn mowers this spring, and Saturday was awaiting another consignment, having completely sold out. Two other dealers report orders of considerable value. The time is recalled, by an old clipping from the Bulletin when people went to the A. A. Young residence to see the first one in operation on his lawn. Now he has one that has gasoline as motive power. Mr. Young was the pioneer in many things, he owned the first automobile in town, also the first launch to be operated by gas, belonged to him.

Thursday being a clerks' half holiday, a number tried the gentle art of trout fishing. While some went to Willow brook and others to Clarks bridge, a select part went to the well known and famous Wiley brook, that empties into Mt. Misery pond. Old Cluey Watson owns a small private trout preserve hidden somewhere in that largely unexplored region.

The men mentioned, determined to locate said preserve, and take therefrom an exceedingly great draft of fishes. They did find a still dark pool, where a small dam lets over a pretty fall of clear water. It is reported that after fishing it for two hours they had to show a sucker with part of his back in gone, and a bullhead minus one eye.

Old Cluey, hearing of the attempted raid on his private lake, came over to town Friday, looking for the trespassers.

Very Reverend Michael McCabe council K. of C. entertained the Columbia players this week with a chicken supper, served at the Wauregan house, in Norwich.

A number from here attended the Wayside fair at Park church Thursday, where Miss Ruth Ballou was one of the singers.

FAIRY GODMOTHER TO 909 NEGLECTED CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, June 4—Fairy godmother to 909 neglected children of Connecticut was the role played by the Connecticut Children's Aid society during the past year. At a per capita cost to the society of $61, these children have been given a total of 9,779 weeks' care. Boarding care has been given 204 youngsters in temporary and permanent foster-homes, supervised by the social workers of the organization staff. Each visitor has been solely responsible for the children, usually about 35, under her care; she has visited each foster-home at least once a month, seen to it that her boys and girls were properly fed and clothed, made appointments with doctors and dentists, and consulted with the foster-parents and teachers regarding their training.

The society is now locating temporary country homes for convalescent boys and girls, school children, emaciated youngsters and puny babies who have no escape from the city heat except through its help. The hot months of summer bring a heavy demand for this type of home. On one of the dustiest days of last July, reads one of the booklet stories, a little chap named Tommy was discharged from the Hartford hospital where for a month, under the supervision of the agency, he had enjoyed the services of a free bed. His sores were healed and he grinned every time he thought of the enormous breakfast he had just eaten—but a ghost-like pallor, thin, shaky legs and quiet hands proclaimed him only a shadow of a boy.

"To the country," commanded the doctor. "To the country," said the society and presto Tommy was transported to a farm where prickly grass and warm earth beneath bare feet, clean cool air and food that was chock-full of life-giving vitamines made him over into one of Clare Briggs' "reglar fellers."

The Connecticut Children's Aid society has been for 30 years the only state-wide, non-sectarian, private agency caring for the neglected children of Connecticut. It is dependent on voluntary subscriptions. The method of work, as explained in the brochure just published, is first to attempt to restore the child to his own home. If the experiment fails, it endeavors to find for him a foster-home and foster-parents who will bring him up in the understanding family-care which is his birth-right. The organization believes, to quote its own statement, that "from an economic point of view it is cheaper to guide children than to punish adults: from a human point of view it is satisfying to bring happiness into the golden years of childhood."

Recently appeals for service from Fairfield county became so numerous that it was felt a branch office might more efficiently handle the work in that territory, and in November, 1925, the Fairfield district office was opened in Danbury by Mrs. Laura B. Makinson, district secretary. The central office, 50 Trumbull street, Hartford, under the leadership of Ralph Barrow, executive secretary, and Mrs. Grace C. Carr, district secretary, covers the rest of the state, giving special service to the rural districts where there are no established agencies to care for needy children.

The governing board includes Philip B. Gale, president; Miss Marjory Cheney, Mrs. S. B. Hemingway and Thomas Howes, vice-presidents; Paul M. Butterworth, secretary. Directors are drawn from Danbury, Farmington, Hartford, New Britain, Pine Orchard, Ridgefield, Stamford, South Manchester, Simsbury and Torrington.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Leon H. Osgood sells lots of it.

Light Is Air Gauge

No longer is it necessary for the motorist, getting "free air" at the gas station, to disconnect the air hose from the tire valve frequently to test the pressure in the tire.

An automatic air-meter is the latest device for the gas station, says Popular Science Monthly. The motorist sets the dial at the exact pressure he desires in the tires.

When the dial is set, a light, by which the indicator is pointing, comes on. All that is necessary now is to attach the hose to the tire. When the tire is filled to the pressure indicated, the light goes off.

Women Live Longer Than Men

Women live longer than men owing to the fact that they lead a more sheltered life and run less risk of coming to an untimely end, said an official of the London health department. He was discussing figures which showed that of 382 deaths of people more than 90 years of age 278 were of women. Of this number 153 were unmarried and 32 had reached the century mark.

THE COMING CITY ELECTION

When the republicans in caucus nominated George G. Engler to head the ticket for the coming city election which election will be held next Monday, they selected a well known, courteous and capable young man. As one of the leading business men of the city, who can be depended upon to give to the city's affairs the same close attention and successful business administration that he has so well demonstrated in his own business, his qualifications for the office cannot fail to appeal to the independent as well as the republican voters. He gives the confidence and assurance which the seekers of good government demand and should command the votes of those who have the welfare of the city at heart.

Associated with Mr. Engler on the ticket are men prominently identified with industrial and business interests of the community, men of good judgment, men who are anxious to accomplish the greatest good for the greatest number. Through the election of the entire republican ticket the city government would be placed in new hands and with a mandate from the people better government, lower taxes and greater efficiency could be expected.

It rests with the voters of the city to show whether the time has come for a change. If it has, and they so recognize it it can be assured by the pulling of the top lever on the voting machine next Monday and putting the city government in the hands of the republicans.

Whatever the outcome there should be a large turnout of the voters next Monday. It is the vote of the many that is desirable in determining so important a matter. Get out to the polls and vote. Have the satisfaction of doing your part.

THE REFERENDUM

The prohibition question has been getting a lot of attention in congress during this session. It has been kept to the front even though it has been evident that nothing could be done at this time, but it was apparently regarded as a time for getting a better distribution for the propaganda.

Thus it is not surprising that the special senatorial sub committee, to which was referred a number of measures concerning modification, amendment or repeal of the Volstead act reports that there should be indefinite postponement of the consideration of any bill of the character discussed.

Furthermore the sub committee expressed itself concerning the question of a national referendum on the prohibition question by declaring that there is no legal authority for holding a national referendum on prohibition.

On the question of the referendum numerous congressmen have expressed their views. There are those who do not oppose it although they feel that it can accomplish nothing, that it can not alter the law and it cannot be regarded as nullifying prohibition even though it should show a wet majority.

When it comes to the matter of a referendum, nationally or by states, it cannot be supposed that through such an expression on the part of the people that any law would be removed or impaired. The idea has not been to accomplish any change merely by the referendum. In seeking such an expression the desire is to find out how the people feel regarding the question of prohibition in order that those who represent the people may know what to do without guessing, when it comes to dealing with efforts for modification of repeal of the Volstead act. Just as long as it can be claimed that the will of the people has never been definitely determined those who attack the law and those who obstruct enforcement that the people do not want it. A referendum would settle whether they do or not.

THE FRENCH DEBT

Satisfactory as far as it has gone is the progress made in regard to the ratification of the French debt settlement. Indications point to the fact that it can be expected that the senate will take more time than the house did in declaring itself, and whether that will be at this session of congress or the next will depend upon the action taken by France.

No doubt if the senate got down to business and took a vote it would be found that the desired approval would be given, but senate action will probably depend to a large extent upon the way in which France reacts.

Ambassador Berenger is decidedly optimistic. He is confident of ratification by the French parliament and will be a sadly disappointed man if such action isn't taken but there is a hard road ahead. France dallied and made restrictions before and it is to be expected that there will be those who will insist upon similar demands at this time. Thus it will depend upon how large a number feels that way and how much time it takes to wear down the opposition, if in fact that can be done without serious consequences to the government.

If France for instance should ratify with the provision that it should be obligated to pay only to the extent that Germany pays it would throw the entire matter back where it was before the Berenger negotiations, and it is certain that such a provision would not be acceptable to this country.

The disposition of this government is disclosed by the action of the house. If France now deals with the matter in the light of the Berenger advice, one of the obstacles in the way of early action by the United States senate will be removed. Senate action is in fact being delayed in order to learn what France is going to do. Thus it depends to a large degree upon France whether ratification by this country is completed at this session of congress or will be delayed until the next.

LOWELL'S FIRE TRAPS

It was a serious fire which Lowell experienced when a loss of $1,500,000 was suffered, but what attracts even more attention are the claims now being made by State Fire Marshal Neal of Massachusetts who brings to attention the fact that conditions in those very buildings were known long ago and what has happened is only what was anticipated and what might have been prevented. Efforts were not only made to bring about certain protective measures but they were disregarded.

The very buildings which were destroyed constituted in the opinion of the state fire marshal the worst fire hazards in Massachusetts. He made an investigation there six years ago, endeavored to get the owner of the buildings, the mayor of Lowell and the fire commissioner interested in dealing with the situation, but without result. His recommendations, including a sprinkler system for the buildings, were reported to the legislature but even there no action was taken. The investigation went for naught except for the fact that it is now possible to point out the fact that what has happened did not come as a surprise to Lowell authorities, certain Lowell people and members of the state legislature.

Regrettable as the loss in the fire is a vindication of the investigator's claims. As in Lowell it is the same in too many other instances where similar hazards are pointed out and yet nothing is ever done about them in the way of prevention.

The Lowell fire might have been much worse. Many lives might have been lost in addition to the property, but who is going to shoulder the responsibility for tolerating one of the worst fire hazards in that state? Certainly the state fire marshal cannot be blamed.

FIGHTING OPIUM

Although the demoralizing effects of opium are well known serious difficulties always arise when attempts are made to get an international agreement for abolishing the traffic in it.

There have been conscientious endeavors put forth for years with the idea of curtailing the business as a protection to humanity. Others have had to do with the restriction of the sales and in this direction the effort has been made to have the production of opium restricted to the requirements of medicine and science. In spite of the desirability of ending the frightful conditions caused by dope there are those who cannot disregard the fact that there is money in the business and too often the financial consideration is the ruling factor.

Some light on this situation seems to have been furnished by the outburst in the opium conference at Paris, held under league of nations auspices this week, where the representative from China charged that the British government was poisoning the world through the opium monopoly in India. He had much more to say about China having a chip on its shoulder as far as the British were concerned and that there was such a thing as driving it to the tearing up of certain treaties.

For China to be making such a fight as that against opium is in marked contrast to some years ago, but it also indicates how China feels at the obstructions which others are placing in the way of its endeavors to help in a reform for the whole world.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In order to see the wonderful distinctions in colors and the clear-cut shadings of the same color, one must have cold weather, from which an inference may be made that colors and their shadings must be wonderfully distinct this year. When this paragraph was written we were having unusually cool weather for the last of May, but by the time it appears in print the thermometer may be up in the eighties. Quite recently the writer was sitting by the side of a small body of water entirely surrounded by trees and shrubbery. The water was so perfectly quiet that it mirrored the vegetation on its banks. There was every shade of green from the ferns up to the pine and spruce. The dogwood was a profusion of white, while here and there the pale pink of the azalea was bursting into bloom. The oak with its dusky red made its contribution to this variety of color. Now these colors cannot be seen to their best advantages under the shimmering of thermal waves. Hence this good word for cool weather.

As the writer of these paragraphs saw and greatly enjoyed the recent Academy-Bulkeley baseball game he could not help thinking what a change has come as to the value of athletics to students since his own school days. Our colleges and universities tolerated them because they hardly dared to face the enthusiasm on the part of students. They seemed to feel that they must be most carefully guarded otherwise the moral effect would be quite perilous. He remembers hearing an alumnus of his own college upbraid the corporation for indorsing gymnasium training. He was narrow minded enough to point to his own bull strength as evidence that students did not require a gymnasium. I believe that one of the most valuable contributions that an American university has given to society in the last quarter century was Walter Camp. He has done more to put athletics just where they belong than any other man. Why should they not be a part of the college curriculum?

The fact that this country was born 150 years ago has great educational value. In the last 50 years this country has moved forward in all directions in leaps and bounds that are quite unparalleled in the history of mankind. Philadelphia is amply justified in having her sesquicentennial, to show the world what was been done for the common good in the last 50 years. Along the line of history along the educational value of an exposition would alone justify its existence. Think of what it means in the line of biography; what it means in reshaping of the geography of Europe; and most of all what does it mean in the field of science.

The remark of a Polish resident who has learned to operate a Ford car was highly significant; "I rides all over everywheres and nobody never tells me not to go nowheres." His eyes were beaming with pleasure as he tasted the sweets of liberty as he had not known before. When he went out with his car he was not everywhere faced with a notice posted on great landed estates that warned "common clay" to keep off. The writer knows very well that type of the Polish citizen. He is the man who is making good in this country, because he wants to improve his own condition and that of his family. Also because he knows what hard work is and is not afraid of it. There are parts of our city where our Polish residents have put up about a score of very respectable houses. They work in the mills all day and also into the night on their property. They have converted an old swale into arable land, or, in Biblical language, "the wilderness and solitary place is glad for them and the desert rejoices and blossoms as the rose."

One of the marvels of our day is the up-to-date newspaper. When one realizes what a variety of human activity is given in the daily press he feels that it constitutes the eighth wonder of the world. Nothing that appeals to human interest or desire is left out. Every shade of human action is unfolded, and every shade of human desire is appealed to in the great metropolitan press. And if all the valuable things printed in a single year could be gathered together and bound in durable form it would comprise a library worthy of any American university. It is the largest source of information to which the majority of people have access. The fact that our great papers are free to speak their convictions add to their intrinsic value.

We expect, of course, that the newspapers will report doings that show the shady as well as the bright side of life. But is there not a tendency with too many journals to make revolting things too lurid. Has exercising a baneful influence? And this applies especially to tender minds that are in the formative period. If many people are uplifted by the moral tone of the public press, there are others that are equally debased. A newspaper can be made a power for righteousness or evil. As an illustration of the latter take this disgusting "bathtub" affair in New York that the papers are stringing out almost to infinity. It makes decent people feel that from now on they would like to shun the bathtub altogether, which of course would be an evil equally great. But the question arises is the public press justified in pandering to the depraved tastes of only a part of its constituency. The moral side has a voice in the matter.

No reasonable opposition can be made to economy in principle. The trend of sentiment, as judged by the tone of the daily press, favors the position taken by President Coolidge. It is economy apart from parsimony. Retrenchment is always in order where there is unnecessary waste. However to retrench in some things is evidence of shortsightedness. If by the mere saving of money in any community you are going to injure its general capacity you introduce a moral element. The very last place on earth where we are justified in skimping is in the schooling of our boys and girls. If it is true (and nobody can doubt it) that the country's greatest asset is its men and women—and this of course include the boys and girls—then we simply must not deprive them of anything that is necessary for their education. The greatest thing in America is its system of education.

THE NEW ENGLAND PLAYGROUND

FRANK A. WAUGH in Review of Reviews.

The harshest critics of New England grant that it is a prosperous manufacturing section and a pleasant summer playground. How sweeping is its claim to distinction as a health and vacation country has, however, still failed of appreciation due to the inexplicable modesty of these Yankees themselves. They never had the advertising habit; they never participated in a real estate boom; they have believed that New England was better than any other country and that everybody else would just naturally recognize so plain a fact.

Thus without any brass bands or any adequate publicity the really extensive resorts along the seashore and in the White Mountains have grown up. Yet here they are doing a steady business all summer and many of them caring for swarms of guests in midwinter.

It would be difficult to get any statistical picture of this wide-flung play, of the summer camps for boys and girls, the hotels in the mountains, along the shore, the innumerable golf clubs, the hunting lodges, the wayside teahouses, the summer homes on every hill. It may be noted, though, that this country has the raggedest seashore on the map—all cut into bays and estuaries and promontories—more miles of shore front than any part of the map ten times as large. And any visitor may see with his naked eye that these shores are thickly built for miles with recreation cottages. Some of these "cottages" at Newport cost a half-million dollars and some at Mosquito beach were made out of disqualified packing boxes. But from June till Labor day they are crowded with health and recreation seekers.

Did you ever participate in a New England "shore dinner," the clams, the lobsters and the green corn cooked on the beach and eaten in the salty open air? If you have there is nothing more to say; if you haven't there is yet much to learn.

A considerable section of the White Mountains, including the Presidential range, is included in a national forest. On this area some attempt is made to keep an annual tally on the visitors. For the year 1925 the count registered 923,900—probably a low estimate. It would require very little guessing, though, to suppose that these visitors spent more than $10 each on camping! For when one sleeps out in his tent he is drinking nature to her rich and luscious lees.

Along with such camping and fishing go the canoes. This fragile and beautiful craft belongs by tradition to Maine and Canada, but canoes are popular throughout New England, even at the salt water resorts. Even at that they are not so much patronized as they deserve to be. For in Massachusetts and Connecticut—coming back to the crowded and overcivilized parts—there are literally thousands of miles of good canoe water. There are lovely little brooks, used by nobody but the muskrats and the wild fowl, where one may paddle his canoe, or float at leisure and look in the mirror below him. Here he may pitch his tent, fry his bacon, roll up in his blanket and dream like a boy.

A Network of Roads

Every section of America now has good roads, but for obvious reasons southern New England has more miles per acre than any other. There are wide trunk lines where the traffic mounts to 5,000 cars a day — some more than that; and there are quiet country lanes where one would be puzzled to meet another car, but might meet a cow. The country lanes for me!

And, with the possible exception of Old England, after which this territory was nicknamed, these are the loveliest roads in the world. This is the mature opinion of a man who has studied roads from the standpoint of the landscape architect and the artist. They wind in and out, up hill and down the valley, here giving a view of outspread farm and far mountains, here showing glimpses of glassy lakes, here listening to the clash of roaring brooks. The straight flat, featureless highway of other lands should not be spoken of in the same sermon. Those straight roads may be good for hauling crops to market, but for beauty and for pleasure there is no comparison.

The fact is that motoring for pleasure is one of the most popular pastimes in modern America; and it is no serious breach of etiquette, I hope, to claim the obvious superiority of New England roads for this good business. And if we remember that the one small state of Massachusetts for example, has a million automobiles running an average of 3,000 miles a year on pleasure bent, at an average cost of ten cents a mile, the first class in arithmetic may quickly compute this single item for a valuation of $300,000,000. This is no trifling matter.

Wild Game

As a starter for strangers one of the best items is that wild deer are common in Connecticut and Massachusetts—so common, in fact, as to be a nuisance to the farmers. People from Oklahoma and North Dakota can hardly credit this statement. Are not Massachusetts and Connecticut two of the most densely populated states in the Union? And how can wild deer (and an occasional moose) thrive there when all the native large game has practically disappeared from the sparsely settled western states?

Yet here they are—by thousands. A deer, chased by dogs, recently ran down a main business street in New Haven and jumped through a show window. Not infrequently the motorist sees deer from the state highway. Each November there is an open season of six days in Massachusetts, and during that time approximately 2,000 deer are killed, representing roughly the natural increase. It comes a little hard to imagine a hunter taking the elevated out of Boston to kill a wild deer in the woods. Yet that is entirely possible.

While deer are undoubtedly the sportiest game in southern New England. There is good gunning for ducks and other water fowl every fall along the shores of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Cape Cod. There are also some partridges and pheasants within gunshot of the skillful nimrod.

All this refers to the three southern states in the group. Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, everybody knows, have larger and remoter areas of wild land. The far forests of the Pine Tree state are amongst the wildest and sportiest remaining anywhere on this continent. Deer, moose and bear and staple species. Hunting big game is a recognized and advertised sport. A whole union of guides lives off the relatively solvent sportsmen who betake themselves thither, in ever-increasing numbers, for the hunting and fishing.

Good Fishing

For the fishing "down in Maine" is even more famous. Probably it is the best fishing in the United States. Or if there are any better streams they are few and far and secret. I have myself fished (and caught trout) in Oregon, California and Colorado, in streams reported to be the best, and I would have to testify that I have seen just as good fishing in Massachusetts, in Massachusetts, mind you, not to mention Vermont and Maine.

Moosehead Lake and Champlain are commonly conceded to be the best fishing waters in this part of the world. Champlain does not yield trout, but has some bass, plenty of pickerel and a good stock of wall-eyed pike; while for the frying pan old campers always fall back on the ubiquitious yellow perch.

Each New England state is served by an eager, competent fish and game commission. Streams and covers are freely stocked and well protected. Thousands on thousands of hunting and fishing licenses are granted annually for a tidy sum of fees. It is a fact that some men who pay their yearly fee never shoot a bird nor catch a fish, but most of these men and boys—and women—really catch something. Thousands of sober citizens still know the smell of frying fish and the taste of venison.

Camping and Canoeing

What is more—vastly more, is that hundreds of thousands of New Englanders, though they live in the most crowded cities, may still find within easy reach of home long miles of wild singing brooks over which to cast their flies and miles on miles of untamed forest land where deer, bear and moose still run wild. Here they may fish and hunt, and here they may pitch their tents and sit by the campfire, here they may float their canoes and remember that they are free and native Americans.

For this has long been the characteristically American thing. The wild country here is altogether a different commodity from the kept covers of Europe where nobody but the nobility (either of blood or money) may sit on a stool and have the game driven in. Every genuine American feels this in his blood. "The call of the wild" is the call of his native land.

Nowhere else (except for a limited area in southern California) do the natives turn so naturally and numerously to these aboriginal backgrounds. The shores of our ten thousand lakes are almost scandalously crowded, and sometimes, it must be confessed, are spoilt by the shacks and cottages of the campers, that is of persons who come here to spend long and delicious vacations. A thousand miles of seashore are similarly preempted. Along the remotest streams these camps will be found.

Besides these permanent cottage camps there are other thousands on thousands of enthusiastic lovers of the wilds camping under canvas—real camping! For when one sleeps out in his tent he is drinking nature to her rich and luscious lees.

Along with such camping and fishing go the canoes. This fragile and beautiful craft belongs by tradition to Maine and Canada, but canoes are popular throughout New England, even at the salt water resorts. Even at that they are not so much patronized as they deserve to be. For in Massachusetts and Connecticut—coming back to the crowded and overcivilized parts—there are literally thousands of miles of good canoe water. There are lovely little brooks, used by nobody but the muskrats and the wild fowl, where one may paddle his canoe, or float at leisure and look in the mirror below him. Here he may pitch his tent, fry his bacon, roll up in his blanket and dream like a boy.

Winter Sports

All this comes with the leisure of summer holidays. To outsiders New England undoubtedly appears most as a summer vacation land. Over great areas, I am aware, they pity us our Arctic winters. Those friends little realize how comfortable and happy we are here in January.

In truth the winter vacations are as delightful here as those of summer. Ask the girls who go up to Dartmouth to the winter carnival. Ask the men and women who crowd the resorts in the White Mountains for winter sports. Ask the boys and girls who go sleighing, skating, snowshoeing and skiing.

Of course there are concerts and dramatics and dances evenings; but why tempt and tantalize the world by dwelling longer on the good times which fill the too-short days and the long nights of the Yankee winter?

Public Reservations

Such a large and complicated run of outdoor recreation calls for large appropriations of land. Summer camps, cottages and hotels are all on lands privately owned; and this acquisition of private property has raised some troublesome questions. Here is a lovely little lake, originally enjoyed freely by the community at large—a public resort for bathing, boating and fishing. But gradually the shores are bought out for private cottages; presently the whole shore is taken and the public practically excluded. But not without protest and bad blood.

The general answer to these developments has been the erection of considerable systems of public land holdings dedicated to free public recreation. These reservations are of a rather miscellaneous character, but their main object is the same. Or if we make an exception of the important public forests, as having been set aside for more utilitarian purposes, still these forests, too, are very generally and generously used for recreation.

It Pays to Be Beautiful

The only National park in the east is the Lafayette on the shores of Maine; but the largest and most visited area is the White Mountain National forest of some 400,000 acres. Connecticut and Massachusetts have numerous state parks sometimes under other names—and all the states have state forests.

All this great mass of outdoor life, for health, education and recreation, is immeasurably valuable. Yet all derives from the landscape. Without the forests, lakes, streams and seashore it would all be impossible.

The landscape of New England is in fact extraordinarily charming. It is varied. Other regions have larger mountains, some have larger lakes, some have bigger rivers, Nebraska and Kansas have their noble prairies; but New England has good examples of almost everything; and the different types are interspersed so as to give that constant variety which is the spice of life.

There are no freaks of nature, nor spectacular wonders in this landscape. For this very reason the landscape is more acceptable as a daily diet. One can see Niagara Falls, or the geysers or the Grand Canyon now and then for a few days of awesome wonder, but no one would choose to live in such an environment. The New England landscape is nowhere overwhelming, nowhere demanding ecstasies and exclamations. Rather is it quiet, refined homely, luxuriant with trees and foliage, smiling, friendly. The lakes are small enough to be known personally and loved. The brooks sing melodiously. The forests whisper tenderly so that those who have ears to hear, as it saith in the Scriptures, may hear. The whole landscape is intimate and human.

That, no doubt, is why so many annual visitors find in it the refreshment of spirit which is the best of any vacation, winter or summer. And more especially is that the reason why the several millions of men and women to whom this country is home love it so wholly, so passionately.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Referendum

Mr. Editor: The six Connecticut congressmen who are recorded as "not opposed" to a popular "referendum" on the problem of prohibition are either ignorant of the form of government of the United States, or opposed to it, or indifferent.

Senator McLean and Representatives Tilson and Merritt all see the futility of it, while Schuyler Merritt's outspoken opposition shows that he realizes how inconsistent the proposition is with representative government.

Senator McLean clearly sees the practical folly of the plan when he remarks that while a fraction or even a majority of the electorate in any voting precinct might favor or oppose by a decided expression it would settle nothing and only make confusion worse confounded.

"The referendum" proposition is nothing less than the old-time "squatter sovereignty" doctrine of anti-slavery days, or latterly known as the "local option" delusion of the earlier anti-saloon movement. It serves only to entrench the evil in its strongholds, there to embarrass and damage and defy the entire social order.

The liquor question is not local and never can be. It involves far more than a police regulation. It involves a broad public policy of government. The wreck and ruin of alcohol are apparent wherever tolerated and there is now an organized conspiracy of those who seek profit from the traffic in "booze" and "dope."

Mark this fact—there is no real demand among persons who realize the physical nature and effect of alcohol for the restoration of the traffic therein as a beverage. The booze traffic is on the defensive without a defense. Not one person of character and standing will come to the defense of alcohol as a drink. Even physicians are repudiating it as a "medicine." Not even the championship of distinguished apostles of "moderation," like Dean Inge, ex-President Hadley and Nicholas Murray Butler, can stand against the plain revelations of modern science as to the "wholly evil effect" of alcohol, as Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk expresses it. The attention of fair-minded citizens everywhere is invited to these statements, which indicate the great truths underlying the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. The nature and effect of alcohol cannot be changed by legislative fiat or popular "referendum."

The proposal to revise the prohibition party is of doubtful expediency. That movement had its day and served its purpose to help arouse the nation to "the irrepressible conflict" of this day and generation. The national prohibition party was absolutely right in its effort to make the liquor question "the dominant issue," but the third-party movement did not succeed at that time any more than the abolition movement did as a separate party; but in each case the movement "elected the issue."

Since the decline of the prohibition party, Theodore Roosevelt and Robert LaFollette have each tried to evolve a third party to take the place of the corruptly-dominated republican and democratic parties, but without success, and if such able leaders could not do it, who can now?

Senator Borah is moving forward on more conservative, but probably more effective lines. He is emphasizing the fundamental issues; and evolution of public conviction as to the crisis must do the rest. The task is to save the fundamental structure of the republic, and in that task no room can be found for any institution which corrupts and undermines and destroys personal or civic character.

It is a long struggle and is hindered by every citizen whose appetite or prejudices submerges his judgment and civic virtue and the movement will advance in exact proportion as the nature of the issue is realized by loyal citizens. Each citizen must decide on which side of the issue to stand. There can be no doubt of the outcome, if the American republic is to survive.

Ashford Roads

Mr. Editor: In regard to an article recently published in your valuable paper I was grieved to see that our selectmen are unjustly criticised by one who is evidently unwilling to see but one side of the situation. It is true that the town of Ashford "voted to spend $5,000 on the highways for the coming year," and the selectmen were commissioned to use it for that purpose.

It was also suggested that advice or counsel be sought from our state highway department as to plans or ways of using the $5,000. This suggestion brought out the fact that there are about 100 miles of road in the town to be put into first class condition.

As our state department's plans usually call for several thousand dollars per mile, our poor little 50 per must have looked much as the "five loaves and two small fishes" did to the multitude of old.

The age of miracles has passed, and it now requires more than a "mandate" to obtain results.

While our critic was enjoying the luxuries and comforts of his city home our farmer selectmen were battling with the snow banks, keeping the roads open so that the doctor might visit the sick, the working man could get to his work, the children could go to school. It was necessary to buy a snow plow. All of this together with the price of truck (voted for at the town meeting) had already made a very perceptible inroad into the $5,000 before the real work of road repair began.

As an eye witness I know that with the small amount at their command our selectmen are conscientious and willing workers, worthy of the trust and respect of their fellow townspeople.

I would suggest that our critic "get a move on" to and look into the real condition of the situation before he is so ready to condemn.

Yours for FAIR PLAY.

Sunday Morning Talk

OUR FAITH

The storm that so terrified the disciples was in itself a thing of no consequence to their master. He spoke but a word and it passed away. But the alarm which the disciples had exhibited was to Him a very serious matter; for it showed how weak was the impression which His teaching had made on their minds. "Where is your faith?" Jesus exclaimed as He looked round upon the astonished disciples, and the same exclamation of surprise burst from His lips again when Peter, the most confident believer of them all, having tried to walk on the water and feeling himself sinking, cried out, "Lord save me!" Jesus took him by the hand and said, "O thou of little faith wherefore didst thou doubt?"

Peter was rescued from drowning. That much he gained by the faith which led him to cry to Jesus for help.

But he lost the comfort and strength which he would have gained if he had had faith enough to walk alone on the water. And he lost a splendid chance to give joy to the heart of Jesus by showing Him that He had at least one disciple who could trust Him in spit of appearances.

How easy it is to see that there was no excuse for the unbelief of these first disciples of Jesus, and to understand that the life of Jesus would have been so sad, and He would not have felt so much alone in the world if He could have seen His disciples growing strong in faith, and by faith overcoming their weakness and faults.

What should we see as we look forward? We should see God going before us, arranging and preparing our work for us and beckoning us to follow Him. We should expect disappointments, perplexities, trials and sorrows, but should think of these things as part of God's plan for our lives, as means by which His will concerning us is to be accomplished, and so looking forward the future should be all bright with hope.

But we can never learn really to trust God for the future till we learn to thank Him for the past, whether it has been such as we desired or not.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles Edward Russell, who has been refused premission by the British immigration authorities to land in England, was the socialist party's candidate for the governorship of New York in the campaigns of 1912 and 1916. Mr. Russell has had a varied journalistic experience in Chicago and New York city, and has been a prolific writer for the press. To books dealing with economic and political problems he has added studies of the careers of Chatterton, the English poet, and Wendell Phillips, the Boston orator and agitator. At the opening of the World war he visited Europe to study conditions among socialists, and also to comment on social changes which he saw going on; and his letters to the American press were very illuminating. An ardent friend of the Allies, he steadily opposed the efforts of a certain section of the American socialist party to intrude distinctly social and class issues into the settlement of the war.

Use of Black Stockings

London reports that black silk stockings as a mark of distinction are again coming into favor. Since the vogue of flesh-colored stockings, which virtually every girl & woman wears these days, women of taste in society have adopted the black silk stocking. This recalls the years around 1778, when all women in England wore white stockings, and it was considered greatly daring or eccentric for any one to put on black stockings.

Ladies! Ask Yourself These Questions:

Are my Furs protected where they are Stored?
Are they subjected to the heat and danger of Fire in some attic at home or in an upper room on Main Street?
If lost or damaged by Fire can their Temporary Custodian pay for them or must I lose their value?
Will the heat of June, July and August dry up the pelts, make them brittle and cause them to shed?
The above method of Storage is being sold here at cheap rates by Merchants without a conscience.
Our Cold Dry Air Storage is the only safe method. Your Furs are cleaned by Vacuum process, hung on separate hangers in a temperature in which nothing can live, thoroughly insured, protected and returned in better condition than when received.

Jimmy Skunk Was Right

You'll find through life there's nothing quite So pleasing as to prove you're right.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Johnny Chuck had been having such a good time wandering about and doing just as he pleased that he had almost forgotten that he had ever had a home. But one day there seemed to be something wrong with everything. The weather was wrong to begin with. His food didn't taste right. He couldn't make up his mind where to go. He didn't want to play. The sun was too hot. Nothing was just right. As a matter of fact, the trouble was all with Johnny, but he didn't know it. He didn't know it until along came dancing a Merry Little Breeze and whispered into one of Johnny's little black ears.

"Hello, Johnny Chuck!" she called. "It's about time you came home"

"You don't know what I saw this morning?" whispered the Merry Little Breeze.

"I don't care what you saw," grumbled Johnny.

"You ought to care," retorted the Merry Little Breeze.

"Why? Why ought I to care?" Johnny demanded, and he did it in a very cross manner.

"Because Grumpy, what I saw belongs to you and you ought to care for it. It's a queer father that doesn't care for his own child."

"My children have all grown up and gone away," mumbled Johnny.

"Is that so?" cried the Merry Little Breeze. "Well Polly Chuck's haven't if yours have."

Johnny Chuck sat up very suddenly and very straight. "Polly Chuck hasn't any children. That is, she hasn't any babies," protested Johnny.

"Huh!" exclaimed the Merry Little Breeze. "Then whose was that that I saw on the doorstep of your old home this morning."

Right then and there Johnny Chuck knew what was the matter with him. He was homesick. He had had enough of wandering around. He wanted to see Polly Chuck, and though he wouldn't admit it, he wanted to see if Jimmy Skunk had been right. Jimmy Skunk had whispered to him that the reason Polly Chuck hadn't let him into the house was because she had a family down there and she didn't want him around while they were so little. Now the Merry Little Breeze had seen one of them out on the doorstep, so perhaps they were big enough for Polly to feel a little differently about them. Anyway he would find out.

When Johnny drew near to his old home, he sat up every few feet and looked. At first he saw nothing on the doorstep and he was disappointed. But the next time he sat up to look there was a very funny, small person sitting up just as he was; and the next time he looked there were two; and before he had gone much farther there were three; and by and by there were four; and then there were five; and the next time he looked Polly Chuck was sitting right up in the midst of them. "Hello, Johnny Chuck!" she called. "It's about time you came home. I would like to know where you have been."

"Oh, just around," replied Johnny a little uneasily. "Whose are those?"

"Whose are what?" retorted Pony.

"Those—er—babies?"

"Yours," retorted Polly.

"Aren't they yours?" inquired Johnny, and looked foolish.

"Well they are ours, if that suits you better; and it is high time they had a father to help look after them," retorted Polly.

"Oh," said Johnny, because he didn't know what else to say. He approached a little uncertainly. Polly reached out and rubbed her little black nose against his little black nose. And what do you think? She rubbed away all that homesickness. "Let's go get some sweet clover," said Johnny.

"Let's," said Polly.

Presented before Justice of the Peace William Mitchell of Preston Friday afternoon on two counts, reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, Frank Krupinski of 114 Boswell avenue had the reckless driving count nolled, but paid a fine of $100 and costs on the "wet" driving charge. His bill amounted to over $126.

Cort was held at the state hospital at 5 o'clock with Appleton Main, the grand juror, prosecuting the case, and Attorney John H. Barnes, appearing for Krupinski. Justice Mitchell nolled the reckless driving charge and over ruled a demurrer entered by Attorney Barnes or the liquor charge. The case was then disposed of by giving Krupinski the minimum fine.

Krupinski, who has been employed as a chauffeur, was involved in an automobile collision on the night of May 20 on the Military Highway near the state hospital when he was driving a small roadster that collided with the large sedan of Abraham Agranovitch of this city. Krupinski's machine was wrecked and both he and John Wall of 84 Routh street, who was riding with him, were thrown out and injured so that they had to be taken to the hospital. LIFE SAVERS MEDALS TO SIX GYM LEADERS

The Y. M. C. A. gym leaders met for their monthly supper and meeting at the "Y" Friday night, when a number of features aside from the usual routine took place. Among the features was an interesting talk on life saving given by Howard Corey of the Red Cross life saving corps of New London. Following this, Captain Corey presented emblems and certificates to six of the leaders who recently qualified as life savers. These were Harvey Lacombe, Charles Palliocha, William Krohn, Reginald Laubin, Dewitt Parsons and Oscar Moressian.

After various discussions took place regarding leadership activities, after which the club members voted as to whom the honor medals for the season should be awarded. These medals represented leadership service rendered, attendance and personal development and were awarded to Dewitt Parsons, Howard Ludlow and Frank Hargreaves. CITY MOTOR ACCIDENTS HAPPEN AT INTERSECTIONS

While the majority of motor vehicle accidents reported last year from the larger cities of the state shown to have occurred at street intersections most of those in the smaller cities happened between intersections, where automobile drivers had an unobstructed view of all approaching objects.

Out of the accidents reported for 1925 which have been analyzed at the state motor vehicle department 9,369 occurred at intersections and 13,054 elsewhere. The average of intersection accidents for the state is greatly reduced by the rural accidents, by far the greater proportion of which happened on straight-away stretches. This influence, however, is counterbalanced, to a considerable extent, by the records of the large cities. New Haven had 1,764 intersection accidents and 944 between intersections; Bridgeport 1,387 at intersections and 668 elsewhere and Hartford 1,019, intersection mishaps and 1,163 elsewhere.

On the other hand, Waterbury, the fourth largest city in Connecticut, reported 1,000 intersection accidents against 876 which happened between intersections: New Britain had 415 at intersections and 470 elsewhere and New London 214 at intersections and 248 elsewhere.

The weather was reported to have been clear when 17,917 of the accidents of last year happened, and to have been stormy when 4,252 occurred. There were 12,763 accidents in daylight and 9,901 at night. The slight disparity in the totals is due to the fact that some of the reports were lacking in information in some respects.

TOOK MAY BASKETS TO TWO STATE INSTITUTIONS

Mrs. William I. Bogue, president of the Woman's auxiliary of Fletcher post American Legion and Mrs. Louise Leopold recently visited Uncas-on-Thames and the Norwich State hospital and left May baskets for the veterans at those institutions.

The baskets were prettily decorated in crepe paper, caught at the ends with a poppy, and each contained fruit, cookies and cigarettes for the men at the state hospital and fruit and cookies for the men at the tuberculosis hospital.

Over 200 poppies were distributed among the patients and staff at Uncas-on-Thames and the veterans at the state hospital, these little gifts bringing cheer into the hearts of the disabled men.

On Monday evening the Legion auxiliary is to be honored by the presence of Mrs. Lucy Edwards of Shelton, state president of the auxiliaries of the American legion. It is expected that there will be a large attendance at this meeting and the refreshment committee is preparing a dainty repast to be served after the business session.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS VISITED IN HOSPITALS

A committee from R. E. Hourigan post, V. F. W. and its auxiliary, composed of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Jacques, visited Uncas-on-Thames and Norwich state hospital on May 30, making a very generous donation to every ex-service patient.

The decorating committee of the post, consisting of Comrades Fitzgerald, Cavanaugh, Marchiel and Cook made its usual visit to the cemeteries and placed a beautiful pillow flag on the graves of each of those V. F. W. comrades who have "gone beyond."

The annual "Buddy poppy" sale by the post was a success in every way and the post expresses its thanks to the public in general for the generous response in spite of the several drives that were on during the week. With the money realized from the sale many a disabled ex-service man is assured of care and treatment for some time to come.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT WARNS AGAINST RABIES

With regard to rabies the weekly bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health says:

Dogs in some portions of the state are now under quarantine as a measure to prevent the spread of rabies among animals. If it is important to prevent rabies among dogs it is all the more important to prevent rabies among humans. As rabies is always fatal when symptoms of the disease once develop, protection against it must be by prevention. There is no hope of cure if the disease when it occurs.

Beware of stray dogs. Certain precautions should be taken to avoid exposure to rabies. One is to beware of stray dogs. Rabid doge wander away from home during the excited stage of the disease and often travel for long distances. A stray dog that appears in the neighborhood may be a rabid dog during the excited stage when it is most dangerous. Stray dogs should be impounded in some safe place where they have proper care until their owners can be located.

Do not fondle sick animals. Another precaution would be not to fondle sick animals. When it is necessary to handle sick dogs or other animals where rabies may be suspected gloves should be worn to protect the hands from the animal's saliva. Many persons are exposed to rabies by getting saliva on the hands without being bitten. The virus is present in the saliva and may enter the body through a cut or abrasion.

Pen up sick animal. A sick dog should be penned up and watched for further symptoms. If the dog really has rabies, symptoms will soon develop so that a veterinarian will have little trouble in making a diagnosis. When the dog is killed at once upon suspicion of the disease it may be too early to find laboratory evidence of rabies. In that case a negative report would give a false sense of security. Upon penning up a sick dog, the health officer and dog warden should be notified.

Take anti-rabic treatment. Any person bitten by a rabid dog, or exposed to rabies by handling the dog, should take anti-rabic (Pasteur) treatment. If uncertain as to whether or not the dog actually has rabies, the animal may be penned up for ten days' observation. Failure of the dog to show evidence of rabies within ten days shows that he did not have rabies at the start. If the wounds made by a dog bite are about the face or head, treatment should begin at once in case rabies is suspected.

If an effort has been made to cleanse the wound or cauterize if this does not remove the necessity of taking the anti-rabic (Pasteur) treatment to prevent rabies and cauterization may disfigure the patient. The only safe treatment after being bitten by a rabid animal or other animal suspected of being rabid, is to take the anti-rabic Pasteur treatment.

Disinfection of premises after rabbies. The virus of rabies is known to be present in the saliva, urine and milk of infected animals. Thus any of these secretions may distribute rabic virus which would probably be destroyed by drying at room temperature for a week or two, or for a shorter time in direct sunlight. Rabic virus is resistant to antiseptics, especially to the carbolic acid group, in fact the virus will live for days in five per cent phenol. If it is desired to use a disinfectant, five per cent formulin is probably as good as any liquid preparation readily available. Fumigation is not advised. Greater dependence should be placed upon mechanical cleansing with hot water and soap than upon the use of any disinfectant.

ACADEMY PLAYS HARTFORD HIGH TODAY IN LAST HOME GAME OF SEASON

This afternoon marks the close of the home season for the Academy team when they will play the Hartford Public high team at the Campus. The Academy has one more scheduled game after today and that with Westerly at Westerly on next Wednesday afternoon. It is possible that a tie in the interscholastic league may result which will cause a post-season play-off for the title.

Today's game with Hartford will be a tough battle as Hartford, although beaten by Bulkeley and Weaver, two teams beaten by the Academy, has a fast ball club and a real powerful collection of hitters. The Academy is out for revenge in today's game as Hartford inflicted a defeat on the local team last season in a hard fought battle. Hartford has no claim to the state championship but a victory over this team will strengthen the Academy claim to the title providing the Bulkeley team loses another game in the state.

Coach Brigham will send Johnny Greene to the mound in today's game and it is expected that Johnny will be capable of holding the Capitol City team as his injury to his finger is entirely healed and is not bothering him. Just what the remainder of the Academy lineup will be is rather doubtful as it is not certain whether Ray Yerrington will be able to play or not, Yerrington who played against Stonington with a fever caused by a severe cold may not be fit to perform today, although he was in school on Friday but did not report for practice.

In Friday's practice Steffy Cimikoski played third and Hymie Sadinsky was brought in from the outfield to cover the second bag. Jarvis was shifted to left field and Brewer to center with Mish taking care of the right garden. This will probably be the team to take the field today if Yerrington is unable to play.

BRITISH PROS CAPTURE FIVE MATCHES FROM AMERICANS

WENTWORTH, England, June 4—(AP)—Ten British professional golfers, sweeping through five 36-hole foursomes against a team of American professionals for victory in each match at the Wentworth Country club today took partial revenge for the stinging defeats America inflicted on Great Britain by winning the amateur championship at Muirfield and retaining the Walker cup at St. Andrews.

The Americans, who are playing against the Britons for the Ryder cup, symbolizing teams' supremacy among professionals, as the Walker cup does among amateurs, will have an opportunity to redeem themselves in 10 singles matches tomorrow, but they must win eight of them to capture the prize, and the players themselves tonight declared the task was an almost impossible one.

Walter Hagen, who captained the American team, and was partnered by Jim Barnes, led his side to defeat, taking a 9-8 drubbing from the British pair, Al Mitchell and George Duncan. The ace of American professionals sported an imported caddie from America—Jimmie MacDonald.

Completely off his game, Hagen seemed to do nothing right, except to hole one or two good putts, while Mitchell and Duncan played perfectly. At the lunch time recess the British pair were 4 up. They piled on the agony during the afternoon, and eventually won, 9-8.

The other matches resulted as follows:

Ted Ray and Fred Robson, Great Britain, defeated Cyril Walker and Fred McLeod 5 and 3.

Aubrey Boomer and Archie Compston, Great Britain, defeated Tommy Armour and Joe Kirkwood, 3 and 2.

George Gadd and Arthur Havers Great Britain, defeated Bill Melhorn and Al Watrous 3 and 2.

E R Whitcombe and H. C Jolly, Great Britain defeated Emmet French and Joe Stein, 3 and 2.

NORWICH GOLF TEAM TO PLAY WETHERSFIELD SUNDAY

Norwich after eliminating the Shenecossett team last Saturday is expected to turn in another victory on Sunday afternoon. The team that will represent the Norwich club will be William G. Park, David Morton, Willis Austin, Sam Wilcox, W. P. Austin and E. G. McKay. The match will start promptly at 2 o'clock.

CHAPIN BEATS TILDEN IN STRAIGHT SETS FOR STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW HAVEN, June 4—(AP)—A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., administered to William T. Tilden, 2nd, national tennis champion his fifth defeat of the year in the finals of the Connecticut state championship tournament here today. The Springfield man, who ranks thirteenth on the national list, took three straight sets from the Philadelphian, 8-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Chapin's spectacular victory came as a complete surprise. This was the first time in six years, Tilden has lost by straight sets in a championship match. That the Springfield man did not win on a fluke, was demonstrated by the point score, 136 to 107.

Tilden has been defeated twice by Richards and one each by Borotra and Lacoste this year.

A steady, hard, driving game won for Chapin. His brilliant speed in covering the court necessitated long rallies, in many of which Chapin kept his opponent chasing over the court, until he finally netted or drove the ball outside. Both players exhibited a remarkable placing game, with Tilden showing to better advantage at the net Chapin was content to drive with Tilden and wait for errors.

The national champion was not at [illegible] more mistakes than usual. His net game was strong but he seldom used it except when in difficulty.

In the semi-finals of the doubles, Chapin and Hyde of Hartford, defeated Morse and Robinson of New Haven to enter the finals, where they will face Tilden and Watson, captain of the Yale tennis team, tomorrow.

Several times Tilden employed his net game to come from behind, but toward the end of the game, Chapin kept him on the run so much he was unable to reach the net.

Chapin took the first four games at the start with clever driving. With the count 4-0 against him, Tilden rallied and finally evened the count at 6-all, but Chapin took the last two games of the set.

At 2-all in the second, Chapin broke through his opponent's service and took the next two, when the games went with service, the set going to Chapin 6-4. The many errors made by Tilden contributed to his defeat. Chapin's hard fight appaled to the crowd and many of his plays brought round after round of applause from the spectators.

In the last set, Tilden tightened up and fought each point. It was the best set of the tournament. Chapin took the first two games Tilden won his own service in the third and broke [illegible] next three games, when he took the one point. Battling desperately, Tilden evened the score at 5-all, but the next two went to Chapin, giving him the championship.

FARLEY FIRM IN HIS STAND FOR HARRY WILLS

NEW YORK, June 3—(AP)—If Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills are prevented for fighting in New York state by "political or other interference," the Walker law "should be tossed into the Harlem river and boxing buried in this state forever."

This opinion was expressed today by James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic commission, in discussing the controversy involving a mixed match for the heavyweight championship.

At the same time Farley threatened Tex Rickard with disbarment if he continued negotiations to match Gene Tunney with Dempsey.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 4—(AP)—Dazzy Vance yielded but four hits today in pitching his first victory of the season giving the Robins a 10 to 1 decision over the Giants. HELEN WILLS LOST TO AMERICAN TENNIS TEAM THROUGH OPERATION

PARIS, June 4—(AP)—The hope of America that Helen Wills, California tennis star would wrest the world's tennis laurels from Suzanne Lenglen at the international hard courts tourney being played here, were dashed tonight when Miss Willis was rushed to a hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

The operation was a complete success, and attending physicians declared she was entirely out of danger.

But Suzanne's title will not be disturbed this year, so far as an American challenge is concerned, for the doctors say it will be impossible for Helen to play at Wimbledon the end of June. In fact, she may not be permitted to play again until fall.

Helen, of course, thinks otherwise. Even on the way to the operating table, she told a team mate she would be "all right" for Wimbledon.

"Maybe I will not be able to play in the Wightman cup matches in England, but I am sure I will be ready for Wimbledon."

Announcement that Helen's illness was appendicitis came as a surprise, though it was known she was out of condition. Her play in last week's Franco-American team matches and again on Wednesday in the first round of the international tournament against Madame Golding was far from top form. She was pale and drawn.

Helen, herself thought she had overtrained. This opinion was shared by Prof. D'Arsonval, professional tennis player, who had charge of her training in Paris. On Wednesday Helen's match with Madame Golding, Mlle. Lenglen's old doubles partner, in the first of the international play, came at the end of a cold, rainy day. Both players were chilled when they took the courts and the second set had just begun when a downpour of rain sent them to the clubhouse. Helen, eager to have it over with, pleaded for continuance the moment the rain halted. Her wish was granted, but when she returned to the courts, she showed how much the few minutes inaction had affected her.

She seemed weary and almost ill. Madame Golding was able to carry the set to 3-3 before Helen got back into form again. Then she showed flashes of her old unbeatable play and took the four final games and the match in almost less than than it takes to tell about it.

That was her last appearance in play. Yesterday she went to the Racing club, watching the matches for a few minutes. Even then the spectators remarked on her paleness. Last night Helen complained she was not feeling well, but it was thought she was only experiencing a passing ailment. Although she suffered much pain throughout the day she honed until nearly four o'clock that she would be able to meet Miss Bouman, of Holland, in the second round singles.

Shortly before 5 p. m. it was announced that Helen would not play, that she had a slight cold, but honed to be able to compete tomorrow. Even the American team members were unaware of the seriousness of her condition until the physicians ordered an immediate operation and she was rushed to a hospital.

SPORTING NOTES

"Buck" Freeman, who has been umpiring some college games down East this spring, was the champion batsman of the National league back in 1899.

That a player's batting eye is the last part of him to weaken is evidenced by performances of many baseball veterans whose hitting continues to be almost as lively as ever, although they may have slowed up perceptibly in their fielding and base-running.

In 1839 the great English Derby was run in a June snowstorm.

Dallas, Texas, has 16 golf courses, including clubs, municipal and semi-public links.

Northwestern university plans to have its new stadium ready for football games by next fall.

In a recent exhibition match in Shanghai Claude Walkiner, a prominent English billiard professional, made a run of 651 in 24 minutes.

June 8 of this year marks the 50th anniversary of the first introduction of lacrosse into England by 12 members of the Montreal club.

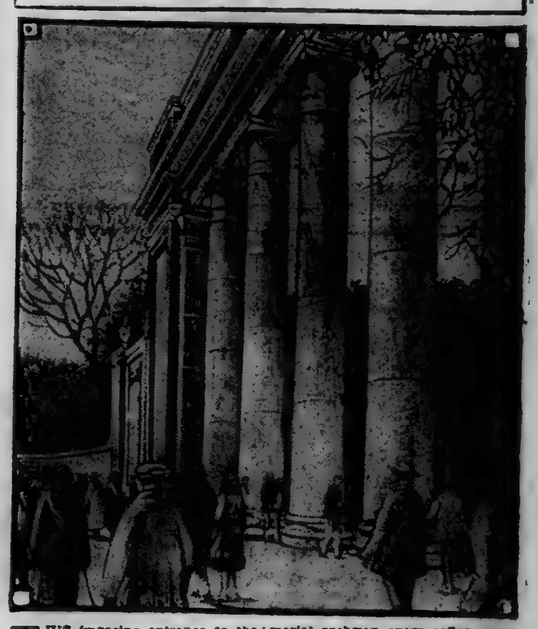
Walter Camp Memorial Gateway



THIS imposing entrance to the famous Yale Bowl and other Yale athletic fields at New Haven, Conn., is to be the central feature of the $300,000 national memorial to the late Walter Camp. Under plans sponsored jointly by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and Yale University the tribute to the man who, during his life, was more intimately connected with the development of American football than any other individual is to be erected through gifts from 458 colleges and universities situated in every state in the Union. Scores of "prep" schools have also been invited to participate in the memorial.

It is estimated that half a million people will pass through this memorial archway every college year. In order that each one of them may know the extent of the affection for Walter Camp which existed on every college campus throughout the country the Memorial Committee has adopted a unique plan. On either side of the gateway pictured above will be a huge bronze panel on which will be inscribed the names of every "prep" school, college and university which contributes to the memorial fund. Yale alumni, through their committee, have pledged themselves to raise $150,000 of the cost. The remaining half is to be raised among all other colleges through a special committee headed by E. K. Hall of Dartmouth, chairman of the Football Rules Committee.

He left and returned with an aide. They entered a bedroom window and found the body of Paul Hill, 20, son, clad in nightclothes. The young man had been shot in his neck and his skull battered with a hammer.

Civil docket: Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci. Continued one week. George E. Bafner vs. Leon Coon. Continued one week.

On the trial calendar: Arthur Church, alias, of Charlestown, R. I., withdrew his appearance, in the possession case of intoxicating liquors, as entered on the previous week specially, for certain liquors, seized by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and raiding party, May 15th at the Charlestown house. There then being no appearance for liquors seized, one pint of whiskey, one gallon jug partly full of wine and 10 bottles of beer, they together with the vessels were declared forfeited to the state by Judge Williams, and ordered destroyed.

Church was arraigned on the other complaint, when his attorney withdrew his former plea of not guilty and entered one of nolo. The accused was fined $10 and costs.

Abraham Kaplan, junk dealer of 195 Canal street, was charged, between Jan. 1, 1926 and May 28, 1926, with engaging in the business of buying and selling junk without securing a license from the town of Westerly. Solicitor Ferguson told the court that in week ago the case had been called and continued, that officers might investigate certain statements made. He said that the present action grew out of the purchase of a large quantity of lead from boys who had stolen it from about the state armory, where repairs were being made. Investigation disclosed that they had a ready market, got money quickly and went to the moving picture and caused their parents trouble. Judge Williams said that Kaplan should have known that the boys could not have secured so much lead in a proper way and saying the responsibility rested on him, found him guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Joseph Gentile, 18, was presented on complaint of Chief Brown charging him on June 3rd with operating an automobile on the Watch Hill road, near the intersection of Wells and Beach streets, recklessly and at a rate of speed greater than warranted in that built-up section. He pleaded guilty. Solicitor Ferguson related to the court that with two girls he was coming in a Ford coupe toward Westerly, and that the girl with him operating the car did not have a license, although Gentile did. At that time a Mooney bus stopped to let Miss Jane Mudge off and she started to cross the street toward the Westerly hospital, when the car struck Miss Mudge, broke her leg, and knocked the shoe off her foot. The auto proceeded 70 or 75 feet before it could be stopped. The auto was owned by the family of the other girl and they were returning to the plant of the Geo. C. Moore Co., where they were employed. Mr. Ferguson reminded the judge that a campaign was begun last year on the overloading of autos and said it was impossible to operate this car safely with three in it. He said this defendant was before the court before, when the complaint was operating an automobile while he was under age. Questioned by Judge Williams, the defendant said he had nothing to say, and in reply as to his parents, that his stepfather, was in court. He said that he had been driving a car 5 years, and the judge remarked, "three years before he had a right." Judge Williams said that his words were not as a threat, but that he was justified in taking away the liberty of the accused by sending him to Providence county jail. The court imposed a fine of $200. Later through his step-father, notice of appeal was given and the bond was fixed at $1,000 with Tony Azzinnaro as surety. The case will come up at the September term.

Joseph Mitchell, 72 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, was arraigned on two complaints by Chief Brown, having been brought before the special session of Third District court Thursday afternoon and released on bonds. This case resulted from an auto accident at the junction of the White Rock and Varietyville roads, Wednesday afternoon, when three men were seriously injured. Frank Diganci, an occupant of the car, is still at the Westerly hospital, the final outcome of his injuries requiring four or five days more to determine. In view of these conditions and as the first bondsman was about to sell his property, Solicitor Ferguson asked for a weeks continuance and that the amount of bail be raised. With no objection the case was continued to June 11th at 9 a. m. The complaints were reckless driving on which Joseph Brocato of 83 Pierce street became surety for $1,000, also on the complaints were reckless driving, on which Joseph Brocato of 83 Pierce street became surety for $1,000, also on the complaint driving auto without proper brakes, to the amount of $500 bonds.

—your eyes are probably the cause

Of the twelve pairs of nerves in the skull, six have some connection with the eye. The unnatural strain of modern life so tires the ocular muscles that they set up pain along the nerves connecting with other parts of the head. In most cases, therefore, the correct eye-glasses will put an end to all the pain and handicap of headaches.

You cannot work to win when enduring the needless handicap of headaches. Have you eyes examined without delay!

Tydol Gasoline is now protected by sealed pumps

The Tydol dealers in this vicinity have united in sealing every Tydol pump. They want to protect the high quality of the Tydol they sell you. They want to give you visible proof that they are selling genuine Tydol and Tydol alone.

BUYING gasoline from an ordinary gasoline pump is like buying milk from an open can. Any kind of milk can go into the can—any kind of gasoline can go into the pump.

That is why the Tydol dealers have united in sealing every Tydol pump in this locality. The sealed pump protects the high quality of Tydol just as the sealed bottle protects the rich, unadulterated milk.

When the quality of any product is as high as Tydol it invites adulteration and substitution. Only the most extreme care can safeguard such quality. That is why Tide Water developed the sealed pump—which makes it impossible for anyone to put any gasoline except genuine Tydol into the tank which feeds a Tydol pump.

The seal on the Tydol pump (examine it the next time you buy gas) is your guarantee that you are getting real Tydol. It means that you are certain to get the split-second start, the dashing pick-up, the rush of sustained power, the increased mileage that have long made Tydol famous among all gasolines.

The sealed pump is the final step in protecting Tydol quality from the minute it leaves the refinery until it is safely in the gas tank in your car.

Every Tydol pump in this section now sealed

The Tydol dealers of this locality want to forestall any possibility of inferior gasoline being substituted for Tydol. Therefore, they have united in sealing every Tydol pump in this section.

Stop today at a Tydol pump. The dealer will be proud to show you how the Tydol pump is sealed. The seal is his proof that he is selling the highest quality gasoline and that he is helping to protect its quality. And the seal is your guarantee of genuine Tydol and the better motoring results that genuine Tydol always insures.

POETRY

Nature

As a fond mother, when the day is o'er
Leads by the hand her little child to bed
Half willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leave his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of others in their stead,
Which, though more splendid, may not please him more;
So Nature deals with us, and takes away
Our playthings one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently, that we go
Scarce knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand
How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

That's easy. It's always about $500 more than the amount a couple already has.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Yes it is," declared Senator Sorghum. "All we need to get into its old stride is a few people with the pep of George Washington, Tom Jefferson, Ben Franklin and a few others."—Washington Star.

Ireland is to mint her own coins for the first time in a 100 years. The law assimilating Ireland was passed in 1825, but the free state parliament recently decided to establish a token silver, nickel and copper coinage for amounts up to 40 shillings (about $10.) Eminent artists have been asked to assist the government in the designs of the new coins. The first Irish coins were struck by the Danish Kings of Dublin in the tenth or eleventh century, and in medieval times there were mints in Dublin.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Twenty Years Ago

I've wandered to the village, Tom,
I've sat beneath the tree
Upon the schoolhouse playground, which sheltered you and me,
But none were left to greet me, Tom,
and few were left to know,
That played with us upon the green,
some twenty years ago.

The grass is just as green, Tom,
barefooted boys at play,
Were sporting just as we did then,
with spirits just as gay;
But the master sleeps upon the hill which coated o'er with snow,
Afforded us a sliding place, just twenty years ago.

The old school house is altered now,
the benches are replaced
By new ones, very like the same our penknives once defaced;
But the same old bricks are in the wall, the bell swings to and fro'
It's music just the same, dear Tom,
'twas twenty years ago.

The boys were playing some old game,
beneath that same old tree;
I have forgot the name just now—
you've played the same with me.
On that same spot, 'twas played with knives, by throwing—so and so;
The loser had a task to do there, twenty years ago.

The river's running just as still; the willows on its side
Are larger than they were. Tom; the stream appears less wide—
But the grapevine swing is ruined now, where once we played the beau,
And swung our sweethearts—pretty girls—just twenty years ago.

The spring that bubbled 'neath the hill, close by the spreading beech,
Is very low—'twas once so high, that we could almost reach;
And, kneeling down to get a drink
dear Tom, I started so,
To see how sadly I am changed since
twenty years ago.

Nearby the spring upon an elm, you know I cut your name,
Your sweetheart's just beneath it,
Tom, and you did mine the same
Some heartless wretch has peeled the bark, 'twas dying, sure but slow,
Just as the one, whose name you cut,
died twenty years ago.

My lids have long been dry, Tom, but tears came in my eyes;
I thought of her I loved so well—those early broken ties;
I visited the old churchyard, and took some flowers to strew
Upon the graves of those we loved,
some twenty years ago.

Some are in the churchyard laid, some sleep beneath the sea,
But few are left of our old class, excepting you and me;
And when our time shall come, Tom and we are called to go,
I hope they'll lay us where we played, just twenty years ago.

The Captain's Daughter

We were crowded in the cabin;
Not a soul would dare to sleep;
It was midnight on the waters
And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in winter
To be shattered in the blast
And to hear the rattling trumpet
Thunder, "Cut away the mast!"

So we shuddered there in silence,
For the stoutest held his breath
While the angry sea was roaring
And the breakers talked with Death.

And thus we sat in darkness,
Each one busy in his prayers:
"We are lost!" the captain shouted,
As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
As she took his icy hand
"Is not God upon the ocean
Just the same as on the land?"

Then we kissed that little maiden,
And we spoke in better cheer.
And we anchored safe in harbor
When the morn was shining clear.

Out Fishing

A feller isn't thinkin' mean—out fishin';
His thoughts are mostly good and clean—out fishin';
He doesn't knock his fellow men,
Or harbor any grudges then;
A feller's at his finest when—out fishin'.

The rich are comrades to the poor—
out fishin';
All brothers of a common lure — out fishin';
The urchin with a pin and string
Can chum with millionaire an' king;
Vain pride is a forgotten thing—out fishin'.

A feller gets a chance to dream—out fishin';
He learns the beauties of a stream—
out fishin';
An' he can wash his soul in air
That ain't foul with selfish care,
And relish plain an' simple fare—out fishin'.

A feller has not time for hate—out fishin';
He ain't eager to be great—out fishin';
He ain't thinkin' thoughts of self,
Or goods stacked high upon a shelf,
But he's always just himself—out fishin'.

A feller's glad to be a friend—out fishin';
A helping hand he'll always lend—out fishin';
The brotherhood of rod an' line,
An' sky an' stream is always fine;
Men come real close to God's design—out fishin'.

A feller ain't plottin' schemes—out fishin';
He's only busy with his dreams—out fishin';
His livery's a coat of tan;
His creed's to do the best he can;
A feller's always most a man—out fishin'.

Pal of My Cradle Days

What would I give if I just could stem
Each little wrinkle on your darling face,
Put there by sorrow and worry and care
And sometimes I think it was I put them there.

Mother, oh Mother, I'd give half my years,
If I could recall all the sighs and tears,
The nights you spent only praying for me,
Wondering, worrying, where can I be?
For there came a day when my heart filled with gloom
And I sat broken-hearted in my hotel room.
I needed just some one to chase my despair,
But none of my fair-weather friends seemed to care.
And then came a letter all blurred like with tears.
And crosses or kisses, I missed them for years.
It said when you're tired and don't care to roam,
Remember your mother awaits you at home.
I'm coming my dear, just as fast as I can,
But won't you forget I'm a full grown up man?
Caress me and fondle me, fill me with joy,
For I want to be just your own baby boy.
I don't know any way I could ever repay,
The Pal of My Cradle Days.

A Little Human Kindness

By making some one happy as we pass along life's way
We bring a bit of Heaven to the longest, darkest day.
The world is full of shadows, full of sorrow, grief and woe
And snares are set before us everywhere we go.

So many weary pilgrims toiling onward up the height
Are longing for a friendly word ere falls the shades of night
Or lend a hand to help them haste to speak a word of cheer
And gloomy clouds will brighten when the day is drear.

Keep all the hope fires burning by the torch of love divine
As beacons through earth's darkest valleys ever let them shine
Somewhere beyond the sunset in a land supremely blest
We'll find that human kindness paved the way to rest.
A little human kindness makes the souls of men akin.
And brings the joy of victory to a world of sin.

RECIPES TO TRY

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: For something new try these recipes and I am sure you will not be disappointed:

Cocoa Oatmeal: To one cup of oatmeal take three heaping teaspoons of cocoa. Dissolve the cocoa in one cup of water. Use a little salt, stir it thoroughly. Very nice.

A Reasonable Meat Loaf: 4 pounds shin beef. Cut off nearly all the fat, take out the bones, cut the meat in small pieces and put them in a kettle with boiling water to cover well. Add salt and pepper, 3 cloves and a few pieces of bay leaf. Let it boil until the meat is tender. Put it through the meat chopper. Let the stock boil until there is about 1 1-2 cups then mix with the meat. Let it cool. Then you have a delicious meat loaf at low cost.

Seattle Lemon Pie: 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-3 cup lard, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-6 cup ice water or cream, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Filling: 1 cup boiling water or milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 lemon, 4 eggs, 2-4 cups sugar, 3 teaspoons arrow root.

Meringue: 4 egg whites, 8 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Method. Sift sugar, flour, salt, baking powder 4 times. Blend in lard or washed butter, add wetting, roll and bake. Filling—Put in double boiler the cup of boiling water and tablespoon of butter. Wash lemon, grate the rind, adding this to water and butter. Squeeze four tablespoons lemon juice into a cup. Separate eggs, (beating whites and yolks separately.) Add to yolks, sugar, which has been thoroughly mixed with arrowroot. Add lemon juice beat well. Add this mixture to boiling water, butter and lemon rind and beat continually until thick. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and separate into two parts adding one portion to thickened mixture and fold in carefully. Pour this into a baked crust.

Meringue. To remaining egg whites add sugar and lemon juice. Beat well, pile in little heaps on pie and brown.

Two Crust Lemon Pie: (This is the popular old fashioned lemon pie) 1 rounded spoon arrowroot, 1 egg, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon butter, 1 cup boiling water.

Make pastry as usual. Dissolve arrowroot in cold water, add boiling water, stir in double boiler until thick add butter, rind of lemon (after washing) sugar. Cool and add beaten egg, then lemon juice. Bake between two crusts.

A FEW HINTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a short letter to say "thank you," to the editor for my pin. Everytime I tried to write something would interrupt me. I shall always be on the lookout for one like it, whenever I am in a crowd.

O. D.: I hope to be able to come out and show myself before long and when I do be prepared for a big surprise.

Just a hint or two and I'm through. Use an old stocking to clean the wicks of the oil stove.

When ironing new cloth which has been shrunk, fold together with the selvedges even. If ironed this way it is more even and therefore much easier to cut.

Keep a thick catalog on the shelf by the sink to stand pots and kettles on. As fast as one sheet gets soiled, simply tear it off. Also handy to clean grease etc. from the sink.

Place a pan of water in the oven when baking anything which contains molasses. It prevents scorching.

Sincerely,

AMERICAN GIRL.

PLANKED HASH AND OTHER RECIPES

Dear Social Corner: Here is a recipe for Black Eyed Susie:

Cocoa Cake: (Ontario Cake), 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 1 egg yolk, 1-2 cup sweet milk.

Part 2—1-2 cup washed butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 egg yolks, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups of flour sifted 5 times, 3 egg whites, 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in cold water.

Method—Cook together part one, let cool, (cream butter) add sugar, egg yolks, add part one, then milk, vanilla, flour. Fold in beaten whites, and soda last; bake in two layers.

Old Maid's Cake: 2 1-2 cups flour, 1 1-2 cups of sugar, 1-2 cup of butter 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream tartar, 1-2 cup raisins, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg.

Cream butter add yolk of egg sift flour, sugar, nutmeg and soda, cream tartar five times add milk stir in flour add little salt, then raisins and the white of an egg.

A New Hampshire Cook's recipe for delicious goodies.

Filling—1 cup sugar, 1 cup raisins, 1 lemon.

Pastry— 1 1-2 cups of flour, 1-2 cup lard, 1 teaspoon salt, ice water or milk to mix.

Chop raisins fine, add the juice of a lemon, a little grated rind and the sugar and mix together thoroughly. Take half the pastry and roll as thin as pie crust. Take an oblong pan and lay it on pastry and cut it around with scissors to get the exact size, then lay inside of the pan and spread over it the fillings. Roll out the other half of pastry, moisten the edges of the under crust, cover with the other, and press the edges together. Prick with a double tined fork, dot with bits of butter, (after washing the salt out) brush over with ice water bake in a hot oven. When cold cut in squares. These are fine for lunch baskets.

Planked corned beef hash for a supper or luncheon is not to be surpassed. Chop the corned beef very fine and mix it with twice its quantity of cold boiled potatoes, likewise finely chopped. For the small sized plank 5 cups of hash will be sufficient. Add one tablespoon of chopped green pepper, salt, pepper and paprika to taste, moisten with a little hot milk and butter. Make a mound in the center of the plank. Flatten it slightly and make several indentations on the surface. In each of these break an egg. Sprinkle the surface with salt, pepper and bits of butter. Cook under a low broiler flame or a slow oven until the eggs are set and the hash is browned and heated through. To serve, sprinkle the top with finely chopped parsley and arrange slices of cucumber pickle around the edge.

WAYS TO USE DRY BREAD

Dear Social Corner Editor and Social Sisters: Well we have had a very cold spring and while it has been wonderful to get the housecleaning along, the farmers can hardly appreciate it as the gardens need lots of sunshine and some rain to keep the crops coming along. We that have small home gardens can appreciate what it must mean to the farmer who has acres under cultivation and not the right kind of weather for crops to grow abundantly. Let us hope for good crops and that will keep the high cost of living from advancing.

Mumsie: I was very glad you decided to send along your "salt" receipts also for they were some different from those I sent in and I know will be found very valuable to the readers of the "Social Corner" items. I know by experience the ones you spoke of as an eye and mouth wash is excellent. All were fine, have tried them many times.

Now here are some useful hints on the use of dried bread. Everyone knows that it makes a nice stuffing for chops (baked in oven) with a spoonful of dressing on top and slice of onions on top of the dressing. Select nice lean pork or veal chops, baked in a hot oven until nicely browned a small piece of butter on the top of each.

Also used to stuff poultry or a fresh shoulder that has been boned or take two pounds of nice round steak, fold it over, sew two sides stuff it and serve last side, season nicely, place little pieces of butter or thin strips of fat pork on the top, place in a hot oven and baste as you would a roast and let it stand to get cook, not cold. Then it will slice nicely and makes a very nice morsel for luncheon.

Now another use for pieces of white bread or brown bread.

Place them in a moderate oven, and leave them in oven until they are thoroughly browned—not burnt.

Then turn boiling water on them let stand covered while you are preparing the meal and keep hot, using your own judgment as to how much you wish for one or more cups of coffee, which is an excellent beverage for any one who does not drink real coffee or for children as a warm morning drink, for sick people or elderly people. It is perfectly harmless to use at any time. Now yet another use for dry bread. Butter a slice or two, cut into cubes, place in the bottom of your pudding dish, enough to cover the top of your dish, sprinkle a little nutmeg and add just enough hot water, so that the bread will absorb it. Over this turn a milk custard, I use 2 eggs to a pint of milk, sweeten to taste and add vanilla. The bread cubes will rise to the top and brown nicely. This makes a delicious dessert.

When lastly take bread that has become too hard for other purposes and grate it into bread meal and keep in an earthen or glass jar and it will be handy for breading cutlets and chops, when fried they have a very nice rich brown on them.

I always have a jar ready for immediate use at any time without having to wonder if I have any bread suitable to make into meal at a moment's notice.

Don't waste the bread because it isn't fresh, as it will help out many menus. Many times it can be used as an entree, just preparing it as if to stuff a piece of meat and place in a frying pan into which you have placed some strips of bacon. Remove the bacon and some of the grease and place the stuffing into this hot fat in the frying pan until it is brown on one side, then turn it over with a pancake turner and let it fry gradually until it is brown on the other side. Add more of the bacon fat on grease if needed. It serves well with any kind of fried meats. Guess I have said enough. I thank the editor if he grants me so much space.

Greetings to all and a happy summer. Deepest sympathy to all bereaved.

ECLIPSE

FOR THE JUNE WEDDING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: This season the "white" wedding is the particular favorite. To give a truly bridal effect, the drawing room where the service will take place can be covered with pure white cheese cloth, which can be plaited or put on plain and held in place with small gilt nails. For this occasion the pictures which generally hang on the wall can be removed and the white drapery above acting as a dressing for the four sides of the room.

To carry out this white scheme the floor can be covered with heavy linen white, coarse muslin can be utilized, the edges tightly together, then tacked at intervals along the four sides.

The mantel looks exceedingly well if covered with a white drapery of the same sort of cheese cloth that covers the walls. The drapery hangs in graceful folds until it reaches the floor. The shelf should be decorated with potted plants and loose blossoms grouped in glass vases. Care should be taken to have only white flowers. On the floor on either side we put tall rubber plants and oleander bushes, but any other green, which will form a charming background for this wedding time can be used.

Suitable space must, of course, be reserved in either case for the bridal party. It is fine if your room includes a bay window, or if not a bay window an alcove or an extension of any sort you can convert it into a real bower without the least difficulty.

Of course if there is no such convenient space provided by the shape of the room, you can fence off some portion so to speak, and that between windows is usually available. For one white wedding we used cherry blossoms and daisies. They made a charming effect, but if it isn't in season for these of course cultivated flowers can be substituted.

Ordinary white canton flannel makes an excellent foundation. We used the fuzzy side out and draped it over the window and covered it with daisies, which was very easily pinned into place.

The cutest idea was the wedding bell. We hunted for a frame in the stores for a foundation. At last we had a waste basket, we used it by inverting it and then covering with the material and then with blossoms and lifted with an improvised clapper of flowers, which we suspended over the spot where the bridal couple stood.

It is very difficult for me to suggest an altar. We used a simple, low long oblong table with very good effect. Draped with white and placed back of the officiating clergyman it gives dignity to the background.

We further ornamented it with vases of flowers and with the traditional candelabrum of seven branches, the bridal setting seemed complete.

An aisle there must be to allow the bride to enter with dignity. But white ribbons properly handled are all that is needed. They should be wide and handsome and attached at one end to the side of the window or those might be some other allotted space. At the proper moment they can be carried across the room by the ushers and the ends given into the charge of two little flower girls or little boy pages dressed in white. As the bridal party passes up the aisle the ribbon bearers follow, rolling the ribbons as they walk, and at the close of the ceremony they can be entirely removed.

A white fur rug laid upon the floor marked the spot on which the bride could stand. To make a kneeling place for the couple two big pillows slipped into open covers of canton flannel and these covers knotted at each end make perfect cushions for the bride and groom, and these were placed just beyond the rug. In either case the bay window or the place selected before the mantel is most attractive, although the bay window admits of a more gorgeous decoration, and no doubt will give the most satisfactory result.

At all weddings the collation table is merely a matter of fancy.

I know at a very fashionable wedding cake and an iced punch alone made the feast served for the occasion The tables were small ones, placed at different angles of the drawing room. Each table was furnished with a lace cloth on which was an exquisite design of eyelet embroidery and filer needlework, the outer edge ornamented with a pointed lace of Italian make. The bride's cake one of unusual size, filled up the center. It was heavily iced and ornamented with white candied rose leaves.

SALAD DRESSINGS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: What a wonderfully pleasant day we had for our meeting June 2, and we had just as good a time and dinner, with plenty of good things to eat. We had several visitors from other clubs. I met several of the new Shore Line club No. 6 members, and also several from Club No. 1. We had a very enjoyable day and program. As this is the time of year when we mostly enjoy salads, I am sending in some salad dressing recipes as several of the sisters have asked me for the fruit salad dressing receipt. This I got on the radio.

Fruit Salad Dressing: One cup of sugar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon flour, the juice of 1 lemon and 1 orange. Cook in double boiler until it thickens. When cool add 1 cup of cream and whip.

Camp Salad: 1 can condensed milk, 1 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, beat together well and is ready for use.

Oil Salad Dressing: 1 egg, 1 1-2 cups oil, 2 tablespoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon of dry mustard, 1 teaspoon of confectionary sugar.

Beat egg until very light, add 1-2 cup of oil, at a time until all is used. When thick add dry ingredients which have been mixed with the vinegar and beat well.

I like this dressing as it requires no cooking. I use the Mazola oil.

Will ring off for this time with best wishes to all the Cornerites.

Reproving when we stray.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Folks: Was very sorry to hear of the death of Necia's husband. I extend my sympathy to her in her bereavement.

Melissa: Was very sorry to hear of your accident. Hope you will soon be out again.

Balsam Fir: What did you think of the goat? Would it make a good mascot?

Delish Deal: Was very much surprised to receive a letter from you. So you are in the country? How do you like it? I will write you later, very busy now as I have a stack of sewing staring me in the face. Got a large box by mail today that I must have finished by June 23.

Black Eyed Susie: Your long letter received. Those are the kind I like to get. Got the potatoes all planted. Will let you know what result I have.

Interested Reader: Your card received. That is all right. I will wait until things are convenient for you. No hurry for I have work enough to keep me going for a few days. I must hurry up and shake "Lazy Larry" off my shoulders as I am daily expecting orders from Black Eyed Susie and her two helpers. Not quite ready yet Susie. Am still on the line and will notify you when I get to it.

Eca: Was glad to receive your letter. How long did it take you to write such a long one? I was going to see how many words it contained: guess I won't, you can win a prize all right for being a long letter writer but you can't compete with Black Eyed Susie and Interested Reader. They have you beaten to a frazzle.

A VISIT TO WASHINGTON

Dear Social Corner: I have been kindly welcomed as a new member of the Social Corner. That is fine. But the fact is that the name Lucille Drew went on to the Social Corner roll a long time ago, before the clubs were formed or the dinners began to be held. I had become so inactive, however, that I thought quite likely I had been cut off as a cumberer of the ground and hardly dared claim membership. But I found I was still on the list. Having got somewhat revived I will try to write a few lines "once in a while" a little often than once in a purple moon. My pen name was selected as being a sort of diminutive of, or at least suggestive of the real name which became mine when I entered the blest estate of matrimony.

Sister Rebecca has called on me and I must rise and respond. Therefore will say that on the morning of Monday, May 24 it was my good fortune to set forth, with my husband, to pass the week in the nation's capital. We had often talked of taking this trip, but never got started. The meeting of the northern Baptist convention at Washington afforded an occasion for going. The nine hours' train ride, with its charming views from our pullman window, was very enjoyable. We found excellent quarters at the Capitol Park hotel, on North Capitol street, pleasant surrounding, good service. Of course we had to go to meeting some, but I did not bother my small head about fundamentalism or modernism. I was out for a good time. I meant to have it and I got it. We visited the capitol, called one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. We saw congress in session. We went by motor bus to Mount Vernon, 16 miles distant, to visit the home of George Washington, on the bank of the Potomac river. It is a beautiful and interesting spot, the interior of the house still furnished as when he occupied it. At Alexandria we went into Christ church, where he worshipped and of which he was a vestryman. We sat down in his pew, but could not linger for "meditation and prayer." The ancient structure is very quaint with its high pulpit reached by a flight of winding stairs and having a sounding board over the desk. Service is still held there each Sunday. At noon, on Thursday, the convention went to the white house grounds. By actual count made as we passed through the turnstiles, it was said there were 5,750 of us. We were photographed with President Coolidge standing in the center of the group, the largest group he was ever photographed with, he said. I saw the picture next day and located the president, as big as life and twice as natural, but could not find myself. Yet I was there, somewhere. Mrs. Coolidge—Grace indeed—smiling, bowing, waving, dressed in white, and attended by her two beautiful white collies, gamboling and leaping, came out on the balcony. We went into the famous east room of the executive mansion and such other rooms as are open to be public. These were the high lights of the week, but there were many minor incidents of pleasing character. My better half had been in Washington three or four times before, in the distant past, but it was my first visit there. I had heard much of the beauty of the place, but found it even more lovely than my fancy had pictured it. To be appreciated, it should be seen and every citizen of our republic should see it at least once in a life time.

I am still on the wing. When these lines are read, if they attain that honor, I will probably be on "a green hill far away," to witness the graduation from Northfield Seminary, Northfield, Mass., of a bonny lassie of sweet 16 who calls me "Grandma."

And still I have June 15 to look forward to!

LUCILLE DREW, (Club 6.)

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dear Social Corner Members: First I want to thank the editor for my prize. One of my Social Corner sisters called me up and congratulated me before I had seen the paper. It was a very nice surprise.

Gene: Imagine Cosmos was surprised when she saw your letter. Shall expect to see some interesting letters from you.

Slow: I am disappointed in you, but no doubt you had a good excuse.

As Cosmos', Melissa's, Skipper's and my birthday came in May, O. D. last Wednesday gave a dinner party for us. There were 11 in all and such a good time as we had and oh! such eats. No chance to reduce that day.

Sassy: The uses for newspapers were good but the end of your letter was fine. I think it would be well for us to read it often and follow it.

Crimson Rambler: Received your letter, and enjoyed it, too. You will have some job. I am very busy too.

WAYS TO HELP SICK FRIENDS

Dear Social Corner Friends: If you were confined to your bed for a number of weeks, say, for instance in a hospital, and you were so situated that you had very few visitors and your bureau was piled high with expensive flowers, and yet—

You were very lonely because you had not received a letter for days had nothing to read, and nothing to do, wouldn't you wish that one of your friends had been thoughtful enough to send you a book or letter, instead of so many posies?

There are a great many little gifts which you can take or send to your sick friend, which are less expensive, and more useful and healthful than flowers.

First and foremost, there are books. Try to select a novel with fairly large print, and a fairly happy ending.

Magazines should be preferably small ones, as the large ones are very tiring for a person in bed to hold, and very few hospitals provide book rests.

The daily paper would no doubt be appreciated, and a copy of the patient's home-town paper would be more than interesting.

If you cannot visit your friend personally, there is no more welcome gift you can send than a letter. And if you could see the light or anticipation in her eyes as the nurse brings in some mail, you would make the effort to send her a letter at least every day, no matter how short the note might be. Greeting cards are convenient and pretty, but there is no substitute for a few personal words.

If you are anything of an amateur artist, illustrate your letter with little sketches, or cut out and paste little pictures from the magazines or papers to illustrate your news. If you cannot think of much to write at least copy a few good jokes and place them at the end of your letter.

If you can draw well, here is a novel idea for you.

Select a plain white card, square, about four times the size of the ordinary post card. On it draw a funny picture pertaining to the person who is ill, for instance, the picture of a woman jumping rope, and under it the inscription: "We hope you will soon be doing the same." Then cut the card into four sections and send each section separately, as a postal card. If you send one each day the patient will be looking forward eagerly at mail time for the next piece of the puzzle.

Now if your sick friend likes to receive letters, she may also like to answer them, and it may be that in her hurry to come to the hospital she had more important things to think of than writing paper. A box of pretty paper a pencil and some stamps will be more than welcome, especially the stamps. It is one thing to write a letter in the hospital and entirely another thing to get it mailed. One of the nurses will mail a letter at almost any time if it is stamped, but very often she cannot find a place to buy stamps as easily as she can find a mail box.

In taking gifts of food, one has to be very careful. Usually the patient is on a special kind of diet and only a few things are allowed. It is usually safe to take oranges, as they can either be eaten or made into drinks. Never take large baskets of fruit unless you know that all fruits are allowed, for the fruit spoils very quickly, and either has to be thrown away, or given to some one else. It is much better to take small quantities and take them often.

If you are so situated that you can easily procure fresh eggs, your friend would probably appreciate a few especially if she is allowed to have eggnogs.

Cookies cakes, pies and jams, even home-made are strictly taboo. A little home-made jelly is fairly safe, and candy of the peppermint variety may be permitted. Rich candies and chocolate creams should be omitted entirely.

And don't forget the men patients. Just as soon as a man begins to get better, his request is for a smoke, providing, of course, that he is in the habit of smoking when he is well. Smoking is usually allowed in some part of the hospital, so here is a chance to buy cigarettes or tobacco and matches. Matches are about as hard to procure in a hospital as stamps.

In the matter of visitors, it would be a blessing to most patients if some member of the family could take charge of the visiting list, and see to it that the friends do not all come to see the patient on the same day, or at inconvenient times. Ordinarily, about six people come on Sunday, and no one else comes all week.

The best time for visiting the sick friend is between three and five o'clock and two visitors a day should be sufficient. Too much talking, even when not done by the patient herself, is very tiring. Whenever possible, children visitors should be omitted altogether.

Of course, if your friend is in a private home, you can consult the person in charge, so as to modify your gifts according to the things which she already has at her disposal in the home. By putting yourself, mentally, in the sick friend's place, and considering the things you would like to have if you were sick, you can no doubt think up other little gifts that would be welcome.

The child who is beginning to get well, but who is still confined to his bed, should be provided with quiet games, and there are usually things in the house, that an ingenious mother can provide, in order to excuse herself from the constant request of "Mamma, read to me!"

Have you a box of buttons in the house? All shapes, all sizes, may be used in making figures on a plane surface. A large magazine placed on the bed will serve as a table. Give the buttons to the child and ask him to form a picture with them by placing them side by side and tell him that you will come back and guess what he has made, later on. In this way you can do your housework in between times, and gradually break him of the habit of having constant attention.

There is always for the boy, "the land of counterpane." If his set of tin or wooden soldiers are broken, paper sets can be bought for a few cents, with which he can fight sham battles, all over the bed.

READY FOR CLUB 4's ANNIVERSARY

Dear Editor and Cornerites: What a nice lot of letters we did have this last week. Will try and do my bit towards having another full page this week. I hope the members of our other clubs will be present at Danielson, June 8, to help us celebrate Club No. 4's eighth birthday, in the G. A. R. hall.

Votami: Can you not rise to the occasion and be present?

Better try your luck at cake making again. You see I have survived even if I didn't get a yeast cake after testing your first attempt.

Puppy Boy: Where is that promised letter? Didn't you receive mine?

Robert: Hope you have recovered from your recent illness.

1492: I saw K. G. today. He said I am to share with you hereafter. It won't be, "out of sight, out of mind," anymore.

Hollyhock and Pippin: Shall look for you June 8th. Of course you belong to Club 4. Do you not?

Perhaps you would like to try this steamed rhubarb pudding recipe.

Steamed Rhubarb Pudding: Put two tablespoons melted butter in a cup. Drop into this one egg and fill the cup with sweet milk. Sift into a mixing bowl two cups of flour one half cup sugar, a little salt, one even teaspoon soda and two even teaspoons cream tartar. Turn into this the liquid mixture and beat thoroughly. Cut some rhubarb into small pieces and add a cup to the batter. Stir well. Turn into a pan, greased and floured and steam one hour. Serve with any liquid sauce preferred apples, cranberries, blackberries or peaches may be used the same way.

WHAT OLD WORLD NEEDS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I surely thought I would write something for the Social Corner before this but the days pass quickly and the letter was not written. But we are expecting a fine time at our next meeting of Club No. 6 on June 15th and a big gathering. Social Corner, is rightly named and yet it is not a Corner but a whole room full.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox once wrote:

So many Gods, so many creeds
So many paths that wend and wind
When just the art of being kind
Is what this old world needs.

With best wishes to all.

MAY BUG. (Club No. 6)

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The annual spring parade of the fire department was held 50 years ago this week and although there were not as many bands in line as in other years it was a very creditable exhibition of the city's fire fighting force. The same week the Choral union held its annual meeting and elected William Hutchison president for the following 13 months. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of 1876 are as follows:

Monday, May 29, 1876—A horse owned by William Bailey of Franklin took fright at the Falls Saturday morning and ran away. Coming down Lafayette street it came in collision with an iron winch and striking it fairly in the head, its neck was broken and it fell dead. A lady in the carriage was thrown out and quite badly hurt.

It is hoped there will be a liberal response to the appeal of the Grand Army for flowers for decorating the soldiers' graves on Memorial day. Contributions may be sent early in the morning to police headquarters or to the engine house in Greeneville where committees will be in attendance to receive them.

BODY OF SHRAGOWITZ IS BURIED AT JORDAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 4—The body of William Shragowitz, late of 367 Bank street and former employe of the local branch of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which was found off Goshen Point yesterday afternoon, was buried in the Hebrew cemetery, Jordan, late this afternoon. The body was accompanied to the grave by a large number of relatives and acquaintances. Mr. Shragowitz's friends are loath to believe that the former insurance agent ended his life, but insist that he met with foul play. There is not the slightest indication that Shragowitz was murdered, as a thorough examination of the body by Medical Examiner Rose E. Black did not show any signs of violence, or the body would not have been buried today. A report was in circulation today that a bullet hole in the head was revealed by the finding of the body, but this was not so. Coroner J. J. Desmond, of Norwich, did not come to New London today to conduct any investigation, but, instead, after ascertaining the facts from Medical Examiner Black, gave permission for the burial of the body.

Bible Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon at the Norwich Young Mens' Christian association, the last part of the intensely interesting Bible moving picture feature, "The Chosen Prince," will be shown. The special thought emphasized in the picture on this occasion is "The Brotherhood of Man." Jonathan warns Davis that Saul is seeking his life. David is absent from the feast where Saul tried to kill Jonathan. Later he sends word not to kill the priests, but it is too late. David and Jonathan renew their oath. This day begins the trial of friendship. David does not kill Saul because of his friendship for and covenant with Jonathan. David flees to the land of the Philistines. The great battle occurs. Jonathan is killed and Saul falls on his own sword. His crown is stolen and brought to David. David's exile is ended. Gad leads in a great celebration to welcome David to the throne. David is crowned and the proclamation is given out. The picture is, at once thrilling and impressive, and is true to the scripture narrative. Both men and women are invited, and boys and girls 14 and over will be admitted.

Automobile Industry

"Every now and then, someone warns me that the automobile industry is going to be cornered by some big corporation," says Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car company. Nearly every day some individual approaches me to point out the advantages of another big combination of automobile manufacturers. "Of course these people think that there is no salvation for anyone building less than 100,000 cars a year except through such a combination."

Jordan doesn't agree. He claims that the automobile industry will be cornered only when the following four things happen—

1. When every American family is satisfied to live in a house which looks exactly like five thousand other houses in the same town.

2. When the small dealer finds it possible to finance, sell and handle trade-ins on as many cheap automobiles as the factory wants to build.

3. When the American people stop graduating from the Ford kindergarten into the grade school, and when they stop sending their children to high school.

4. When women are satisfied to wear standardized gowns—bob their hair this year and let it grow again next year.

"In short, the automobile industry will be cornered," says Jordan; "when progress is dead, new appearance is undesirable, a new kind of comfort is displeasing and everybody eats ham sandwiches in the kitchen instead of keeping a cook."

Broadway Theatre

D. W. Griffith, unquestionably foremost among American producers of spectacular entertainment, will send his latest production "Hearts of the World," here for a special engagement at the Broadway theatre starting Sunday night.

Those who recall Mr. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," need no further introduction to this master dramatist, and will eagerly await "Hearts of the World," which has been proclaimed his masterpiece and during the production of which he spent eighteen months in France securing the historical material that makes up the latter part of the play. David Lloyd George, prime minister of England, and other British and French officials cooperated with Mr. Griffith in securing the many important scenes, with the result that the producer has been able to show, in complete detail all the interesting events of the recent struggle in France. Aside from this feature there is a love story of great tenderness and charm, and a wealth of comedy. A special symphony orchestra will add to the enjoyment of the production. Lillian and Dorothy Gish are featured.

This cinema epic comes here direct from the grand revival at the Tremont temple, Boston where it held forth for six weeks playing to capacity crowds every matinee and evening.

The Boston critics compared this favorably with the outstanding war picture sensation "The Big Parade" which is praise enough.

Short features include a Mermaid comedy and Kinograms.

Broad Theatre

The stark realism of "The Volga Boatman," Cecil B. De Mille's new personally-directed feature, is destined to make it one of the most talked-of pictures of the season, in the opinion of many critics. Presenting for a background the maelstrom of Russia in Revolution, De Mille has woven in romance, melodrama and humor with a deft hand, capitalizing on his sense of the spectacular without losing the human touch.

A startling contrast between the splendor of the aristocracy, and the squalor of the peasants is brought out in the picture, which follows the experiences of three leading characters—a Prince, a Princess and a Volga Boatman—through the Russian revolution. William Boyd plays the title role, while Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff are also featured. "The Volga Boatman," which will be shown at the Breed theatre Sunday was adapted for the screen by Lenore J. Coffee from Konrad Bercovici's original story.

Slater Hall Concert

It is only since the war that Americans have begun to take an interest in European life in general and Russian life in particular. Until the war Russia, as pictured in the minds of Americans, was a vast expanse of thinly populated land, ruled over by autocratic Czars, with a few geniuses occasionally emerging from the mass of ignorant peasants. The geniuses, to be sure, were taken to heart, for we admired Tolstoy, Dostoyevski, Chaikovski, and a few others. But we did not seem to realize that there must be a source of inspiration to feed these individual geniuses. The latter years of the great war and the years immediately after the armistice brought in their wake a host of Russian refugees with a generous sprinkling of great musicians, actors, painters and composers among them. The height of the Russian artistic invasion was reached when whole companies were brought bodily to America. The Russian ballet, the Chauve Souris, the Moscow Art theatre, "The March of the Wooden Soldiers," one of the numbers in the Chauve Souris, swept America with almost the same devastating effects as "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

And now comes Russian Choral singing. First came the Ukranian choir and upon its departure the Russian Symphonic choir under Basile Kibalchich. The source of inspiration for both is Ukraine, that picturesque part of southern Russia, which is now an autonomous state; a country of enormous plains, of almost impassible pine forests, of wide rivers and fertile fields. Everybody in Ukraine sings. On a summer evening it is nothing unusual for a whole village to gather in the meadows and sing the folk songs of Russia. True, these choral gatherings are untrained but the voices are there, the melodious sopranos, the mellow tenors, the deep basses; for which Russia is justly famous.

The Russian Symphonic choir, which will appear here at Slater Memorial hall on Wednesday evening, October 20th brings to us a bit of Ukraine, which will not only give local music lovers a true picture of that remarkable land but will also serve as a model of the highest achievement in choral singing.

Strand Theatre

"Under Fire," by General Charles King, is receiving warm praise by critics because of its excellent portrayal of frontier-day life. The story, relating a charming courtship carried on amid the perils of the old Indian days, is filled with thrilling situations, climaxing with a gripping scene in which the enraged redskins attack the famous frontier post of Fort Scott.

William (Bill) Patton, popular cowboy actor, makes the most of an exceptional opportunity in his characterization of Lieut. Tom Brennan, suitor for the hand of Margaret Cranston, played by Jean Arthur.

This is the first feature on the double picture program which opens at the Strand for Sunday night only.

"Keep Smiling," the latest Monty Banks Comedy coming Sunday to the Strand theatre, is said to have one of the most vivid fires at sea ever filmed, and is the second attraction.

The story opens with Monty as an immigrant boy on his way to America with his parents. The giant liner goes down in mid-ocean. Passengers jump into the sea and take to the life boats in a mad dash for freedom. Monty escapes with his mother in one of the craft, but his father is lost. The youth grows up in a little fishing village, very much water-shy, but he invents a life preserver and starts out to put it on the market.

The comedy is built around Monty's attempts to sell the rights to his invention. It is not until he has been mistaken for a speedboat driver and takes the wheel in a big water carnival that he successfully demonstrates his invention to a millionaire yacht owner. The comedy is reported to be zip-speed-laugh all the way, with many thrilling scenes.

When the economical housewife casts her stale bread into the waters the result is breadpudding.

Julian Terrace Residence Sold

Archa W. Colt has sold for E. B. Gilbert of Jewett City the fine new residence No. 13 Julian Terrace, to Mrs. Mary H. Goff of Norwich. The house has every modern improvement including a spacious sun porch. The new owner buys the property for a home. This makes the fourth residence recently sold on this street by Mr. Colt.

Palace Theatre

"Lady Windermere's Fan," the Ernst Lubitsch production for Warner Bros., which is coming to the Palace theatre for four days, beginning Sunday, is regarded by Lubitsch as one of the most perfect plays ever written. In his direction of this film version of the famous Oscar Wilde play, he has of necessity discarded the brilliant epigrams of Wilde and substituted action. The audible wit of Wilde will be seen changed to the visible wit of Lubitsch when the picture opens with one of the most sparkling casts assembled for any production.

Irene Rich plays Mrs. Erlynne, the sophisticated charmer who returns to London after many indiscretions, determined to enter society. May McAvoy plays Lady Windermere, and Bert Lytell, Lord Windermere, whose marital happiness is threatened because he is kind to the fascinating Mrs. Erlynne. Ronald Colman (by arrangement with Samuel Goldwyn) will be seen as Lord Darlington, whose love for Lady Windermere and whose schemes to separate her from her husband, are frustrated by the fascinating Mrs. Erlynne. Edward Martindel plays Lord Augustus and Helen Dunbar, Carrie Daumery and Billie Bennett are seen as three duchesses.

The play sparkles.

Mrs. Erlynne says:

My own business always bores me to death; I prefer other people's.

In this world there are only two tragedies. One is not getting what you want and the other is getting it. The last is the real tragedy.

Lord Darlington says:

I can resist everything, except temptation.

A cynic is the man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

Cecil G. says:

The youth of the present day are monstrous. They have absolutely no respect for dyed hair.

Experience is the name everyone gives to their mistakes.

Christy Bros' Circus

The mere announcement that the Christy Bros. big five ring wild animal show is coming to Norwich on Monday, June 21 is a guarantee that something new is on the tapis. This big giant trained animal show has struck a solar plexis blow to the rest of shows of this kind. Never in the history of trained animal shows has such a varied collection of wild animals, marvelously educated, and the trained horses, ponies and other performing domestic animals been brought together combined in one big, gigantic organization that offers an entertainment surpassed by none.

Announcement is made that for the first time a sextette of wild, romping Elk have succumbed to the patience of their trainer and they perform feats never before attempted. They form pyramids, do marches and their drill with military maneuvers is a revelation in animal training. This is said to be the only troup of Elk that have ever been educated to do anything.

There are so many marvelous and thrilling features, so much to interest and please that Christy Bros. this year have surpassed all their previous efforts. The wonderful biblical spectacle which is enlarged and beautified will again be seen this year. It is called "Noah and the Ark," and over five hundred people and hundreds of animals take part in this elaborate production. Daniel is cast into the lion's den, the "Rock of Ages," and the Holy City afford much opportunity to give the public an educational offering that is not only beautiful, but instructive and of interest to all ages.

The street parade in the morning at 11 o'clock is a joyful event. Open cages galore, clowns, music and pretty horses and women have an important place in line and every animal cage is open so that everybody can see the biggest collection of wild beasts ever seen.

Grounds will be at Dwyer athletic field.

When a spendthrift begins to worry about his debts it's a sure sign that his liver is out of order.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, June 4—(AP)—Heavy week-end realizing sales and sporadic bear selling turned the course of prices irregular in today's stock market after an opening display of strength. Closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from fractions to six points, with a smaller number of net losses running as high as 1½ points. Total sales aggregated 1,531,200 shares as compared with 1,645,200 yesterday.

The day's business news was largely favorable. The weekly mercantile reviews emphasized that more resistance was being shown to price concessions, and that the declining tendency of commodity prices in the last six months has had no generally disturbing effects. Several favorable earnings reports made their appearance and the F. W. Dodge corporation reported that construction contract volume in New York city last month exceeded $54,000,000, the largest May on record.

Steel shares displayed a relatively firm undertone on the announcement that some of the smaller independent companies had raised prices on certain products for third quarter delivery. Oil shares turned heavy with some of the selling undoubtedly inspired by the U. S. senate's action in directing the federal trade commission to conduct an investigation of gasoline prices this summer. Pan American B, Houston and General Asphalt fell back a point or so and most of the others yielded fractionally.

Chemicals presented several points of strength. Commercial Solvents B soared six points to 160 and Allied Chemical crossed 121 for a gain of more than 2 points. Davison Chemical was active around 40 on the announcement that its fertilizer business was better than it had been at any time in the last five years.

Coppers continued to move upward under the leadership of American Smelting, which crossed 123 for a gain of nearly 3 points. Bullish demonstrations also were successfully conducted in American Linseed, Collins and Aikman, Electric Refrigeration, General Electric, General Railway Signal, Standard Milling, J. R. Thompson and Worthington Pump.

Heavy selling of the local tractions, which fell back 1 to 2 1-2 points, was accompanied by unconfirmed rumors of threatened labor troubles. Manati Sugar preferred broke 15 points to a new low at 55 on the omission of a dividend due at this time. Heaviness also cropped out in International Combustion, F. G. Shattuck, U. S. Rubber, Wright Aeroplane and several others.

Mixed price movements also characterized the commodity markets. Wheat futures opened strong but lost most of their gains before the close. Cotton sagged 6 to 10 points on selling inspired by more favorable weather reports. Raw sugar was unchanged but coffee advanced 20 to 28 points in sympathy with firmer Brazilian exchange rates which, in turn, were influenced by better prospects for a Brazilian loan in London.

Brokers' loans reported by the New York stock exchange showed a shrinkage of over $68,000,000 in May, and bringing the total to nearly $770,000,000 below the peak figure reached in February.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed considerable irregularity with a break of nearly 15 points to around 3.07 cents in French francs, reflecting the big increase in the note circulation to the Bank of France, as the outstanding feature. Demand sterling was slightly firmer at $4.86 3-16. Belgian francs dropped over 10 points to around 3.10 cents. Other changes were narrow and generally unimportant.

GREENEVILLE

The Community Workers held their June meeting with Mrs. John McNeely of Boswell avenue on Thursday afternoon. A large number of the members were present and after the business was disposed of a very enjoyable picnic was held on the spacious back lawn at the home of the hostess. Election of officers with the same ones holding over for another year took place and a number of cards of appreciation from those who received May baskets from the workers were read. The fine report of the secretary and treasurer showed the society had been very active during the past year and a substantial sum was reported in the treasury to start the coming year. The officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Charles I. Sears; vice president, Mrs. George A. Howard; secretary and treasurer, Miss John McNeely; work supervisor, Miss Nellie Hayes. For the social part a number of games and interesting contests were held. Mrs. Sears won the prize in the flower contest. Mrs. Bowden showed her cleverness in the domestic art contest and carried off the honors. Mrs. William Lund and Mrs. Frank Quimby won the three-legged running race, in which some of the contestants came to grief, but no serious results are reported. Miss Nellie Hayes won in the peanut contest. Miss Cowles was high in the clothespin contest and Mrs. William Brown in the candy hunt. Suitable prizes were distributed to the winners after which the workers were invited to the dining room where a surprise luncheon awaited them. Each member brought a package of food with it which was opened as their presence was called and no one had brought a duplicate. Therefore the delightful lunch consisted of potato salad, home made rolls, nut bread sandwiches, surprise puffs to each girl's with a filling of orchid; sandwiches, egg, pickles, olives, ham, home made cookies and cheese-and-olive cake and strawberry short cake. Coffee was served by the hostess who was assisted by her sister Miss Fanny Quinby and the society gave Mrs. McNeely a vote of thanks for the delightful time enjoyed by all. Mrs. Charles Lewitsky invited the Workers to a picnic some time during the summer months, at her cottage at the Drawbridge and no meetings will be held during July and August, but active work will again be taken up in the fall.

TAG DAY TO RAISE SALVATION ARMY FUND

The final opportunity for everybody to participate—in big ways or small—in the response to the Salvation Army appeal to secure the $400 balance needed to complete its $4,500 maintenance fund, is to be offered today (Saturday), which will be tag day in Norwich for the Salvation Army.

The sanction of Mayor Waters has been secured for the tag day effort and the larger part of the tagging will be done by volunteer girl workers who will be organized under the direction of Mrs. A. C. Freeman who proffered her services for this effort.

Every contribution, large or small, made on tag day will count and it is felt certain by the Salvation Army supporters and workers that the full amount needed will be secured by the tag day effort.

EULOGY FOR JUDGE GREENE IS ELOQUENTLY GIVEN BY ATTY. TANNER

An eloquent tribute to the late Judge Gardiner Greene of this city, who was a judge of the superior court for more than ten of his 46 years as a member of the Connecticut bar, was delivered by Attorney Abel P. Tanner of New London at memorial services held here Friday morning in the superior court room by the New London County Bar association.

The meeting was called to order by Attorney William H. Shields, president of the bar association, who called upon Judge Earnest C. Simpson to conduct the meeting. Following the presentation of resolutions which were passed and the eulogy by Attorney Tanner, Judge Simpson directed Clerk George E. Parsons to spread the memorial tribute and the resolutions upon the records of the court.

Memorial Resolutions

Memorial resolutions which had been prepared by a committee were read by one of the committee members, Attorney Charles L. Stewart, and were adopted by the meeting.

These resolutions spoke of the reverence held by the members of the county bar for the memory of Judge Greene, who was for more than 46 years a member of the bar and for more than ten years a judge of the superior court. Judge Greene's ability as an advocate, his industry and impartiality as a judge, his unfailing courtesy, unassuming dignity and his active participation in every good work and civic obligation were extolled, and his death was declared to be an irreparable loss not alone to the bar but to the state and community which he honored and which honored him.

The committee which prepared the resolutions comprised: Charles L. Stewart, chairman, Henry H. Pettis, Arthur M. Brown, Norwich; Abel P. Tanner and C. Hadlai Hull, New London.

A certified copy is to be sent to the widow of Judge Greene, who attended the memorial exercises and was accompanied by Miss Anna Ely, Albert L. Reynolds and Mrs. Charles L. Stewart.

Attorney Tanners' Tribute

In his memorial tribute, Attorney Tanner, the oldest member of the county bar, spoke as follows:

We come, this morning, to discuss the life of a distinguished citizen. And in so doing that we should do so, some formality of record; for our acts and remembrance. Who, in this courtroom, will be a subject of discussion, here, a 100 years from now, when this muddy vesture has decayed? The names on our headstones, if we have any, will have been effaced by the elements, obscured by time. Faced with the century's moss; and the records of this court, we assume with positive, for we have said the magic words.

In August, 1851, Gardiner Greene was born in this city, on the 31st of that month. At that time the nation was torn by Clay and Webster and Douglas and Calhoun and in the senate they debated wrought the compromise measures under which it was hoped that the union of our would endure. Yet, within but this boy got out of the cradle before both peace and union were imperilled and the union was saved only through the sacrifice in the awful Gettysburg. Judge Greene was the grandson of Gardiner and Mary Adams Greene and grandson of William P. Greene. His father was a native of Norwich, but his mother was a child of old Virginia. He lived in Norwich all his life; was admitted to the bar at 27, and in New York, at Hempstead before all the courts of the state and in the federal courts, and died, in 1925, like unto the Hebrew patriarchs, old and full of years. Gardiner Greene came of distinguished ancestry. He could trace his lineage back to Sir Henry Greene, lord chief justice of England in the reign of Edward III when the jury system, as we know it now was beginning to function in England's jurisprudence 500 years ago. Born in rock-country the family, so to speak, is old. But in New England, one name of Greene leads all the rest. He in the irony of circumstances, a Quakers son, brought up a pacifist, became next to Washington, perhaps, the foremost soldier of the Revolution. And he was Gen. Nathaniel Greene, with in descent from surgeon John Greene who came from England to be the friend of Roger Williams and Samuel Gorton, in their struggle for religious liberty; and the common ancestor of the Greenes of New England.

In 1620, William P. Greene, sixth in descent from this common ancestor, came to Norwich to start the cotton industry and he was, subsequently, elected mayor. With his son, the judge's father and namesake, he established cotton manufacture here, on a permanent basis, and it has continued for more than a hundred years. Yet strange to say, it was the widow of Gen. Nathaniel Greene, who sheltered and encouraged Eli Whitney, then in the south, to make his great invention without which there might have been no cotton mills in Norwich; possibly no colony of Greeneville, or family, here, of Gardiner Greene; and we would not be here this morning to do him reverence. Such is the inscrutable intervention or fate.

The childhood of Judge Greene is circled by no halo of romantic struggle against poverty and want. His forbears, for three generations, had been well to do. Nor was he lacking in intellectual antecedents. Apparently, he came to his life work liberally endowed. We may recall that both his father and grandfather were bred to the law. Judge Greene was educated in the common schools of Norwich and he graduated from Yale in 1873, and from the Columbia Law school, four years later, and in 1878 became the law partner of John T. Wait in the firm of Wait and Greene. Gardiner Greene was a close and thorough student. He understood the sources, the theory and the practice of the common and the written law. He was an able counsellor and an accomplished advocate; and, whether alone or in conjunction with another he practiced law in conformity to its highest ideals.

In politics Judge Greene was a republican. He was twice a member of the general assembly, and in the famous dead-lock session of 1891-2, was floor leader of the house. He was created a judge of the superior court in 1910, and held that position 11 years, or until retired automatically by constitutional limitation. And, as said by Mr. Stewart, in his obituary sketch for the Connecticut Reports, it is as a judge of that court that he will probably be longest remembered. In apt phraseology Mr. Stewart thus writes of his former distinguished associate and friend: "Courteous at all times, calm and dignified in manner, and with a grace and bearing which instantly attracted and held the respect of all, he was an ideal judge." Chief Justice Wheeler and his associates on the supreme bench have written much in the same vein, bestowing high judicial praise. And Judge Greene's character and ability are further commended in the more than 600 letters of consolation to Mrs. Greene. To this competent and multitudinous delineation nothing can be added, unless we say that his success was the more remarkable, in view of his limited experience in criminal jurisprudence. Apparently, Judge Greene had no great fondness for criminal practice and, except as he was drawn into it through association with his partner, rarely accepted a retainer from that source. Thus it is conceivable that he lacked something of the compassion an attorney comes to have for an accused in varied and perilous situations. Again, it may be that to have sympathy for the underworld, one must, at some time, have been an inhabitant of that realm—acclimated, so to speak. But it is a dangerous environment; and they, who contemplate there, even for the purpose of studying human nature, will be fortunate if they have imagination enough to see inscribed above its gloomy portals, Dante's awful words: "Abandon hope, all ye who enter here." However, Judge Greene seems to have conducted his judicial hearings impartially, with a scrupulous regard for the rights of the parties, and always with marked ability. Surpassed by few on the bench, in the same length of service, he revealed qualities of a high order, qualities which, perhaps entitle him to be reckoned among the great jurists of this commonwealth.

Judge Greene was a cultivated man. He was acquainted with the best literature. He read with interest the noted authors, the great orators, the famous poets; but he was not, himself, an orator in any technical sense. He talked to courts and juries and legislative bodies, as he talked in directors' meetings in some banking house over which, in time, he would come to preside, and he talked in a vernacular that could be understood. Indeed, if to persuade and convince be the aim of oratory then he was an orator in that limited sense. But he was cultured in other ways. He was interested in art, in nature and in men. In the simple phrase of one of these letters "he loved nice things and fine people." He was fond of birds and animals, of flowers and fields, of glens and winding streams; but, like Hawthorne, he delighted in the sunshine of his home. Judge Greene was exceptionally fortunate in his marital choice. He married, in 1894, Louise Eustis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Reynolds, and for 31 years they travelled on together until he was stricken at 73. In the climate of the home, death at any age will seem premature, for there, none may live so long but that, at the end, love will plead for a few more years. Yet he, who is summoned hence when has outstayed his allotted time, may be the gainer. Why should one live till his flame lacks oil, to be, perchance, bereft of woman's care when the staff falls from the tired hand and the heart's muffled drumbeats grow fainter towards the sleep of death. He is fortunate, indeed, who having chosen his consort wisely, saying the while, "No other woman before thee," is permitted by a gracious Providence to walk down the long valley, with her hand in his. And what, if death ends all? "To die, to sleep;—and, by a sleep, to say we end the heartache." If it be so, then these our friends are at rest; they are divorced from trouble, wrapped in the sleep that medicines all pain. Happily, the consolation of religion and another life is the heritage of the many that believe. And we are cited to evidence of survival beyond death. It abounds in all literature; it lives in tradition; it is in the folklore of every tribe and people. We go to the Christian faith, as did Judge Greene, and it tells of him who wrought the wonders of Judea. He cured the ill, was sight to the blind, voice to the dumb. He pierced the vale of mystery and, at his magic touch, Death's iron gates unrolled. He called back the great prophets, from the shadowland, when some had been dead for 1400 years, and they appeared, again, as living evidence of the immortal of Israel's mighty dead. He returned, himself from the voiceless dead. It is all in the past, to be sure, a tradition dissolving in the retrospect of 2000 years; but there are plenty to remind us that he, who did these things expressly declared that they could be duplicated in the ages, through the power of faith, even to the invocation of the dead. And, after all, who is competent to deny? Who will set bounds to the Infinite or curb the power of Him, "from out whose hand the centuries fall like grains of sand."

Mr. and Mrs. Greene were religious people. They belonged to the Episcopal church, and locally, to Christ's church in this city. In that church Judge Greene was an esteemed and trusted leader, often chosen to represent it in diocesan conventions. And he loved his church as men, sometimes, have loved fraternal orders. In chaotic periods of history. He was proud of its splendid traditions reaching back to England's Tudor kings and to the greatest of her queens. He had his own conception of religion but he did not obtrude it or his church upon non-communicants. Heaven might be a citadel of many gates approached by many roads. At least, he would not say that the Episcopal church is the only line by which, to embark, from the last ocean pier, for that country of perennial flowers. He was content to go by the way of his church, but he clung to the great fundamentals of religion. He had the faith of the prophets; the faith which has sustained heroes and martyrs, on the steps of the scaffold, or in chains behind dungeon doors; the faith that from the crests of delectable mountains has glimpsed the promised land. We may commend, or dissent from convictions; we may flout the Bible narratives and all investigation, and say, with the Sadducee, that no word has ever come from the other shore to prove a life beyond, but we cannot withhold respect from one who, on the boundary line of another world when his sight was growing dim and his limbs were growing cold, could lift his glazing eyes on high and say, "My faith looks up to Thee."

The death of Judge Greene and of these oldest members, is a constant reminder that we, of another generation, are passing on. We, who fifty years ago, were trailing at the end of the procession, sustained by a great hope, have, in age, moved up to the head of the line whence will soon be heard the bugle note of dismissal, telling us that our course is run, with the great hope unfulfilled. And the procession forever moves on. The youngest counsellor at this bar, now on the threshold of his career, sustained by the same hope, will sometime go out of this courtroom in the exhilaration of success, or the chagrin of defeat; will go down the long steps; down the busy street, past the marts and haunts of trade; through the shuffle and confusion of the throng, up into his office, and there toss his briefcase on the table, for the last time. And he will be fortunate, indeed, if he can leave behind a record as clean, a character as fine, and a life as stainless as that of our risen brother who, in his earthly investment, will climb these steps no more.

TURKEY AND GREAT BRITAIN SIGN THE MOSUL CONVENTION

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 6—(AP)—Turkey and Great Britain have signed the Mosul convention, which settles the dispute between these two countries over the control of Mosul, with its important untapped oil resources. The Mosul question came up before the League of Nations and various solutions were suggested. Eventually the present agreement was drawn up.

The principal points of the convention are acceptance of what is known as the Bruine by both parties, with slight modifications in favor of Turkey in the neighborhood of Alimoun, and the maintenance of a demilitarized zone 75 kilometres on both sides of the frontier.

A Turco-Irak military commission, presided over by a Swiss, will delimit the frontier within six months after ratification of the agreement. The inhabitants of the ceded territory may choose Turkish nationality if they wish.

Turkey is granted a one-tenth share in the royalties due the Irak government from oil in the Kingdom of Irak, in which the vilayet of Mosul lies.

Great Britain now holds the mandate over the Kingdom of Irak, and recently the convention covering this mandate was extended to a maximum of 25 years. The signing of this convention last January was in conformity with the decision of the League of Nations in th edispute over Mosul.

VOICES PROTEST AGAINST PROHIBITION REFERENDUM

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—Congress must decide whether it will "submit to the rum rebellion or whether it will serve the general public," the Rev. William Sheafe Chase, superintendnet of the International Reform federation declared in a sermon here today.

Asking if congress, "which is overwhelmingly dry," was to be prevented from enacting dry laws "by a willfull minority which is wet," Canon Chase declared:

"If the rum business has more influence in congress than the dry platforms of both national parties three years ago, more influence than the sworn duty of each senator and representative to enact appropriate legislation to enforce prohibition, the decay of our American institutions impends."

Opposing any prohibition referendum, Canon Chase said that "the wets prefer a referendum, to an election of legislators at the ballot box, for the same reason that they prefer a straw ballot. The wets know that a referendum is less accurate in revealing the will of the people, is less protected by election machinery from fraud and can be more easily misled."

RUM RUNNING LAUNCH BURNED ON LAKE ONTARIO

YOUNGSTOWN, N. Y., June 6—(AP)—An alleged rum running launch was burned on Lake Ontario today and rave rise to the belief it was wired to catch fire if confiscated.

Two officials who were taking the launch here barely escaped. Before the boat caught fire its crew of fuor men were arrested and jailed at Lockport.

Before the prisoners were taken off the launch, one of them started the engine at the request of the officers. Four miles off shore fire flared up from the hold and enveloped the boat.

The officers leaped into a dory just as several explosions shook the launch.

SNEEZE CAUSED DEATH OF W. L. DEAN, DANBURY

DANBURY, June 6—(AP)—A sneeze was the cause of the death of William L. Dean, a hatter in this city for many years, last night. Mr. Dean, who was 55 years old, sat down to dinner with a party of friends in a restaurant here, when he suddenly sneezed forcefully, causing a hemorrhage. His friends called a taxi, intending to take him to a physician, but when they placed him in the cab, he was dead. Mr. Dean was a widower and has no known relatives in this city

The polls will be open in the four city voting districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., standard time, (8 a. m. to 8 p. m., daylight time) for the city election

AUTO ACCIDENT CAUSED THE DEATH OF HEYWARD CUTTING

GLEN COVE, N. Y., June 6—(AP)—Heyward Cutting, member of a prominent New York family, died today of a fractured skull received when his automobile struck a tree as he was returning early this morning from the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., at Locust Valley, Long Island, in honor of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus and Crown Princess Louise of Sweden.

Mr. Cutting's companions, H. Nelson Slater and Austen Gray, received only slight bruises and scratches.

The three men were driving along the Lattingtown road near the estate of Walter L. Pate, when the car sideswiped a tree. Mr. Cutting was thrown against the windshield, fracturing his skull. Mr. Pate, awakened by the crash found the wreck and called a doctor.

DECREASE IN WORLD-EXPORTS OF FLOUR

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—World exports of flour showed an appreciable decline in 1925 due largely, the commerce department reported today, to the increased wheat production and milling activity in Europe and a larger Asiatic wheat crop.

Exports of the United States decreased from 15,990,000 barrels in 1924 to 11,119,000, while those of Canada dropped from 11,476,000 to 10,319,000.

A shorter winter wheat crop in this country combined with an increase of 300,000,000 bushels of wheat and 230,000,000 bushels of rye in Europe, was reflected in the decline of 3,300,000 barrels in exports of flour to Europe from the United States and Canada, the two largest flour producing and export countries.

The United States increased, however, her flour exports to South America and Africa by 311,000 barrels.

Political Threat By a Labor Leader

Matthew Woll, First Vice President of the A. F. of L. Would Enlist Labor in Support of the Western Farmer.

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—A "political revolution," with organized labor giving "united and unqualified support" to the western farmer, will result from the recent defeat of the Haugen bill for farm relief, Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, predicted today.

"The political revolution now in the making has only begun," Mr. Woll, who is also president of the International Photo-Engravers' union, declared.

"Its first skirmishes are in the congressional halls, followed by primary elections. Soon the whole of our body politic will be involved in political upheaval.

"Labor will support the farmers even though granting their demand would mean an appreciable rise in the price level, Mr. Woll asserted, because labor "believes that a constructive plan of agricultural relief is imperative" and will ultimately add less to the cost of living than "will be added if the farmers are forced to continue on the fringe of bankruptcy."

GOV. TRUMBULL WAS IN EAST HAMPTON YESTERDAY

EAST HAMPTON, June 6—(AP)—Governor and Mrs. John H. Trumbull together with more than 600 persons, many of the descendants of the Revolutionary war heroes, whose graves they visited today attended the dedication of the markers to be placed on graves in the Little West street cemetery on the outskirts of this town. The heroes honored were Dr. Robert Usher, great-great-grandfather of Mrs. Trumbull, William Brainard, Thomas Williams, and Stephen Brainard.

Governor Trumbull made a brief address of welcome and Mrs. Trumbull placed the markers on the grave of her distinguished ancestor. Dr. Usher was a physician in this town before the Revolution, and after completing his services with the Continental army, returned here to continue his practice. A paper telling of his life and work as a surgeon during the war was read by Judge Rollin P. Tyler, of Haddam, a great-great-grandson of Dr. Usher's and cousin of Mrs. Trumbull's. Judge Tyler said that he had spent nearly 40 years in the study and preparation of this biography.

The markers on the grave of Stephen Brainard were placed by Stephen Brainard of East Hampton, who was general chairman of the committee in charge of the dedication. Frank Williams, of East Haddam, a descendant of Captain Thomas Williams, and Judge S. N. Brainard, of East Hartford, marked the graves of their antecedants with plaques.

The ceremony was held under the auspices of the Colonel Henry Champion chapter, D. A. R., of Colchester, and a brief address was made by Mrs. Robert Brown, secretary. Members of the Nathan Hale chapter, D. A. R. of East Haddam, were present. A delegation of Civil war veterans attended and each was greeted by Governor Trumbull individually. In his address he also praised the G. A. R. men and veterans from this statew ho participated in all wars. Representatives of all ex-service men's organizations attended and a squad from the American Legion fired three volleys over the graves, as a bugler blew taps.

FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION IN THE SENATE THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, June 6—(AP)—With adjournment date apparently as much in the air as ever, the senate will devote more time this week to farm relief legislation while the house is putting through a raft of unimportant measures.

Besides the farm bill, the good roads measure is certain to be considered during the week.

The real stumbling block to adjournment now is the French debt settlement. The senate finance committee will begin private hearings on this next Wednesday with a view to getting the bill of ratification in position for action by the senate.

Another senate inquiry to be put underway this week is that into senatorial primary and election campaign expenditures, with the special committee directing its attention first to the Pennsylvania republican primary in which report have had it that several million dollars were spent.

REPORT OF FINDING OF LONG LOST CHARLIE ROSS

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—A mystery of more than half a century has been solved in the finding of Charley Ross whose was kidnapped from his home in a Philadelphia suburb in 1874 the New York World will say tomorrow.

The finding of the long lost Charlie, for whom numerous futile searches have been made in all parts of this country and also abroad, is attributed to Mrs. Pierre S. Starr, of New York whose mother was a first cousin of Charley's mother.

Mrs. Starr has just returned to New York after two months in the south spent gathering evidence, and bringing with her the man she believes to be the Charley Ross who disappeared from the home of his wealthy father in 1874.

The man now 56 years old is married and has six children.

"I want no money," he said. "I know that the estate of Christian K. Ross was exhausted in his search for his son. All I want is my birthright. I want a name for my six children. I have bourne four names and I want my right proved to one of them."

The Charley Ross case has been one of the outstanding mysteries in American history. When the child disappeared his father began a search for him that he prosecuted until his death in 1887 and in which he spent $80,000 in his vain effort to recover his son, who was a curly haired lad of 4 years when he disappeared.

The wheat problem occupied much of the minister's time, the possibility of reimbursing customs duties on foreign grain being considered.

TO FIGHT COMMUNISM AND FEDERAL BUREAUCRACY

The Sentinels of the Republic, a National Patriotic Organization, Will Hold a Series of Congresses in Eight Cities—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is Chairman of the Committee Arranging the Meetings—Many Eminent Men Are Members of the Committee.

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP)—A series of congresses will be held in eight cities of the country, it was announced today by the sentinels of the republic, a national patriotic organization, in "a determined drive against federal bureaucracy, communism, and the tendency of the federal government to encroach upon the states and upon individual rights."

In a statement issued prior to his departure for Europe yesterday, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, and chairman of the committee arranging the meetings, said "federal bureaucracy and various forms and varieties of communism are threatening to change the whole form and spirit of our government."

The following cities have been tentatively chosen as meeting places, at dates as yet undecided: New York, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, Va., and Topeka, Kans.

Associated with Dr. Butler on the committee are: Former Secretary of War John W. Weeks, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., wife of the New York senator; Julian Street, novelist; Congressman Henry St. George Tucker of Virginia; Major General J. G. Harbord, as treasurer of the committee; Charles F. NEW YORK REFERENDUM NO CONCERN OF SENATOR BORAH

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP) — The New York state prohibition referendum in ovember is "a family matter" and not the concern of Senator Borah, Assemblyman Phelps, co-author with State Senator Karle of the measure, declared today in an open letter to the Idaho senator.

Mr. Phelps denied that the referendum action was illegal as had been charged by Senator Borah in a recent address in Baltimore in which he came out flatly for prohibition enforcement and criticized the coming referendum.

The argument of the Idaho senator that "every statute and constitutional amendment should be literally and sternly upheld," Mr. Phelps said, was untenable because of the "ignoring in the south" of the 14th and 15th amendments dealing with suffrage and legal rights. The New York assemblyman also charged that Senator Borah did not "even try to do anything" about the disregard of those amendments.

The referendum will be legal, Mr Phelps said, because of the act providing for it had been duly passed by the legislature and signed by the governor and no court action taken in opposition.

"In its last analysis this referendum," he said, "is an honest attempt to find out the views of the people of New York state.

"We are supposed to have state rights, and one of our rights should be to find out, for ourselves by ourselves, just where we stand on the problem of improving what is to us an obnoxious law.

"Good taste keeps outsiders from interfering in a family argument, gerator, and when outsiders do interfere they are never thanked by members of the family, and very, very seldom do they find it has helped them, personally or politically."

INTEREST IN PRIMARIES TO BE HELD IN IOWA TODAY

DESMOINES, Iowa, June 6—(AP)—Iowa voters go to the polls tomorrow to select republican and democratic candidates for the United States senate and, in addition, the republicans will decide several primary contests for state offices.

Supporters of Senator A. B. Cummins, who seeks renomination for an office he has held nearly a score of years, declare the vote will be "an Iowa house-cleaning," referring to the opposition candidacy of Smith W. Brookhart. On the other hand, Colonel Brookhart's adherents regard the primary as largely an expression of the voters on his recent unseating by the senate, as well as other issues raised by Brookhart.

A third candidate in the republican senatorial contest is Howard Clark, Des Moines lawyer, who has appealed to the voters as a "peace" candidate, declaring his nomination would go a long way toward allaying the party discord that arises largely from Brookhart's differences with leaders of the "regular" wing.

The democrats have a senatorial contest between J. Ray Flies, of Fort Dodge, Claud Porter of Des Moines, and J. C. Murtaugh of Waterloo, but the minority party fight has aroused little enthusiasm compared with the republican contest.

White, the chairman of the board of trustees of Storrs church.

The new church and community house were erected by funds raised from the people of the state through the Rev. Dr. L. H. Dorchester, president of the Connecticut Federation of Churches, who acted as chairman at the exercises.

The service was the last to be held at the Storrs church, which is soon to be removed to make way for a new edifice. The church has been standing since 1845.

FOUR HELD FOR BOMBING LEGATION IN MONTEVIDEO

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 6—(AP)—Four alleged international terrorists, held in jail here, are charged by the police with having bombed the United States legation Friday. The police claim to have apprehended the authors of the bomb outrage through a confession obtained from another terrorist, who had been detained in the case.

Three of the accused men are foreigners and are said to be listed as terrorists in the rogues galleries at Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro.

Revolvers, pieces of iron similar to those with which the bomb which exploded in the legation was loaded, and printed propaganda for demonstrations in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, convicted by the Massachusetts court of murder, and held prisoners in that state, are declared by the police to have been found at the house where the prisoners resided.

HELD IN $100 BAIL FOR NOT PAYING TAXI FARE

NEW YORK, June 6—(AP)—An Albany taxi driver who yesterday had visions of "cashing in big" on the wedding of the governor's daughter, and his fare, who said he was the son of a Tampa, Fla., millionaire, appeared today in Jefferson Market court and told the magistrate that the morning after found them deadlocked.

The young man, describing himself as Roy L. Clark, 21, of 3501 Thirty-third street, Tampa, said that pending the arrival of money from his father he couldn't pay the $7.5 taxicab fare incurred after he had told John Akman, Albany taxidriver, he was "anxious to get from the wedding of Governor Smith's daughter to the Hotel Waldorf Astoria in record time."

And Akman said he wouldn't let Clark out of his sight and couldn't go home because paying for expensive cigars, cigarettes and food enroute for Clark, who had "only $100 bills that can't be changed in these small towns," had taken up all his gasoline money.

They slept last night in Pennsylvania station, Akman holding to Clark's arm while they awaited an answer from Clark's father to the request for funds.

"Well, I don't", Akman interrupted, Clark admitted in court, "but it's only temporary financial embarrassment. You know how it is, your honor."

"I didn't attend the Smith wedding." "We have a good wedding in Albany about once in every 50 years, and I don't feel like losing all my fares on account of this fellow."

Clark was held in default of $100 bail for examination tomorrow, and the police began an investigation of his possession of hotel keys from Montreal, Albany and Boston.

POLICEMAN BEATEN WITH HIS OWN CLUB

NORWALK, June 6—(AP)—A policeman was beaten up with his own club, a city editor had his head grazed by a flying bullet and two boys were chased through the street, one of them caught in a chicken coop, within the space of a few minutes early this morning.

Patrolman David Sniffen was the victim of his own night stick when he attempted to arrest Louis and Tony Mola after the car in which they were riding collided with another.

According to witnesses, many of whom differ in their versions of the fray, Sniffin started the row. Others insist that the boys struck the first blows. Several hundred persons saw the fracas and when the boys decided that the officer had enough, they ran through the crowd and down the street.

Sniffen pulled his revolver and opened fire on his fleeing conquerors. One shot grazed the head of Leroy D. Downs, city editor of the Evening Sentinel, who is also a constable of the town. Downs shouted to the officer to stop his shooting. Sniffen did so and was taken to his home after his wounds were treated.

Louis Mola was trailed to a chicken coop where he was arrested and placed under bonds of $1,000 and which was provided by the boy's father.

Tony is still being sought by the police. Mayor Thomas Robins is to conduct an investigation of the officer's conduct.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 6—George, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Mecier, alias Macha, of 7 Main street, lies in a badly mangled condition at St. Joseph's hospital from wounds sustained on his father's farm, just north of the Natchaug river near Horseshoe bridge at 11 o'clock Saturday forenoon, when he was caught in the teeth of a Fordson tractor in an effort to save his little brother from a similar fate. The father was driving the tractor and the boy was dragged about 12 feet before the child's cries caught his attention and caused him to bring the machine to a stop. Four ribs were crushed on the left side and the boy's body was punctured by the large teeth of the tractor, one tooth puncturing the chest, just a margin away from the heart. At the hospital Sunday it was stated that the boy had rallied somewhat but the surgeons feared that infection might set in George and Frank, the latter 4, were riding on the running board of the tractor. Frank lost his balance and fell to the ground. George reached down to pull his little brother out of danger and he also lost his balance. He fell forward, rolled under the heavy machine. The roar of the motor made his cries of agony inaudible until he had been dragged about 12 feet. He was extricated with considerable difficulty and rushed to the hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Polly M. Picknell were held at her home, 73 Turner street at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, Rev. David Winslow Lovett officiating. Burial was in Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Charles Washburn, Calvin Parrish, Allen B. Burleson and Henry Fryer. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

Godfrey Sandstrom of R. F. D. No. 1, Windham and Stefan Nascin, Jr., of 139 Spring street were held for reckless driving, following a collision of their automobiles at the blind corner of Church and Valley streets at noon Saturday resulting in injuries to John Nascin, cousin of Stefan and of the same address. John Nascin sustained lacerations on both knees and left elbow and minor cuts about the face. After treatment at St. Joseph's hospital by Dr. C. A. Jenkins, he returned to his home. Stefan Nascin had just left his work at the Chronicle printing office and was headed north on Church street in his Buick touring car. With him was his cousin, Sandstrom, driving a Chevrolet touring car came west on Valley street. At the blind intersection the drivers foresaw a collision too late to prevent it. The crash of the cars was audible for several blocks. The Chevrolet stopped near the northwest curb of the intersection. The Nascin machine traveled on across the intersection up Church street about 30 feet where it overturned, pinning the young men underneath. John Nascin was caught with his head and shoulders protruding through the frame of the windshield out of which the glass had been shattered. Passersby richted the machine, extricating the injured man. The driver of the Buick escaped injury, as did also Sandstrom and passengers in his car. Edward and Arthur Morrotte and Arthur Wood. Acting Chief Thomas F. Grady investigated the accident and as each driver refused to accept the blame, he notified both to appear in court Monday morning.

Albert O. Diva of Card street was before Justice of the Peace John Kinnaird of Lebanon town court and Grand Juror Elmer Lord Saturday on a charge of having in his possession liquor with intent to sell, also having a firearm in his possession unawfully. Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie 2nd of Lebanon preferred the charges. Diva pleaded not guilty to the first charge and guilty to the second, acknowledging that he was an alien, therefore prohibited having a firearm. On the liquor charge Justice Kinnaird imposed a fine of $100 and costs and $10 on the second count, the total being $174.75. The Diva home on the Lebanon-Windham town line was raided about two o'clock Saturday morning by Deputy Sheriff Hoxie with Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery and County Detectives William E. Jackson. A few kegs containing drainings of alleged liquor, wine in receptacles, bottle stoppers and a section of a still were found. The officers claimed that the evidence was found on the Lebanon town side of the cellar, but Diva insisted that it was on the Windham town line and he protested at the manner in which court was conducted. The raid was made after several complaints had been received of illegal liquor transactions at the Diva home.

FUNERAL OF ALLEN JEWETT AT CLARK'S CORNER HOME

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 6—The funeral of Allen Jewett, the sage of Hampton, was held Saturday afternoon at the homestead near Clark's Corner, about 200 attending. Men, women and children were present from the township, where he had been prominent for more than 60 years and relatives and friends from Willimantic, Springfield, New Haven, Norwich, Putnam and Westerly. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Sherrod Soule of Hartford, a native of Hampton and friend of the family, who paid fitting tribute to the long and honorable record of this man of rugged honesty, of his sense of civic honor and duty and of efficient service to his community, who took a deep interest in state and national affairs. By personal request of Mr. Jewett as made about two years ago Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford, an intimate friend, read brief selections from favorite authors especially from James Whitcomb Riley's book, A Dead Man's Message to his Friends, which Mr. Jewett had specified to be read as his own final message. The active bearers were Elmer C. and Wallace N. Jewett, sons Chester B. and William W. Jewett, W. Harry and Fred M. Stebbins, nephews, who were the bearers at Mrs. Jewett's funeral, five years ago. The honorary bearers were Attorney George Dudley Seymour, New Haven; Elisha W. McGuire of New York and Windham, Dr. A. D. Marsh of Hampton; Warren L. Averill, Putnam; Allen B. Lincoln, Ashford and Mayor John C. Tracy, James P. Bath, Edgar E. Bass, Samuel Chesbro, Homer M. Harrington, George C. Holt, James H. Hurley and H. Clinton Lathrop of Willimantic. Burial was in the South Cemetery, in the Jewett family plot, near the tomb of Windham county's famous governor of Connecticut, Chauncey Cleveland for whose life and memory Mr. Jewett had profound respect. It is an interesting fact that Allen Jewett was a proponent and advocate of the law which was passed by the general assembly of 1925 on motion of Hon Chester B. Jewett, representative of Hampton authorizing county treasurers to receive in custody any sums of $100 or more, the income of which should be paid out as specified in any case for the perpetual care of the designated cemetery plot or individual grove. Allen Jewett promptly took advantage of this law by contributing a fund to the Windham county treasurer. He was an incorporator and one of the directors in the Hampton cemetery association. There were beautiful floral contributions, from friends in this city and throughout the state.

DANIELSON

ALFRED W. BASSETT DIES IN LOS ANGELES

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 6—A telegram received here Saturday by relatives brought news of the death in Los Angeles of Alfred W. Bassett, a one of the three partners in the Larkin Reed company, one of Danielson's oldest established industries. Mr. Bassett had been in failing health for some years, but his condition had not been regarded as so serious as to forecast his death at such an early date. The announcement of his passing came as a shock to his relatives and friends in Danielson.

Mr. Bassett was born here February 20, 1854, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bassett, who were residents of this town for many years. His earlier education was obtained in the schools of this town and he later studied at a business college in Providence, in which city he lived for a long term of years before returning here during the World war to take a partnership in the Larkin Reed company in association with his brother, John B. Bassett and his brother-in-law, William J. Ross.

He was actively concerned with the affairs of the business until failing health required his retirement, and he went with Mrs. Bassett to California to make his home, a little more than four years ago. Two years ago the coming summer Mr. and Mrs. Bassett made a trip east and remained here for a number of weeks, returning in the early fall. Since then his health gradually became more precarious and while his restoration to health was an abandoned hope, it was not anticipated that his death might be imminent.

Mr. Bassett leaves his wife, two brothers, Oliver, superintendent of the Killingly town farm, and John B., with whom he was associated in business, and a sister, Mrs. William J. Ross. His brothers and sister are all residents of this town.

NEWLY ORDAINED PRIEST BLESSES CONGREGATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 6—Rev. Fr. Denault, M. S., newly ordained member of the Missionary order of LaSalette, his home being in New Bedford and who has recently returned from Europe, was celebrant of the high mass at St. James' church Sunday. At the conclusion of the mass the congregation filed down the aisles and knelt at the altar rail to receive his blessing. At the devotions in the afternoon Fr. Denault similarly bestowed his blessing upon all in attendance.

Incident to the Well Child conference to be held Tuesday afternoon in the town hall building, it is pointed out that the normal child, as well as those that are underweight, should have some period of rest during the day and should go to bed early, as growth is best accomplished during sleeping time. Often all that is needed to bring a child up to normal weight is longer hours of rest. All children should go to bed early regardless of possible change in sun time. All these measures for health are discussed at the monthly Well Child conference, and all of these conferences are of special educational value to mothers, who are welcomed.

Saturday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Almira Brodeur was held from her home in Plainfield with a solemn mass of requiem at St. John's church at 9 o'clock, Rev. R. P. Morrissey, the pastor, was celebrant. Rev. J. C. Mathieu of the Sacred Heart church at Wauregan and Rev. Fr. Landry of Jewett City deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. The funeral cortege proceeded from Plainfield to Wauregan, where Mrs. Brodeur lived for years and another high mass, of which Rev. Fr. Mathieu was celebrant was held in Sacred Heart church. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. Relatives and friends acted as bearers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

In the town court Saturday afternoon Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine of $25 and costs, a total of $35.49, on Manuel Oliver, 20, of Goodyear, on a charge of reckless driving. State Officer Edward V. Streamens apprehended Oliver while the latter was speeding at between 40 and 45 miles an hour in the vicinity of Attawaugan on May 30. The fine and cases were paid and Oliver discharged.

Danielson and vicinity took another freezing over the week end. "What is so rare as a day in June?"—and the answer must be a day in February, because there are never more than 29 of them, and ususually only 28. Oh, for a good guess from the Cloud Digger.

Because of the cold and unfavorable weather, the annual Corpus Christi procession to have been held at St. James' church on Sunday was abandoned, much to the regret of the hundreds of parishioners who would have participated in the solemn ceremony.

At Bishop's crossng in the southern section of the town of Plainfield one of the concrete abutments is in place and, on the westerly side of the westerly side of the tracks, a big fill is being made and is well advanced to make the gradually ascending roadway that will carry traffic high above the railroad when the work is completed late this summer. A temporary roadway for traffic has been constructed along the northerly side of the field of operations. This job means the elimination of one of the most dangerous grade crossings in eastern Connecticut and one where fatal accidents have occurred.

Miss Elizabeth Woodworth, a teacher of many years experience, in the schools of Killingly and elsewhere, is to be principal of the Danielson graded school, during the school year opening next September. Miss Woodworth has been a teacher in the building for more than a decade. She is a very capable instructor and has the qualification that make for efficiency in discipline and administration.

Tires for the new disc wheels for the Captain Put pumper have been received here. The truck will be in use with its new wheels and tires this week should any circumstance require calling it out. After the truck is varnished it will be much like a new machine. It is in excellent mechanical condition and ready for any test to which it may be subjected in fighting fires.

East Killingly is now turning its attention to arrangements for the annual celebration of the Fourth in that community. For a number of years East Killingly has done more than any of the other places in this town to keep the spirit of patriotism alive on Independence day, and this year will not be an exception. These observances each year attract a large number of people to that section of the town.

DIVORCED IN THE FALL MRS. LEVINE MARRIES

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 6—Mrs. Rose Levine of Mechanics street and Morris Needles, a Boston real estate dealer were married Saturday afternoon, by Judge Mahlon H. Geissler of the Putnam city court, acting as justice of the peace. A reception was held Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride on Mechanics street for relatives and intimate friends. Mrs. Needles has lived in Putnam for the past fifteen years. At the fall session of the superior court she was granted a divorce from Max Levine, on the ground of desertion, as he had disappeared several years ago. Since her husband disappeared she has maintained her home in Putnam and cared for her two children. One of the children died several years ago and there is now the one son, Louis Levine. Mr. Needles has been a frequent visitor to the city. He will continue his Boston office, although after a wedding trip they will make their home in Putnam.

Inclosed with the ties was a letter stating that if they wished the goods to remit $1.50. The great majority of the consignees refused to accept the package from the mails. The following will no doubt be of interest to many residents of the city: "The mail order business of E. P. Beaumont, Inc., which was started four years ago on a $200 loan and grew to a volume of $2,000,000 annually, is being operated by a receiver, James C. NOANK

The Hammer baseball team went over to Midway Friday evening and defeated Midway team 4 to 0. The Hammer team required only one inning to win and that was the second, getting three hits, Manager Crumb's two base hit which knocked in two men. Both men pitched good ball. Beardsley for Noank pitched for the first time this year, allowing Midway three hits and sending ten men to the bench by strikeouts. He is a right-hander and got some mean hooks. His teammates never made an error. Haggerty found the going too rough after two innings and had to retire, Bernden taking his place and holding Noank without a run. Walsh for Noank in the sixth inning, with three men on bases, ran from third base to the foul line and caught a hard drive from the bat of Stickland. The crowd gave him a great hand for the catch. JEWETT CITY

MRS. ADELBERT R. YOUNG DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 6—Phebe Hazen, 81, wife of Adelbert R. Young died at her home Saturday evening. She had been confined to her bed for thirteen months. Mrs. Young was the daughter of Charles and Mary Armstrong Hazen, and was born in Franklin, November 17, 1844. She married Mr. Young, a retired superintendent of Ashland Cotton Co., nearly fifty-nine years ago. Her life has been spent in Jewett City, where she was a member of the Congregational church, uniting in 1878. In her younger days, she was an active worker in the church, and had served as president of the Ladies society. Her chief interest was in her home, where she was greatly beloved for her unremitting devotion to its interests, in her long illness she was a most patient sufferer, never complaining, and very appreciative for the loving care given her. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Lloyd G. Buckingham of Jewett City and Mrs. Champion Mathewson, of New Haven. She leaves three grandchildren, Donald Buckingham, Janet and Hasen Mathewson. A sister, Mrs. Daniel Tucker of Willimantic, who has been a patient in St. Joseph's hospital for nine weeks, having a broken hip, also survives her.

One evening, late last week, a representative of the well known Rattlesnake oil brand, backed his wagon into a small alcove off Main street, lit up his torch, let down his hair, displayed a few rattly old snake skins and a couple of rusty bowies and was ready for business. That same business arrived as it always has arrived and probably always will. He had the goods right in the bottle. Skeptically inclined hearers were earnestly invited to see directions on the bottle, and read the testimonials in three languages and be convinced. A small boy was called from the smoky precincts of the back stage and anointed with a few drops of the marvelous liquid. Men stepped forth and were instantly relieved of their money. Before the flaring torch turned low, the hero of the plains and accomplished orator had disposed of 70 bottles, at one dollar per. The medicine chest was closed, the kerosene supply was turned off and, while dispersing the crowd were notified of a "sure enough" return date, with a replenished supply. Not, however until after the doctor had returned from Maine, where he was always needed, when the lumberjacks came out from a winter in the big timber camps. His "special oil" he said, was absolutely necessary, as they were filled with rheumatism, besides being covered with cuts and bruises, and possessed of a fine winter's crop of bunions and corns.

A Jewett City man read in Saturday's Bulletin in the Fifty Years Ago column: The airline route between New York and Boston is now expected to be open within two weeks.

This item which appeared in 1876, had reference to the connecting link from Willimantic to New Haven via Middletown, and known as the Airline. The man pointed out that the self same item, if printed in this Monday's Bulletin, would just fit the present case, because on July 1st, the new air mail route will begin operation between New York and Boston.

Miss Ruth Tefft, of Chautauqua met the guarantors in the town hall Friday evening. She gave a most enthusing outline of the program, and will speak to the children in both Riverside and the parochial schools this (Monday) morning. She spoke in the Sunday schools Sunday. Mrs. F. E. Robinson was appointed hospitality committee. The guarantors were served ice cream by the courtesy of Dr. C. H. Jennings, at the close of the meeting.

Miss Beatrice Read returned Saturday from a visit in North Stonington and New London

Thomas Barnett and Theodore Soule, are off this (Monday) morning on a few days' automobile cruise in the former's machine. Points of interest in Maine, Canada and New Hampshire are included in their itinerary. The young men have no objective point in view. It will be a stop where night overtakes them, and if things look good, hang around a day or two. Mr. Barnett is the manager of the Finn theatre and Mr. Soule is the proprietor of a borough business establishment.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Melting Snow that Didn't Melt

Some things, you see, may often be Quite different from the things you see.

—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit sat beneath an alder bush looking up at what looked like a little patch of snow. He had just thought to himself that it wasn't snow because snow would melt, when spang! A little drop hit him on the end of the nose. That was queer. Peter was sure that that little drop had fallen from that alder and right from that little patch of what looked like snow. Another drop fell, and presently another.

By this time Peter's eyes were open very wide. Could that be snow after all? He began to suspect that it was. Spang! Another drop hit him on the nose. Yes, sir, that must be snow and it was melting. But whoever had heard of snow in the middle of summer. Certainly Peter never had. He hitched a step or two forward so as to get right under that branch of alder, and there he sat staring up with his mouth wide open. Such a foolish-looking fellow as Peter was! He was all curiosity.

Down fell another drop, but this drop fell right into Peter's open mouth. "Why," exclaimed Peter right aloud, "it's sweet! Yes, sir, it's sweet! Now what do you know about that? Huh, that's the funniest snow I ever heard of. I've seen a lot of snow in my life, but I've never known any before that tasted like honey when it was melted. I wonder if I imagined it. Perhaps another drop will fall."

Another drop did fall, and Peter caught it in his mouth. Just like the other drop it was sweet. It was sweet and sticky. Peter backed away a little. He didn't want to be all stuck up if all that white patch up there was going to melt and drop down he didn't want to be under it. From where he was sitting he could watch it. Little drops continued to fall. Peter decided that at the rate those little drops were falling it wouldn't take long for that little white patch to melt away entirely. He decided to stay until it was all gone.

But it didn't go. He stayed and stayed and stayed and drops fell and fell, and so far as he could see that white patch was just as big as it was in the beginning. If that snow was melting it had a funny way of showing it. Yes, sir, it did so. The water dropped, but the snow didn't melt, and after a while Peter began to suspect that he had been right in the first place and that that little white patch wasn't a patch of snow at all.

By this time Peter's eyes were open very wide

But if it wasn't snow what could it be? Peter was stumped, as the saying is. That means that he just couldn't think of any explanation at all. He knew now that it couldn't be snow. He also knew that it couldn't be that white stuff called mold found on dead wood, because that wood wasn't dead. What could it be? Peter thought and thought and thought, and the more he thought the more puzzled he became. He wanted to ask questions, but he couldn't think of any one to ask questions of. He couldn't think of anybody who would be more likely to know any more about it than he did. Why were they sweet? What made those little drops? What made that white patch? Did those little drops really come from that white patch? If they did, why didn't that white patch grow smaller?

Over and over in his mind Peter kept turning these questions until his head ached. And all the time he sat in the same place and all he saw in that alder was that one little white patch high above his head. It didn't once enter his head to look for other white patches. He didn't once think that there might be other white patches. And all the time there was one not a foot above his head and where he could have looked at it very easily had he found it. What do you think that white patch was?

TODAY'S CITY ELECTION

Norwich registers its preference for city officials today. In a quiet and apparently one sided campaign we are now at the point where it remains for the voters, women as well as men, to make the decision.

The city election is always important and particularly so in the year when it is possible to determine who is to control the municipality for the next two years. This is the day when the ballots should do the talking, when those who are demanding good government should abut their ears to the claim that one vote more or less would make no difference and get to the polls and insist upon participating in the selection.

City government isn't a matter about which the voters should talk their heads off and then decline to vote. The way for it to be brought up and kept up to the standards required by the majority is for that majority to assert itself and take a real interest in what vitally concerns itself.

The city election today is the time for each and every voter who can do so to get to the polls and indicate his preference. With 13 hours in which to vote there should be plenty of time for all to be accommodated without crowding, but it is most unwise to put it off until the last hour, if it is possible to vote early.

City election day is not a day to take anything for granted. Dont stay at home. Visit your district voting place and display an interest in your own affairs, remembering that the pulling of the top lever on the voting machine means a vote for the republican ticket as printed above.

IOWA'S PRIMARY

Much interest will be centered today in the primary in Iowa. Ordinarily such might not be the case but the situation has been developed there to the point where a hard fight has been waged for the republican nomination for United States senator and because it has been more or less in the public eye it is natural that the country should be eager to know what Iowa is going to do.

The primary contest revolves about Brookhart's effort to have his state give endorsement to his policies and by doing so turn down Senator Cummins who has been senator from that state for 18 years. Brookhart as a radical went to the senate to fill an unexpired term. He had the distinction of being read out of the republican party, of repudiating the party after he had got the republican nomination and when the time for his election came he received so much republican opposition that his democratic opponent was declared elected by the United States senate. Thrown out of the senate, he seeks to get the nomination for reelection away from Senator Cummins. It can be expected that the people of Iowa will react to his efforts even more positively than they did at the last election, when they preferred a democrat to Brookhart, but that is what is going to be determined today.

The test is before the republicans. It rests with them to say whether they want such a radical as their candidate or whether they prefer the man who has served with distinction for so many years from that state. Democratic interest is whetted because of the Brookhart efforts. They ordinarily have no chance in Iowa but they feel that if Brookhart is nominated there will be an excellent chance for a second democratic senator from the Buckeye state, and that view is by no means unreasonable.

BALKING AT SERVICE

There are those who are invariably seeking the benefits to be obtained in various undertakings without being willing to shoulder the responsibilities that go with them.

A young midshipman has just completed his course at Annapolis. He has had the benefit of the four years training at this institution at the expense [illegible] and now when he has gotten to the point where the government expects something in the way of service from him, service of course under pay, he balks, refused to take the oath of fealty to the Constitution before becoming an ensign and seeks to resign.

Midshipman Zirkle, like all others of his class and others who have been graduated at Annapolis, knew that it is not possible for him to resign after entering his last year. And yet that is just what he has sought to do with the idea that special consideration should be shown in his case.

The excuse offered by the young man is tht he has discovered that his temperament is not suited to becoming a naval officer. He is not the only one who has entered Annapolis who has come to a similar conclusion, but it was done at the proper time and not after they had gone beyond the time limit for such a plea. Under the law all Annapolis graduates are required to do what is asked of Zirkle, who is still with his class on one of the battleships for a cruise.

Throughout his four years at Annapolis, Zirkle's record has been a good one and he has shown himself to be a student who fully understood the requirements of his position but day in the primary in Iowa. Ordinary having obligated himself he should see the matter through without a whimper. At least that is what is to be expected of good officers and that is what Annapolis graduates are supposed to develop into. It is quite evident that he would be disposed to avail himself of release after two years but until then he should be [illegible].

ELIMINATING POSSIBLE DANGER

If you are going to drive into the state of Rhode Island it would be well to omit the cluster of flags on the radiator of your automobile, if you carry such a decoration.

The board of public roads in the neighboring state has ordered that such flag clusters be removed, claiming that the flags serve to obstruct the vision of the driver and therefore are a menace. The position taken is much the same as that in regard to the bathing girls and other pasters placed upon windshields.

The board has no objection to the flags but it is concerned with the safety of the highways and believes the time has come to stop this practice before it gets to be worse.

Whatever serves to prevent a clear view of the road ahead can easily be the means of distracting attention or preventing the view of what should be seen by automobile drivers, whether it is a car ahead, a hole in the road, a small animal or the distance which certain objects in the road might be away. It would be easy for the attention to be so attracted by the fluttering flags as to overlook the serious business of driving with any number of bad consequences resulting.

What might be harmless for one might be dangerous for another, but certainly if such distractions are not there they cannot serve as an excuse for accidents. The Rhode Island board bases its decision upon that attitude and it acts at a time when with so few being affected by the order that compliance should be prompt and general. There can be no very serious objection to what is being done in the interest of greater highway safety. Suspension or revocation of licenses can be imposed by the Rhode Island authorities.

WHAT EXPERIENCE SHOWS

Protests that are being made as the result of primary battles dwell to a large extent upon the large sums of money involved. Expenses frequently run much higher than the person elected to office should receive in salary during his entire term. They are in fact all out of proportion but are of course not all met by the individual. Friends and organizations in sympathy therewith do their part.

There were the days when the primary was demanded because of the evils attributed to the convention system, but it doesn't appear that the primary is without evils of its own. It has been pretty conclusively shown that no one but a rich man has any chance to run for office in a primary and expect to get there if he must depend upon the funds that are put forth in his behalf. It is entirely possible to spend huge sums in a legitimate manner through circularizing constituencies and through advertising. The primary in fact tends to encourage the use of much money and it doesn't appear that any better or more satisfactory results are obtained. Evils haven't been eliminated, expenses have increased, candidates are restricted and the interest of the people are just as much in the balance as ever.

Whatever may have been expected from the replacement of the convention by the primary, the investigations into primary expenditures serve to demonstrate that that system is far from perfect and the fact that faith in it is far from complete. It is another instance of finding that the glories of the untried are wonderful until there has been a chance for some real and enlightening experience.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Soak close-leaved vegetables such as cabbage and cauliflower, in salted water for 20 minutes.

Keep as many foods as possible in fruit jars in your ice box. Jars take up less room than dishes.

A lump of sugar added to the rinsing water will give a light starch to organdie collar and cuff sets.

Rugs should not be slighted. Instead hang them on a clothesline and beat them with a cane beater kept for the purpose.

To clean tan shoes thoroughly wash them with warm water and castile soap. Let them dry, then polish in the usual way.

When you choose poultry, see that the beak and claws of a fowl are soft, not stiff and horny. The bones of all young birds are soft.

If you have a waxed finish on the living room floor and wish to clean it, put a few drops of crude oil on a soft, dry cloth and give the surface a light polishing after having dusted it well with a dry cloth.

To turn out a jelly, slightly grease jelly molds with butter, and when the jelly or pudding is to be taken out, plunge the mold into hot water and remove at once. The jelly will turn out without any trouble.

If the table silver is placed in hot soapsuds immediately after being used, and dried with a soft, clean cloth, much of the work of polishing will be [illegible].

When steel knives and forks have become tainted with fish the smell may be removed by rubbing them with a little fresh orange or lemon peel.

Marble tops from old-fashioned washstands make nice bread boards. They are especially good when rolling out pies, as they are always cold.

When boiling preserved eggs, a small hole should be made in the shell with a pin at the large end before placing them in water. This allows the air in the egg to escape when heated and will prevent cracking.

IMPROVING WATER MOP

An inexpensive string water mop will keep its shape better and last longer if the mop strings are tied about three inches below the place where the cord is fastened to the handle. Strong twine should be wound around the mop strings several times and tied securely.

A VEGETABLE CONTAINER

A wires waste paper basket makes a splendid vegetable container. It allows the air to circulate through the contents and has nothing about it to attract insects.

CUTS THE GREASE

If dishes are very greasy, add a bit of soda to the water in which they are washed and the cleansing will be greatly accelerated.

HARDENS OLD BRUSHES

Old hair brushes which have become soft can be made quite hard and firm by dipping them in a strong solution of alum.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

In combating obesity, bear in mind that it is always best to have the advice of your doctor. Especially is this true if you are considering taking drugs or nostrums guaranteed to reduce flesh.

All the elements we need for the healthful development of our bodies are found in a correct diet, which is at at the same time the best guarantee of beauty that is known. In a sense every well-balanced meal is a beauty treatment.

Nervousness is perhaps beauty's greatest enemy, because it upsets the normal functioning of the whole body. Nervousness puts a sharp, rasping edge on the voice, keeps the weight below normal, prevents restful sleep and causes facial wrinkles—surely enough reasons for avoiding it!

Eye-wrinkles are not always due to defects in vision, although they often result from such causes. In summer time the brightness of the sunlight and its reflections from light-colored objects make one squint involuntarily. Hats for summer should therefore have fairly wide, opaque brims, and if one's eyes are particularly sensitive tinted glasses should be worn.

WHOLESALE CLEANING

The table silver can be cleaned rapidly and with practically no effort if placed for a few minutes in a solution made by pouring a quart of boiling water on 1 teaspoon of salt and 1 teaspoon of baking soda in a large aluminum pan. Rinse with clear boiling water and dry.

A PEEP INTO THE FUTURE

After the room is freshly papered take a piece of left over wallpaper and tack it up in the attic, so if in the future a patch is needed, you will have a piece that has been exposed to light and is the same color as the paper of the room.

BANISH THE FAMILY GROUP

Do not spoil the appearance of your living room by keeping all the family portraits on view. They are no longer popular. Subjects of the few pictures hung should be of general interest and should be artistically chosen.

TO GET RID OF ANTS

So often this time of the year ants will infest our pantry or refrigerator. Put a little sweetened water in a flat dish and stir into it a very little tartar emetic. Place where ants are troublesome.

THE CRYSTAL CLOSET

Yes, it is time to get at the cut glass and crystal; housecleaning is upon us. Use a little borax and very little soap in the wash water and a little blueing in the rinsing water. The glass will fairly radiate.

FOR A CHANGE

If you have no maple syrup on hand for the morning pancakes, don't despair, use preserves, honey, or even powdered sugar, and the family will relish them just the same.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Many large hats are being worn, the large black Milans being the most popular.

Camp clothes for boys and girls are made of airplane cloth, a material that is as durable and serviceable as it is good looking.

Dolman sleeves were accentuated in the wrap of a blue cloth costume recently imported. Another feature of this design was the diagonal tiered skirt.

On the golf courses, the small trig little hat of fine fur felt very light but waterproof with a simple band of ribbon is being extensively worn.

Velvet, from all appearances, has become as much a spring and summer item as a winter one, in the last few seasons. One sees velvet frequently used for trimming on new silk coats.

It is thought that the large paste felt hat will be very generally accepted before very long. These new large pastel felts are very smart, using only grosgrain ribbon to match or in a darker shade for trimming.—Dry Goods Economist.

Shoes in the pastel shades now are being dyed special shades for customers. They can be made a perfect match for stockings or frocks in but a few hours.

Capes are to be the feature of the 1926 beaches. They are not only being worn with tailor-mades and woolen dresses, but are being designed of lace or light voile for wear over summer frocks.

Many stores are showing lace straw shoes in natural color posed over green rose or tan and trimmed with the colored leather. These have bags to match, the lace straw being used as a decorative insert.

The mushroom hat is now covering the heads of society. These examples of the milliner's art are of crinoline or Milan straw. Most of them have no back or a very much cut-away back.

The dress for the three-year-old daughter is very dainty when decorated with collar and cuffs of linen with pulled threads and little roses, such as used on the popular handkerchiefs, embroidered every here and there.

SPORT FROCKS

Sport frocks are taking a feminine turn this spring. Pleats, scallops, eyelet embroidery, handpainting and other decorative notes adorn the latest jumper frocks and ensembles. In some cases the jumper blouse is made entirely of eyelet or all-over embroidery, whereas the accompanying skirt will be of matching shade of finely pleated crepe de chine or georgette.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Pongee will launder better if ironed dry.

Dip the white lace in cold coffee to get a light tan shade.

A handful of salt thrown in with the soaking handkerchiefs will make the job of washing easier.

Clothes should be hung up to dry in as near the position in which they are worn as possible.

In pressing never put an iron on the right side of any goods except cotton. Always lay a cloth between the iron and the goods.

Dresses that are to be laundered will be much more easily ironed if the buttons are put on shanks and can be removed. The buttons will then always look new and will not be broken in washing.

THE HANDY CORK

A dry cork dipped in gasoline and rubbed on the window will remove spots which have defied ordinary cleaning. To clean knives which are not of rustless steel a cork wiped on a little good household soap will prove invaluable.

When plates of enamel or china have become burnt in the oven a cork dipped in damp salt will make the burn marks disappear. A cork dipped in paraffin also cleans the tiles on the hearth.

If a cork is repeatedly dipped in gasoline or gasoline and rubbed on the spots of linoleum where spots have appeared they will quickly be removed.

NEW USE FOR SATEEN

Sateen, in tiny designs resembling those of English prints, is used not only for children's frocks but for interior decorating purposes. A dressing table draped with pink and green sateen, which also appears in the short curtains, is charming in its old-time primness.

THOSE WHITE STAINS

Stubborn white stains on polished wood, caused by hot dishes, may be removed by applying to the spots a feather dipped in sweet spirits of niter; but this must be used sparingly and the place must be rubbed well directly after with a cloth dipped in sweet oil. When the stain is completely removed, polish well with beeswax and turpentine.

OLD CLOTHES

Many women use old stockings for dusting purposes; and what woman, at house cleaning time, does not rejoice in a discarded suit of friend hubby's "undies" for her paint cleaning and furniture polishing? A drawer or bag should be in every household to hold these treasured rags.

REMOVES MUD STAINS

A simple and excellent way to remove dirty marks from a raincoat is to cut a raw potato in slices and rub it well on the marks. It will also remove mudstains from dress skirts, children's coats and men's trousers.

CONCERNING WOMEN

More than 250 women are qualified to practice law in France.

The queen of Belgium is considered the best-dressed woman in Europe.

More than 10,000 women have taken out fishing licenses in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Cline G. Furst of Lock Haven, Pa., has been teaching Sunday school for the past 73 years.

Five mothers of soldiers who fought for the Union in the Civil war are still drawing pensions from the government.

Her highness, the maharani of Savi antvadi state, India, daughter of the world's seventh richest man, is an ardent feminist.

Belgian hand-made lace is manufactured chiefly in the Flanders provinces and is practically all made by women in the farm homes.

Of nearly 10,000 girl applicants for positions as operators in the British telephone service last year, only 1,500 were able to qualify.

USE JUST THE FISH

Pour off any oil found in the can of fish. Never use it in the fish dish. It is apt to impart a disagreeable flavor.

MORE PEP TO PEPPERS

The canned pimentoes give an added brightness and a more professional look and taste to a creamed or scalloped dish than do the plain green peppers.

RECIPES

Strawberry Delight: Fill parfait glasses two-thirds full of vanilla ice cream; add two tablespoons of fresh strawberries, crushed with sugar. Heap whipped cream sweetened and flavored with canilla above the fruit and decorate each portion with a large, washed, unhulled strawberry. The berries should be crushed the sugar just before adding to the ice cream.

Frosted Macaroons: Purchase the required number of fresh macaroons, from a first-class bake shop. Make a rule of boiled frosting and divide it into three parts; tint one part pink and another green and leave the third part white. The pink may be flavored with strawberry, the green with pistachio and the white with vanilla. Carefully dip the macaroons into the frosting one at a time and lay them on a waxed paper until the frosting is set. Then, if you are artistically inclined, decorate them with apple blossoms. It is very important that the macaroons be fresh made; then the dainty cakes will prove a novelty and very delicious.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Up To the Taxpayers

Mr. Editor: The same democratic ticket has been nominated that has run the affairs of the city for the past few years.

In that time they have spent all the money they said it was necessary to run the business of the city and outside of that have accumulated a floating indebtedness of $100,000 more or less. In the public workers department, according to the city treasurer's report with the annual appropriation of $140,066.60 and a special appropriation of $20,000 making $160,066.60, there is an overdraft of $6,417, making a total of $26,417 to be added to the floating debt this past year and a vote for them means the same bosses and a mayor that has not got stamina enough to stop it for another two years.

There is another vital question and that is the development of our water system. They have started in by turning down Mr. Corkery, one of the best informed men the city had on the water situation, and it is currently reported it was because they could not lead him around with a bull ring in his nose.

Taxpayers, can you stand it any longer? If you can vote for them and at the same time open your pocketbooks and pay the bills and let the floating indebtedness be increased at their own sweet will until we go broke with about a five per cent city and town tax at the present time and with the prospect of a four per cent city tax, how long will it be before you have to sell your little homes and move out?

Their ability for spending your money for results amounts to about the same as sticking your finger in a bucket of water and then looking for the hole.

Taxpayers, it is up to you to stop it or let it continue until we all go broke.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Albert B. Cummins, who is seeking renomination at the hands of the republican voters in today's primaries in Iowa, first entered the United States senate in 1908, following a term as governor of his state. He has three times been indorsed by the state and sent back to Washington, his present term expiring next March. During the days of the attempted transformation of the republican party by Mr Roosevelt Mr. Cummins was a progressive in purpose without being a progressive in party affiliations. In his present campaign he is standing as a tried and true Coolidge republican. Senator Cumming is a lawyer, who has given more than ordinary attention to problems of transportation and industrial management, possibly because he began his working career as a railroad employe. He is a native of Pennsylvania, and his education was gained at Waynesburg college, in that state, and at Cornell college, in Iowa.

The polls will be open in the four city voting districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., standard time, (8 a. m. to 8 p. m., daylight time) for the city election.

Stories That Recall Others

Why Brush 'Em?

Tommy was being reprimanded very severely because he persisted in neglecting to brush his teeth daily.

"Mother," he said disconsolately, "I don't see any need of brushing them so often. I spit through them all the time."

Poor Grandma

When Mary, age five, went to spend the day with her Aunt Emma she found her picking some young tender dandelion sprouts for a salad.

"What are you going to do with those weeds?" she asked.

"Feed them to the cat," was the teasing reply.

"I believe I'll pick some too," she said earnestly, "and feed 'em to grandma, and if they don't make her sick I'll eat some too."

ARRESTS FOLLOW CRASH INTO POLE AT YANTIC

Ernest Doyon, 292 Ash street, Willimantic, and Ramonio Paquin of the same city were arested near the Yantic crossing Sunday morning about 5 o'clock by Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town after the automobile owned and driven by Doyon had crashed into and splintered a telegraph pole near the Yantic Grain Co. store.

Doyon was accused of reckless driving and Paquin of intoxication. He was found in the back seat of the machine. A third man who was in the party was not detained.

A milkman who had driven past the place notified the constable of the accident, saying that two men were wandering around the machine in a rather aimless fashion and the third man was sitting in the car apparently unconscious that anything had happened.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH GAINS OVER WATERBURY

The men and boys of the Central Baptist church made a slight gain Sunday in their attendance contest with the First Baptist church of Waterbury. The attendance in the Norwich church was 197 an din the Waterbury church 120, which made the percentages for the whole contest as follows: Norwich 63.1; Waterbury 63.3. As the Norwich church was only one point ahead a week ago, this showed a small gain which the Central church will try to increase next Sunday when the contest ends.

OLD PITCHER HOUSE BURNED ON REAR OF GOLF CLUB PROPERTY

A story and a half frame house, known as the Pitcher house, on land owned by the Norwich Golf club, was destroyed by fire together with its contents early Sunday morning. It was about 12:30 that the house was found to be in flames. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dougherty and two children who occupied the house were asleep. They were hurriedly awakened and made their escape. A telephone call for help was sent into the local fire department but as the fire was outside the city limits and the Norwich-New London highway badly torn up local fire officials declined to leave the city and referred the call for help to the Yantic fire company.

The Yantic company responded but by the time they arrived on the scene the house was reduced to ruins. William M. Skelly, superintendent at the golf club, and a force of men hurried to the fire and succeeded in removing 100 gallons of gasoline from a nearby building owned by the club. They also drove the horses from the club barn nearby and directed their efforts to preventing the flames from spreading to the tool house and barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty lost all their personal belongings and furniture and found refuge with neighbors for the night. The burned house was on what is known as the Pitcher farm, which property was recently purchased by the golf club. It was located on the New London turnpike in the rear of the club house and was about 150 years old. Mr. Dougherty is employed as a foreman by Mr. Skelly at the club grounds.

It is thought that the fire was caused by an overheated stove.

Ice storms occurring the early part of the winter months necessitated much sanding by day and night gangs. Two heavy snow storms, one following the other occurred in February, keeping the men working day and night, some working 48 hours without rest.

GIRLS MAKE CHARGES AGAINST TWO MEN

Jerry Tempesta, 72, who lives in the rear of 26 Baltic street, and Carmene Vichiarino, 56, of 38 North street are under arrest at police headquarters on charges of rape following statements made by two 14 year old girls. Tempesta was caught in Mohegan park Saturday afternoon with one of the girls by Park Superintendent Krohn and was brought to police headquarters. The girl who was with him fled but was found later hiding under a pile of clothes in a house in the Baltic street neighborhood. She is detained in the woman's room at police headquarters.

From statements made by the girl the police were induced to look for Vichiarino and Officer Luke Riley was detailed to watch his living place, which is said to be little better than a shack. The man was arrested when he returned there Sunday. It is understood that the girls were lured by gifts of money from the men and that Vichiarino was in the habit of taking them to his shack.

This offer was on an option for 30 days, but during the 30 day period Nelson sold the property himself, according to the papers, which stated that the plaintiff had two customers ready, willing and able to pay.

UNVEILED HALE TABLET AT SOUTH COVENTRY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 6—A bronze tablet, the gift of Attorney George Dudley Seymour of New Haven was unveiled with due ceremonies at the First Congregational church in South Coventry Sunday, in honor of Richard Hale and his illustrious son, Nathan Hale, a native of Coventry. The date also marked the observance of the birthday of the patriot who was born in Coventry, June 6th, 1755.

The unveiling was conducted in conjunction with the morning worship at 10.45 o'clock. Rev. Charles G. Johnson, the pastor, officiated.

The unveiling prayer address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Sherrod Soule of Hartford who asked for the perpetuation of the spirit of christianity and patriotism which characterized Nathan Hale and other members of his family. In the course of the dedicatory address two South Coventry residents, Royal Rose and Mrs. Fannie Rose Bennett, having lineage in the Hale family through ancestry drew apart the drapes revealing the tablet and inscription.

The tablet, set on the west wall of the nave is of artistic design. It bears Glory of God and In Memory of Richard Hale, 1717-1802. Sometime a Deacon of the Church, Justice of the Peace, Member General assembly, An Active Patriot throughout the War of Independence; and of Captain Nathan Hale, his son, who was born in this town June 6th, 1755 and resigned his life a sacrifice to his country's liberty, at New York, September 22nd, 1776. Etas 22nd. "A son I set much by and he is gone."

On the east wall, directly opposite the tablet is a life-size bust portrait of Nathan Hale taken from the clay model of the statue erected in 1893 at Yale university by Bela Lyon Pratt the Norwich-Boston sculptor. This portrait was also a gift of Mr. Seymour and according to Louis A. Kingsbury, clerk of the church, will soon be superseded by a more authentic photograph, framed to correspond with that of the tablet, now being prepared by Mr. Seymour.

Rev. Mr. Soule told of the memorable work of a great-great-grandfather of Nathan Hale, Richard Hale, R. M., a minister in Old Salem, now Beverly, Mass. It was Rev. Mr. Hale who fought witchery and persecution resulting in the abolishment of both these ungodly practices.

Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean of South Coventry delivered the historical addresses.

After his graduation from Yale, Nathan Hale taught school for a few months in East Haddam, Conn., leaving in March 1774 to become the preceptor of the Union Grammar school in New London. In March 1775 he went with his regiment to New York as captain in the continental army. After careful deliberation and at the earnest dissuasion of his college associates and fellow captain, William Hull he decided to undertake the hateful service of a spy. In his own words, written to Captain Hull he did this not with the expectation of promotion or pecuniary reward but because he desired to be useful to his country and he believed it to be his duty. He was fully aware of the danger, difficulties and possible consequences. He had penetrated through the two main lines of the enemy at York when arrested as a spy.

The day after his arrest in September 1776 he was executed and his immortal words as he made the supreme sacrifice: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country," are known to young and old.

At the close of the historical address, First Selectman Dr. William L. Higgins after describing the affiliations of the family of his mother with the Hales, offered a resolution of gratitude to Attorney Seymour for his generous gifts to the church. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

CONTRACT FOR CEMENT FOR DAM IS AWARDED

The contract for cement for the dam at the new Deep River reservoir was awarded to the Edward Chappell Co. of this city by the board of water commissioners at a meeting held Saturday afternoon. The Chappell Co's. bid was 70 cents per bag and as about 25,000 bags will be required, the contract involves between $17,000 and $18,000.

Instead of having the contractor supply the cement, the water board decided to furnish the cement to the contractor in cement sheds built by him at the dam. This assured the purchase of the material in this city.

The following bids were submitted: Edward Chappell Co., 70c; Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co. 75 1-2c; Peck-McWilliams Co. 76 1-2c; Yantic Grain Co. 77c.

H. F. & A. J. Dawley submitted a bid of 72 1-4c a bag in the cars at Fitchville, but the other figures are for the cement in the sheds on the dam.

The polls will be open in the four city voting districts today from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., standard time, (8 a. m. to 8 p. m., daylight time) for the city election.

CHOOSE HUSKS OF SWINE FOR THE BREAD OF ANGELS

The rows of penitents at the sanctuary railing for communion at the 8 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, after the week end confessions, numbered enough for an ordinary congregation; but the priests of the parish were not satisfied and Rev. John J. Reilly condemned the indifferent, careless Catholics who are only half living when lukewarm in appreciation of the mercy and favors of God. It was the Sunday within the octave of the feast of Corpus Christi, the preacher taking his text from the gospel for that day, John 6. 56-59, "My flesh is meat indeed and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood abideth in me and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, the same also shall live by me. This is the bread that came down from Heaven. Not as your fathers did eat manna and are dead, He that eateth this bread shall live forever."

His theme was the Living Bread which the authoritative successors of Christ have been commissioned to bless and to administer to the people, summarizing the belief of Catholics in the Eucharist of their altar as the banquet which Christ provides to nourish their souls. The text sets forth unmistakably the condition for salvation: "Unless ye eat of this flesh, ye shall have no life in you." The great banquet is prepared for all, sinners and saints alike, the old as they near the end of their earthly pilgrimage, the young in their purity. Obstacles to its reception may be some secret sin, a cancer eating into the soul, lukewarmness, human respect which makes a man cowardly, apologetic, lacking in courage. By contrast with the last weakness the preacher cited the scholarly Paschal, in his confident faith, Napoleon, declaring his happiest day the hour of his first communion, the great St. Paul, with his ardent, "Not I, but Christ!" The large congregation was urged to new fervor in approaching the holy table, not feeding their souls on the husks of swine when a beneficent Creator proffers them the bread of angels; to put away all pride and human respect, seeking rather that childlike confidence which is the mark of all truly great souls.

Father Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin in giving holy communion. At the offertory, Organist Henry J. LaFontaine directed the Junior Choir in singing the St. Therese hymn which the children love, "Oh, Little Flower," impressing the beauty of devotion, innocence and purity.

J. B. MARTIN TEAM LOSES 15-INNING GAME TO CROMPTON-KNOWLES CLUB

Battling for 15 innings the J. B. Martin team lost a 5 to 4 decision to the Crompton-Knowles team of Worcester on Saturday afternoon at the Martin field diamond in the annual classic between these two clubs. On Sunday the Velvetmen took an easy 9 to 1 victory from the Moosup Town team.

Saturday's game was one of the few extra inning games played by the Velvetmen in a number of years and was a pitching battle between Tunney, former Holy Cross hurler and Lemieux of the Velvetmen. Both teams played spectacular ball in the field and many fine catches in the outfield contributed to the brilliance of the play. One of the features was the one hand stab of Brown for Crompton when he raced into deep left to pull down a long drive by Eddie Joubert that was labeled for a home run.

Tunney turned in a fine game for the Worcester team fanning 13 of the Velvetmen and being very stingy with his hits when men were on bases. Lemieux pitched great ball and gave the loommakers a good run for the honors. The Velvetmen took the lead in the first inning when they scored one run. Crompton evened the count in their half of the third and went into the lead in the fourth by scoring another run. The Velvetmen again tied the score in the sixth only to have Worcester take it away from them in the seventh. In the last half of the eighth the Velvetmen pushed another counter across which evened the count at three all and it remained so until the 15th inning. In this frame two errors at a critical time followed by a double by Nawn gave Worcester twe runs and the game. The best the Velvetmen could do in their rally in this inning was to score one run.

The Worcester team accompanied by about 50 fans, were the guests of the J. B. Martin Co. at a dinner served in the plant rest room by the young women employes of the company. The menu included roast chicken and all that goes with it.

Sunday's game was a one-sided affair with Pepin holding the Moosup team at all stages of the game while his teammates bunched hits for nine runs to clinch the game. Jimmy Murphy's hitting featured the contest.

YALE CREWS ARRIVE AT GALES FERRY TO TRAIN FOR HARVARD REGRATTA

GALES FERRY, June 6.—(AP)—Anticipating three weeks of intensive training for the annual race with the Harvard crews on the Thames river, June 25th, about 60 members of the Yale crew squad and staff, arrived at their quarters here today. Most of the varsity men made the trip from New Haven by automobile, while the rest of the squad came down in the baggage cars with the shells and equipmen. Coach Ed Leader is not expected until tomorrow and Coaches Murphy of the freshman, and Shaw of the combination crews were in charge.

Due to poor weather, the Yale coaching launches were delayed and will probably not arrive at the quarters until late tomorrow. The baggage cars containing equipment were unloaded by the freshman squad under the direction of Frank Holmes, veteran boatman, who has had charge of Yale shells for the past 15 years.

Several yachts owned by Payne Whitney, captain of the Yale crew of 1923 and for several years a member of the rowing committee, E. F. Hutton and General William W. Skiddy, have been placed at the disposal of the crew during their training period.

Final examinations for the undergraduates will commence tomorrow under the supervision of Professor J. E. McDonough, of the Sheffield Scientific school. Examinations will continue throughout the week and practice hours will be arranged not to interfere with them.

Chef McNally, of the "Y" club in New Haven, where all university athletic teams have their training tables, will be in charge of the cuisene as in former years. The first workout is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Change in Race Time.

The annual Yale-Harvard boat race will be rowed upstream at 6 p. m. standard time on the afternoon of June 25, it was announced Saturday by Chairman F. Valentine Chappell of the Yale-Harvard regatta committee. This is one-half-hour earlier than was originally agreed to by the rowing authorities of the rival universities and is at the suggestion of Referee William Meikleham, veteran Columbia oarsman, who will officiate this year as usual.

Another change announced by Chairman Chappell was that the freshman race, scheduled for 9.45 o'clock standard time, will be rowed at that hour, but down stream over the upper two miles of the course, finishing at the Submarine Base. Originally it had been agreed to row the yearling event over the two middle miles of the course.

YANKS BEAT INDIANS IN ABBREVIATED GAME

CLEVELAND, June 6.—(AP) — New York evened up the series with Cleveland today, winning 6 to 5 in seven innings, the game being stopped by rain and darkness.

New York drove Smith from the box in the second inning but Karr proved an effective relief pitcher.

Cleveland hit Hoyt rather freely and he was taken out in the seventh with the tying run on second base. He gave way to Braxton, a left hander, and Speaker sent Uhle in to bat for himself, it being the first time in his major league career that a pinch hitter has been used for Speaker.

Uhle flied out and the game was called.

Ruth walked the first three times up and grounded to first the only time the pitcher would let him hit. Score:

KINSEY PLAYS BRILLIANT TENNIS IN HARD COURT PLAY

PARIS, June 6.—(AP)—In the international hard court tennis tournament today Howard Kinsey at his best took the measure of Count Salm Von Hoogstraeten. Salm, playing really fast tennis, managed to capture one game in the first set and four in the third, but he lost the second to love, and never was the Austrian star in the ascendancy. The score was 6-1, 6-0, 6-4.

Kinsey's victory started the day well for he American entrants, for Vincent Richards followed it with the easiest kind of a win over the Italian internationalist. Count Balbi 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, and Miss Mary K. Browne, paired wih Baron Von Kehrling, found Mme. Speranza Wyns and Augustin not difficult to defeat at 6-3, 6-1.

The only upset in the day's play was the defeat of the French star, Jacques Brugnon, who ranks third in the French list, by the young player Landry, who last year was eliminated by Andre Gobert in the second round, and who has not yet been accorded by the high authorities any but a humble place in French tennis sun. Landry had to work hard in all of the five sets to do it, but it was a victory in which he showed superiority. The score was 6-4, 7-5, 4-6, 3-6, 6-4.

Susanne Lenglen and Didi Vlasto, to the huge delight of the crowd, took a love match from the Mlle De Borman, 6-0 6-0.

The Robson-Turnbull match was postponed until tomorrow by mutual consent, as Turnbull was indisposed.

FAMOUS ATHLETE HAS CROSSED THE FINISH LINE

CHICAGO, June 6.—(AP)—Tom Eck, international sports figure of a half century ago, has crossed the last finish line. The veteran athlete died last night, at the age of 68, after four months of illness.

Himself a remarkable athlete and for years a familiar figure of the American turf, to which he contributed the revolutionary bike-wheeled sulky, Eck achieved signal success in his later years as a trainer of track men. Since 1915 he had been track trainer at the University of Chicago.

Among the greatest of his pupils was Joie Ray, Chicago miler, who until the coming of Paavo Nurmi, dominated the amateur middle distance field. Another was Helen Filkey, holder of several records and one of the leading girl athletes of the nation.

Eck became a jockey in his early teens and by the time he was 30 had won recognition as a barbess horse driver. Turning to athletics, he was a noted cricket, lacrosse and ice racing star.

He took the first American bicycle team to Europe, brought the first continental team to this country and managed the first six-day bike grind at Madison Square Garden. He also was well known in boxing circles.

He was a native of Prince Albert, Ontario, where he was born in 1858.

ELKS' EXALTED RULER, PRO-VOLSTEAD, TO VISIT LODGE IN NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 6.—New London Elks are contemplating a time royal on the date of the visit of the supreme exalted ruler, later in the month. That time will be the dryest the lodge has ever known for the head of the order is out for the enforcement of the Volstead act in every particular. He is said to be a stickler for the compliance with the provisions of the ordinance on the score that it is a part of the fundamental law structure of the land and as such must be complied with. If the law is not what the people want they must have it changed, but as long as the law is on the statute books and he is at the head of a great fraternal order, he means to enforce the provisions of the statute.

Felix Mandler has sold to August Dittmar two tracts of land on the former Burrows homestead plat, Bayonet street extension.

John C. Geary and James R. May have sold to John T. and Ethel E. Morgan a parcel of land on Sander street.

Virginia Edgerton, of 22 Granite street; Frank Dranisky, 130 North Bank street; Karl and Roger Fox, Oakdale and Robert Kikender, 112 Smith street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

Jane D., widow of Morris W. Bacon, died Saturday morning at her home, 51 Granite street, death ending a lingering illness. She is survived by a sister, Miss Martha Carroll, of this city.

Mary Wall, 53, wife of John Wall, 219 Huntington street, died suddenly at the residence of Mrs. Johanna McAuliffe, 34 Brewer street, Friday evening, death resulting from heart disease, for which she had been under treatment a long time. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wall is survived by two brothers, Patrick and Michael Murphy, in Ireland, and a nephew, Charles Wall of this city.

Mrs. Wall, with several acquaintances was attending a social at the McAuliffe residence. Late in the evening Mrs. Wall suffered the heart attack and collapsed. A physician was summoned and arriving at the house prescribed for the patient, but she expired a short time later.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the operators' licenses of Edward Sheldon, 77 Howard street, and Edward Soltz, 311 Huntington street, returned to the owners. The licenses were recently suspended for violation of the motor vehicle law.

M. J. Nott, employed by the Maytag company, 233 Bank street, reported to the police Saturday that the night before a spare tire and rim was stolen from an automobile owned by the company while it was parked on Tilley street.

A. C. Gorton, an employe of the city of New London, has made complaint to the police because of the alleged acts of youths in stealing and destroying lanterns that are placed on an obstruction in the highway on Home street.

Antonio Mugevero, 21 Spring street, complained to the police Saturday night that while his automobile was parked at Ocean Beach a thief visited the car and stole a spare tire and rim.

John Butler, 27 Richards street, made complaint to the police early this morning that a man was prowling about his home. Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Edward Riordan were sent to the Butler residence and made a search of the premises, also of the neighborhood, but found no trace of the prowler. The prowler was described as having a light top coat and dark hat and was short of statue. He was last seen by Butler disappearing through Richards street, toward Granite street.

Thomas Whipple, of Groton, a member of a private church on Lee avenue made complaint to the police today that boys have been breaking windows in the church and requested that the youths be apprehended. Patrolman George Labone was assigned to the complaint, but was unable to learn the identity of the youths.

Frank Denison, 50, a laborer residing in Essex, was arrested this morning by Captain Charles A. Pinney and Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with violation of the motor vehicle law, driving a car while under the influence of liquor. He was unable to obtain a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court on Monday morning and was locked in a cell.

Catherupe Bruno, cobbler, who has been arrested many times for intoxication will be in the police court Monday morning charged with that offense. He was arrested on Federal street late Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer William Graham.

Ralph Lyman, 24, and William A. Christianburg, 23, sailors attached to the United States Coast Guard destroyer Jouett, local section base, No. 4, state pier, engaged in a street fight on Main street, near Church street, early this morning. They were arrested and locked up on charges of breach of th peace and intoxication. They were released several hours later, when they obtained a surety on their respective bonds of $100 for their appearance in the police court Monday morning. Lyman and Christianburg met in a restaurant shortly after 1 o'clock and became involved in a heated argument and within a short time went in the street and started to settle their argument with a fight. Patrolmen Frank Philopena and Edward Riordan interrupted the battle, but when they did so they were attacked by the fighters, but the attack was of short duration for the officers quickly subdued the battlers and lodged them in cells at the police station.

It is so long a time since any seizure of liquor was made along what was known at one time as "Rum Row" that most folks hereabouts have forgotten that there ever was any such place. Evidently Rum Row is a thing of the past. It is said that there is a vast quantity of liquor in storage at the local customs house, for the building is lighted all night and apparently a watchman is kept on duty there, but other than that there is no evidence that any liquor is in the building.

There were ten cases in the police court Saturday morning. The accused were charged with having violated the liquor law, or offended in such a way that liquor was a contributing influence in the case. Three sailors from the submarine base were at Ocean Beach Friday night and they became so demonstrative that they created a disturbance which warranted their arrest. They were disposed to get into a fight and they chose the police officers to engage with them. Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and George McCaskey were the officers they tackled, much to the regret of the sailors. They had been boozing, according to report, and were noisy and demonstrative. When the officers advised the sailors to cease their conduct and to board a trolley car and return to their station they resented that sort of advise and sought to engage in fisticuffs. They were accommodated, perhaps, unadvisedly, for the sailors and the police got into a knockout argument, according to report. The encounter is said to have been the liveliest witnessed at the beach in a long time. The sailors were arrested, were in the police court the following day and fined. Judge Lewis Crandall told them that the beach was a place supported by the city to some extent, and that the patrons of the beach must conform to law when they go there. Persons who are law-abiding are entitled to protection and the court will that they get it. He warned the sailors that if they came into the court again and were convicted, they would get a severer penalty than they received Saturday.

Edward Goddard appeared for the fifth time this year, charged with intoxication He had a story to tell the court about having work, but that did not "go" and he was fined and went to jail.

Joseph L. Wilson was fined $10 and costs for a breach of the peace. He has annoyed Mrs. Ida McMoran, of Brewer street whenever he became intoxicated and that has been frequently. He went to the McMoran home, late Friday, and created such a disturbance that he was arrested. He managed to raise the money to pay his fine Saturday and escaped serving three weeks in jail. There were a half dozen other drunks arraigned, but they were not disciplined as severely as were those noted.

Oscar Proffitt, colored, residing at 115 Green street, was arrested late Saturday afternoon charged by his wife with breach of the peace. He was arrested at his home by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Ernest Opperman, Proffitt, it is alleged, having struck his wife.

Mrs. Edward Flynn, 57 West Colt street, who disappeared from home last Wednesday, and who, her husband stated, had probably eloped with a Hebrew acquaintance and had gone to Springfield, Mass., returned home Saturday morning. When Mrs. Flynn was informed that her husband had requested the police to institute a search for her, Mrs. Flynn communicated by telephone and informed them of her return Following the return of Mrs. Flynn to her home it became known that she had planned her departure from home for she had requested a neighbor to care for her children while she went to a store to do an errand. She failed to return home until three days later.

Mrs. Fred Ploaidiet, 28 Brewer street, this morning informed the police that her husband had been missing from his home several days and requested that she be given aid in locating him. Mrs. Petzoldet stated that her husband was employed as a locomotive fireman by the Central Vermont railroad and that she had no idea as to his whereabouts. She said that Petzoldet left home last Thursday in his Buick coupe, the registration of which is N-7138.

An automobile driver from New York reported this afternoon to Patrolman Carlos Selesnisky that a manhole cover in front of the premises, 310 Huntington street was broken and created a serious danger condition. A barrel was placed over the danger spot by the officer and later an employe of the water and sewer department had a new cover placed upon the manhole.

Paul Brusso, 189 Mount Pleasant street, Norwich, reported to the police late this afternoon that while he was driving his automobile through Federal street, another autoist operated his car between a car that was parked alongside the curb and Brusso's car, which act compelled Brusso to drive his automobile into the gutter in order to avoid a collision. Brusso, who declared that the hub cap on two of the wheels were damaged by coming in contact with the curb, stated that he did not desire the arrest of the offending driver, whose car carried registration, N-7344, Connecticut.

John Duke and Arthur Deslauress, employes on a barge and Timothy Sullivan, Westerly, were arrested this evening charged with breach of the peace. All will comprise the grist of Monday's session of the police court.

Duke and Deslauress had been making purchases of foodstuffs for the crew of the barge and at the corner of North Bank street and Douglass street they encountered Sullivan, who immediately started to fight Deslauress. Duke mixed in the battle, he declared, for the purpose of bringing it to an end and while the three were all down in the street Patrolmen Frank Philopena and George Perkins appeared and placed Duke, Deslauress and Sullivan under arrest.

Palace Theater

His favorite position when directing a scene is perched on a stool beside the camera and it is this piece of furniture which bears silent witness to the intense strain under which he lives while working. During highly emotional scenes his nervous hands clutch and twist at the footrest, and its edges are worn and splintered and the rubber matting torn and twisted as a result.

Irene Rich's personality undergoes a radical and complete change from the neglected wife roles which she has been accustomed to playing in the past. Of great importance in making her the slender, seductive, sophisticated woman of the world, living by her wits, were the eight gorgeous gowns designed for Miss Rich by Sophie Wachner. They are of various types for morning, afternoon, formal, street, evening and negligee wear. Miss Wacher, originally from New York, is one of the most famous of motion picture costume designers.

The remainder of the cast of Lady Windermere's Fan, includes Ronald Colman by arrangement with Samuel Goldwyn), May MacAvoy, Bert Lytell, and Edward Martindel.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater, New London

The regular theater goer will recognize every one of the cast of Sunshine the new play by Henry C. White which will be seen at the Lyceum, New London for two nights beginning Monday June 7, prior to its presentation in New York.

In the cast of Sunshine are Percy Pollock, last seen in Lightnin' and in which he played the leading role, created by Frank Bacon; Eleanor Griffith remembered for her successes in Meet the Wife, Mercenary Mary, and Sitting Pretty; Bryon Beasley, who played in Night Hawk, last season's success at the Bijou theater, New York, and which was also written by the author of Sunshine; Peggy Allenby who was featured in The Sap in which Raymond Hitchcock was starred; Robert Craig who did able work in The Great Gatsby; Hobart Cavanaugh who played the leading role in The Show Off and before that was seen with Otto Kruger in The Nervous Wreck; and Georgia Harvey, who after eight years in Australia under the management of the great J. C. Williamson was brought back to play in Sunshine and who before her departure for the Antipodes was in Pink Lady, Very Good Eddie and A Pair of Sixes.

Sunshine is a comedy, based on the incidents happening to seven persons in a small town in Connecticut. The types are true to life, not burlesqued as so often happens in comedies and so clear cut that every resident or visitor to the smaller American communities will recognize in them some one of his acquaintance. There is said to be a laugh in every line, but the tears are not far from the surface, a combination that is always to be found in every great play.

The play is said to be superbly mounted and staged.

Breed Theater

Filled with the romance and drama of Russia after the fall of the Czar, The Volga Boatman, Cecil B. DeMille's second independent production for Producers Distributing Corporation release, strikes out into an hitherto unexplored vein of strongly entertaining photoplay background. The great song, The Volga Boatman served as the inspiration for the story which Konrad Bercovici wrote for the screen Lenore J. Coffee made the film adaptation.

The tale is laid in Russia at the time of the outbreak of strife between the Red Army and the White Army of the aristocrats. The dramatic interest centers in the contracts between Elinor Fair, a lovely aristocrat, and William Boyd, a sweat-stained, toil-laden boatman of the Volga. Theodore Kosloff plays a striking dumb blacksmith, Victor Varconi, an imperious prince and Julia Faye, an exotic Tartar character. Robert Edeson is given one of his interesting character roles, as the last of a great line of Russian land owners.

The story starts on the Volga, before the revolution, and then swings into its stride when the overturning of the Czar makes the whole nation a seething caldron of upheaval. Servant becomes master, and master—servant. The highlight of the picture is a great ball of the aristocrats interrupted by the shells of the Reds. Later we see the aristocrats in their silks and satins forced into the harness formerly worn by the Volga boatmen.

The Volga Boatman which opened a four days engagement at the Breed theater last night is the most massive picture ever produced by Cecil B. DeMille.

Broadway Theater

Mobilization occurred in France August 1st. The declaration of war with Germany did not occur until two days afterwards. The incident of the boy crossing into the enemy's territory follows exactly the experience of a young officer in the French army, save that his hiding place was a cellar instead of an upper room. These bold visitations by the enemy on both sides have been of not uncommon occurrence. It is not amatter of extreme difficulty in quiet sectors to get into the enemy's trench and back areas. The great difficulty is in returning to one's own lines. It is a strange coincidence that the first scenes of the second act were taken in the village of Ham, which has so recently figured in the greatest struggles of the World war. At least two of the cameras that recorded some of the events in this picture have been destroyed by enemy shells. Scenes in the prologue, showing Mr. Griffith on the battlefield were taken by the official cinematographer of the British War office. Captions by the British War office. The scene of the camera set in the front line was taken just as three rifle grenades dropped 20 feet away.

The battery of guns was taken during the heaviest artillery bombardment ever known, just before the combined British and French push at Paschendaelle ridge. This picture was taken in the morning. The camera men and staff returned by St. Julien road in the afternoon in time to see this very battery put out of action by enemy shells 200 yards ago.

The scene of the ruins of the old home of the girl, shown during the climax in the last act has often been under fire from German guns.

The wall, against which the lovers lean in our story, is only a wall, and a similar one can be built in any studio, but parts of this wall were built when the legions of Caesar marched through Gaul, that the actual ruins of the girl's home were actually torn by shot and shell under the hand of the German invaders, that the stream seen in the play has often been crimson with the blood of France, that at least these backgrounds are actual and real monuments, reminding us of the greatest of the world's dramas.

Such are a few of the incidents and happenings in D. W. Griffiths photo-drama Hearts of the World now enchanting capacity crowds at the Broadway theater.

POETRY

The Perfect Vision

"Thy eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding."—Prov. 15: 3.

Blue violets in the fields of Spring
Toward skies above soft eyes upturning,
Song sparrows that 'mid bushes sing
Their hearts with tender bird-love burning.

All beauteous things one may discern,
Must visioned be through inward sight,
Beauty—the soul's most deep concern,
Violets of virtue—songs of right.

Made in God's image, man should see
As God his Heavenly Father sees,
Truth in clear aspects; facts that be;
Vision ne'er blurred, nor men as trees
Walking obscurely, but upright;
Nor warped, mere half-truths, at the best;
See as who said "Let their be light,"
Saw all things good, and so confessed.

What must God see in violets blue?
Something we've lost like Him to see?
The heavenly beauty of things true,
His lustrous glory in a tree,—
What Love finds in each human face,
The majesty of soul within,
Which we, his children, too might trace
Had not our eyes been blurred through sin.

Spoiled eyes have we—power lost He gave
To look with eyes Divine; His view,
His touch we need who came to save,
The Christ who healed the sightless Jew—
His finger touch by faith received,
His Spirit, freshening as the dew,
His promise, given in love, believed,
"Behold, I will make all things new."

—Rev. George G. Phipps.

Embryo

I feel a poem in my heart tonight,
A still thing growing—
As if the darkness to the outer light
A song were owing;
A something strangely vague, and sweet, and sad,
Fair, fragile, slender;
Not tearful, yet not daring to be glad,
And oh, so tender!

It may not reach the outer world at all,
Despite its growing;
Upon a poem-bud such cold winds fall
To blight its blowing.
But, oh, whatever may the thing betide,
Free life, or fetter,
My heart, just to have held it till it died,
Will be the better!

—Mary Ashley Townsend.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP) — The sharp upturn in stock prices this week, which carried the industrial average 2 1-2 points above last week's closing level and above the high point on the April recovery before it was checked by profit taking today, was the outstanding financial development of the week. While there was still considerable difference of opinion as to whether the advance represented anything more than a rally in a bar market, it unquestionably had a marked improvement, at least temporarily, on business and speculative sentiment. Bond trading was dull with little interest in new financing.

Judged by reports from various basic industries, the business situation continues spotty, but with production generally maintained at a high rate. Many bank clearings ran above those of the same month last year but the percentage of increase was smaller than that for some of the preceding months. Freight traffic, however, continues in record-breaking volume for this season of the year.

Call money rates softened when the June 1 payments were out of the way. Another sharp break in French government and the record-breaking note circulation featured the foreign exchange trading. The rate on Paris, however, held above the three cent level. Demand sterling ruled fairly steady, just above $4.86.

Commodity markets were mixed, with weather reports the dominating influence on price movements. Active wheat futures closed 3 3-8 to 3 3-4 cents a bushel net higher. Cotton fluctuated within relatively narrow and irregular limits, showing net recessions of 7 to 16 points. Coffee prices advanced, but sugar quotations lost ground.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

A Little Boy's Dream

The bed was long and the bed was wide, and high was its polished head,
But spite of its length and breadth and height 'twas still a little boy's bed:
But he said he would loan it to me, he would, but just for a night or so.
Or through the visit I'd make the two I knew in the long ago
When I they were as little as he is now; as he is, their little boy;
O, days and ways of the long ago when morns came in with joy
And days went out with a laugh of glee that came through the fading light!
The morns were good and the nights were good—why, always we said: "Good night!"
And I was visiting them that night; and when our good nights were said
I set my sails for the Land o' Dreams, I did, from the little boy's bed.

And that's how it happened, or I suppose that's how it happened to me.
The angels came with the bags of dreams from over the Dreamland Sea;
From 'way out over the Dreamland Sea, and white was the pearly gleam
Of their snowy wings, and by mistake, they left me a little boy's dream!
They did—I dreamed I was three years old, and my eyes they were glad and blue,
And my cheeks as round as a wee boy's are; my chin it was dimpled, too;
And I was wishing as small boys do, as hard as they ever can,
That I could gallop across the years and that I could be a man;
I did, I wanted to be a man, as hard as ever I could!
For being a boy was an irksome thing, and being a man seemed good.

And then I awoke and found I was the thing I had longed to be!
The years had whitened and thinned my hair and long had their will with me.
And I was old! And, O, I longed and reached for my dream again;
But night was gone and I was launched—ed again in the world of men;
But I hope all of my heart the boy, wherever he chanced to be,
Had the dream of mine that had gone astray—the dream that was meant for me;
I hope he dreamed he was old, so old he was nearing the end of joy,
And I hope he wished with a grieving wish that he was a little boy;
That he could go down the weary years to meadows where blossoms blow
Beside the paths of the little boys, in ways of the long ago.

And I hope he awoke with the tears undried on the cheeks he had dreamed were old,
And found that he was a little boy with all of life's joys untold.
I hope he did; it would be a joy to me if I knew that he Had somehiw captured the dream that came from out of Dreamland for me
As I caught the dream that was made for him; 'twere good for him just to know
How men dream dreams and long and long for the days of the long ago;
And if he captured an old man's dream, and woke up a little boy,
He will go his ways and will know more than he otherwise would of joy;
He will know that little boys grown old and out in the world of men
Are always wishing down in their hearts that they were but boys again.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Our eyesight is a very wonderful thing and our eyes are, in fact, very delicate cameras. When we say that we "see" an object, we believe that we really see the object itself. As a matter of fact we don't see it at all. What we see is the light reflected from the object. These lights, and density of the varying shades of what the object give us an impression of is the reason ject looks like. This that objects will often appear to be different to various people.

As light is absolutely necessary to the sight, it follows that the absence of light will prevent sight and the objects about us become totally invisible. If we are in a lighted room we can see everything in the room. Extinguish the light and we extinguish the sight. We can see nothing but blackness.

Without light our eyes would be useless to us. In addition to light, which we call "reflection" is also necessary for our sight. When we look into a mirror we see ourselves as "reflected" but when we look at a plain piece of glass we see right through it, as there is no reflection.

What happens when we look at an object is this. The light, reflected from the object, enters our eyes, and in turn is reflected to the delicate brain where the light is assembled again and we see in our brain the object we are looking at.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heap have returned to their home in Adams, Mass., after spending a few days with Mr. Heap's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heap and family of South Second avenue.

Victor H. Davis was the leader of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor meeting, held Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church.

Marthers-Newton

One of the prettiest home weddings of the season was solemnized Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newton of North A street when their daughter, Miss Sadie Newton became the bride of Charles Alfred Marthers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Charles Marthers of 93 Boswell avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, before a bank of palms and ferns. The double ring service was used. The ceremony was witnessed by about 40 relatives and close friends of the bridal couple.

The bridal party entered the living room, while the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" was played on the piano by Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis. The bride was charmingly gowned in a gown of hand embroidered white satin face crepe. She carried a shower bouquet of carnations and roses. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Newton. She wore orchid georgette with velvet trimmings and carried tea roses. The groom had for his best man his brother, Harry James Marthers.

After the ceremony there was a reception, following which a buffet luncheon was served. The groom's gift to his bride was a silk umbrella, and to his best man he presented a gold piece. The bride gave the groom white gold cufflinks and to her maid she presented a handbag. The bride received many gifts.

Later in the afternoon the happy couple left by automobile for a trip which will take them to points of interest on the Hudson river and to Niagara Falls. The bride's travelling costume was of blue crepe with hat to match.

The groom was born in Montville the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Marthers, and is in the employ of Joseph Hall & Sons. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newton and has always resided in Taftville. She has been active in various branches of young peoples' work in Taftville Congregational church. Both the bride and groom are popular and have the wishes of their many friends for a prosperous and happy married life. Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Marthers will reside in Taftville.

ANNIVERSARY SERMON FOR FIVE YEARS IN CENTRAL BAPTIST PASTORATE

Sunday at the morning service at the Central Baptist church, where there was a congregation that filled the main floor of the auditorium, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., whose fifth year in the pastorate of the church has just closed delivered his anniversary sermon upon the theme, "These Five Years (1921-1926).

Before the sermon, Frank L. Arnold spoke in an interesting way of the annual meeting of the Northern Baptist convention which he recently attended in Washington, D. C. for a week.

Anniversary Sermon

Speaking from the text I Samuel 7:12;Then Samuel took a stone and set it between Mizpah and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying hitherto hath Jehovah helped us, Dr. Pitt said:

When a memorial is placed today it is generally in some spot that is considered peculiarly significant. The same instinct for the appropriate place is evident in Samuels day. He places this memorial atone where 20 years before Israel suffered defeat the hands of the Philistines. They had repented of the sin which caused that defeat and had been forgiven. God now sealed that pardon by giving them a glorious victory where they had formerly suffered this defeat. So Samuel sets up this memorial stone where 20 years before Israel suffered defeat at the hands reminding them of their helplessness apart from God and that through Him they were more than conquerors. This stone was intended to be a constant reminder of their dependence upon God. In case of their apostasy it would be a witness against them.

It is fitting that on this fifth anniversary of the present pastorate we stop and set up our memorial to God in gratitude for these five happy hours. On the last Sunday of the five years when it was my privilege to speak to you, I reminded you of the way we had come in our thought of God during these years, our thought of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Today we are to think of some of the accomplishments of these years resulting from our trust in God, the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Some Philistines to Overcome

Samuel had one advantage over the present speaker when he set up the memorial stone for he knew and all his people knew who were the Philistines over whom they had obtained the victory. I am not free to name some of the Philistines of the last five years because nothing would be gained and probably much lost by the naming of them. Those most familiar with the things to which I refer will be the most ready to give God thanks that we have come through all these a united and loyal brotherhood.

In addition to these unnamed experiences there are at least two or three that can be named on this anniversary occasion. The new pastor found himself handicapped by a church that had been over-stimulated in its pledging to the New Work Movement. He found himself between a denomination that was expecting pledges paid in full and a people, some of whom were resentful at the undue pressure exerted to secure some of these pledges. It was the new pastor's task to try to be fair to both. The total returns on those pledges and the way in which some of them have been paid even after the expiration of the New World Movement period have been most gratifying.

Again, the new pastorate was handicapped by an accumulated indebtedness for the local work amounting to several thousand dollars. All who are familiar with the life of this church know that throughout the present pastorate we have been paying off at the rate of $1,000 a year or more an indebtedness that was incurred before the pastorate began. This present year we have already paid off $1,500 on that indebtedness. Consider how much more might have been accomplished had we had this money for advance work. This should be constantly kept in mind by any who fear that we cannot provide for the extra expense of the parish house after we devote it all to church work. We could more than provide for it this present year if it were not for the old indebtedness which, please God, we shall soon be done with.

Let this suffice for the Philistines of indebtedness and inflated pledges to the New World Movement. The new pastor found himself still more handicapped by his own physical condition. Had he known when he accepted the call to this church of the serious operation just ahead of him, I presume he would have declined the call. As it turned out he left the hospital in San Francisco only two weeks before starting for this new field of labor. I presume that during the early months of the pastorate the leaders of the church were more concerned about the pastor's health than he was about the New World Movement pledges and the local indebtedness combined. The solicitude and consideration of our leaders during those early days will never be forgotten. An extended vacation was granted. When this vacation was nearly ended, I remember so well the chairman of the board of managers phoning to Woodstock urging me to remain away still longer. While I could not see my way clear to do this, I appreciated the thoughtfulness of those who sugested it and urged it.

The Philistine of physical handicap has been kept under during these years. We wonder how many pastors in Connecticut have a better record for attendance at public appointments during the last five years. Not one absence has been recorded except last summer following some serious dental work.

These have been years of hot discussion in the Protestant churches and in our own denomination in particular. We have all shades of opinion in our church from the very conservative to the liberal. It is to the credit of both church and minister that we have passed through these troubled years as peacefully as we have.

Surely in the light of all this it is fitting that pastor and people on this fifth anniversary raise their Ebenezer gladly acknowledging, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Points of Progress

Let us turn now to the more positive side of the story. The record of these years is known to most of you but for the sake of the new comers permit me to review it very briefly. The first two years were largely devoted to getting acquainted with the church and its constituency. It takes longer to make these personal contacts than most people realize. Things began to happen just before the second annual meeting when new hymnals were presented to the church. At the second annual meeting the gift of $15,000 for the Gale Memorial Organ and the Carrol fund of $5,000, the income of which was to be used for the social life of the church school. In connection with the third anniversary the church car was made a certainty with all that it has meant for parish work.

It was during this same year that the prize of $100 was offered for the best essay outlining a feasible program for our church up to the time of its centennial in 1940. At about the same time occurred the first campaign of visitation evangelism under the leadership of Dr. Kernahan, with a great ingathering of new members both by letter and baptism. This was followed by Professor Honline's popular lectures on religious education. These were given in our church and the audiences filled the main floor week after week. Those who participated in the essay contest had all this experience to draw upon as they sought to outline a program for the coming years. In my judgment the future historian of this church will date a new period in the life of the church from the essay contest. We have already reaped a rich harvest therefrom. Still greater harvests are confidently anticipated in the coming years.

Religious Education

One almost immediate result of the essay contest was the creation of a board of religious education by the church. This board was charged with finding enlarged physical equipment for our church school. Architect Merrill of our Home Mission society was invited by them to make a study of our problem and after careful survey he recommended the purchase of the Gilbert property. That property is now in our possession and the next great forward step, we trust, will be the dedication of that entire building to the cause of religious education. The committee created at the last annual meeting to study the contemplated changes have approved the architect's plans for the parish house and have sent them on to the board of managers for such action as they may see fit in presenting them to the church.

Another suggestion adopted from our essays had reference to the magnifying of the deacons' work. Our success this year has been largely due to this suggestion. The deacons have given one evening a month to conference especially on how to build up the fellowship life of the church.

The Roll Call

At the September meeting they planned a roll-call for the mid-week meeting, lasting for six weeks, calling about 100 names a night. The deacons agreed to see about twenty-five of each hundred need special watch care. The remaining seventy-five were given to other members of the church who informed them when their names would be called. The response surpassed all expectations. These meetings grew until we had over one hundred and sixty in attendance.

Flowers were provided by various church groups and after the meeting were sent to the sick and shut-ins whose names were called that evening. Thus we greatly strengthened the fellowship life of the absent as well as of those present.

Some people make sport of experts and say that an expert is just an ordinary man away from home. We have used experts freely during these years and with good results. Another expert whose services we have not forgotten was Dr. F. A. Agar of New York. Before he came we had begun to experiment with a unified budget but he encouraged us to go all the way with it. True to New England tradition we preferred to take one step at a time. That year we included the church school as well as the young people in the budget and this year we have included the Woman's League and benevolence also. Those who have most to do with the finances of the church say that they never saw money flow into the treasury of this church as it has under the unified plan.

Reference to the Woman's league reminds us of the complete reorganization of our women's work until today we have one of the best organized and conducted woman's societies in all the state.

In the Last Year

There are several phases of this last year's work that are full of encouragement. The fellowship life growing out of the roll-call has already been mentioned. Next to that I would place the Sunday evening services since the first of the year. Much more attention has been given to the evening service and with gratifying results. We have had special musical features which have greatly increased the audiences and enriched the services. It is the pastor's conviction growing out of this year's experience that still more ought to be made of the Sunday evening service during the coming year. He wonders if the time is ripe for the men of the church to challenge the pastor somewhat after this manner. "Pastor, in the interest of a larger ministry to the community on Sunday evening during the coming year, we will release you from the leadership of the men's class except on the Sundays when you are not preaching in the evening. Moreover, we promise you that the class will be kept up to its highest average during this period."

This reference to the men leads naturally to the laymen's movement in the interest of attendance at the morning worship. This has resulted in pre-Easter audiences up to the present time. It has brought the climax of our church year where it ought to come at Pentecost rather than at Easter. We shall not soon forget the baptismal service we had at Pentecost or that our audiences since Easter have averaged as many males as females. When I told this to "Grandma" Davies before going to Washington she brightened up and said, "That is the best news you ever brought me."

With the Young People

This last year has in many ways been the best in work for our boys and girls and young people. The Tuesday and Friday Week-day schools have prospered throughout the year. The two groups of boys' and girls' clubs as well as the young people's society have all had a good year. The graduation exercises of the week-day school as well as the Central Fellowship club banquet testify to this. Young People's Sunday, Girls' Sunday, the Mother and Daughter banquet have all made a fitting climax to a great year.

Lack of time forbids more than a mention of the most important of all our organizations, viz. the church school. When the parish house is completed we shall have one of the best equipped church school buildings in Connecticut. A goodly number of our workers are securing still better training in the community training school. They realize that consecrated and trained leadership are even more important than physical equipment. It is because of such leadership that our school has rendered such a fine ministry in the past. With a modern church school building and this added training even finer service is confidently anticipated in the future.

Membership and Finances

The following figures regarding the membership and finances tell the story of these years as nearly as cold figures can tell such a story of faiths and works.

New members received during the five years 295, dismissed, removed or deceased 68, leaving 37 per cent. of present membership or 227 received during the present pastorate.

Received for current expenses during five years $69,897.42, received for benevolence $58,459.16, a total of $128,456.58, trust funds received, about $38,125.00, church organ $15,000.00, church car (part not included in the budget) $1,000.00, trust funds expected during 1926 $10,000.00, Sunday school (up to January 1, 1925) $4,173.42, woman's league $3,740.99, vineyard workers $730.00, Sr. B. Y. P. U. $290.00, benevolent union $99.00, progressive missionary club (exclusive of amount reported in benevolence total above) $758.57, making a total of $202,373.56.

The Gilbert property has been purchased and paid for but the church is still in debt to amount of $17,000.

As one meditates on this record he is moved to declare, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

I desire as pastor on this fifth anniversary to express my gratitude to God for His goodness to us as a church throughout these years. I also desire to express my hearty appreciation to all the people who have helped to make the record of these years possible. I know of no more loyal and devoted people in Connecticut. When you extended a call to a man in California five years ago you did it on faith. When he accepted that call he did so on faith. It is my conviction at the close of five years that God's hand was in it all. The experience of each passing year but deepens that impression. I believe that God brought us together in the beginning and that He has blessed our united efforts for His Church and Kingdom.

May we be kept together and blessed by Him until such time as He has other plans for both Church and Pastor. Let us then in glad gratitude for His help in the past consecrate ourselves anew to the doing of His will, and serving our generation by the will of God.

MACHINE JUMPED BANK TO HIT TELEGRAPH POLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 6.—A new Star sedan, which had been run less than 300 miles, owned and operated by Ben Bagaciuk of North Franklin was wrecked in a collision with a Hudson coach operated by Leo Imhof of Scotland at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon on the concrete stretch about a half mile north of the Lebanon road junction to the Willimantic-Norwich highway. The Star car went down the three foot embankment narrowly missing the end of the state fence and struck a telegraph pole, knocking this partly over and wrecking the front of the car. According to the information available Bagaciuk was about to pass the Imhof machine when he was crowded by a car coming from the opposite direction. BROOKHART IS LEADING IN THE IOWA PRIMARY

Unseated by Republican Senate, Brookhart is Seeking Vindication by Opposing Senator Cummins, "Regular" Republican, For the Senatorial Nomination—In Returns From 736 Precincts Out of 2,447 Brookhart Was Leading Cummins by 66,281 Votes to 45,534.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 7.—(AP)—Colonel Smith W. Brookhart had a lead of 20,747 votes over Senator Albert B. Cummins in the republican senatorial contest when 736 precincts out of 2,447 in the state had reported late tonight. The vote: Brookhart 66,281; Cummins 45,534.

An unusual circumstance in a primary election, involving a fight for "vindication" by an unseated United States senator and a strong effort on the part of the republican organization to retain in office one of the party's outstanding "regulars," apparently produced a light vote.

Senator Albert B. Cummins, the "regular" with the conservative faction of the party behind him, and Colonel Smith W. Brookhart a republican stormer the past six years, were the chief contestants in the republican primary.

At Cummins' headquarters it was stated the senator's organization had been active in all precincts with satisfactory results. The Brookhart vote was expected to come largely from the farms and industrial centers and this might be late. The favorable weather cheered Brookhart workers.

HUDSON RIVER DAY LINE PIER, NEW YORK, AFIRE

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Fire believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion of oil soaked debris floating down the Manhattan shore of the North river at 125th street set fire to the pier of the Hudson River Day Line today, caused a series of man hole explosions which loosed scores of persons and disrupted traffic and threatened to destroy the Chauncey M. Depew, a Day Line excursion boat.

The fire started close to the pier and almost immediately the structure was a mass of flames. Explosions followed in man holes all the way back to Broadway, almost half a mile off. Trucks and automobiles were overturned, home-going crowds stampeded and trampled under foot and panic reigned as ambulances, fire apparatus, and the cars of police rescue and emergency crews sought to reach the pier.

The Cauncey M. Pepew was docked at the pier when the fire began but was towed to safety in mid-stream before the flames had spread to it. Fire boats swarmed as near the pier as possible and streams of water were turned on the fire from both land and river, but without apparent effect.

The river liner was saved by such a narrow margin that when it was towed to safety one side of its pilots house had been scorched almost black.

The fact that the tide was high proved a serious handicap to the fire fighters. It prevented men on the fire boats from directing their stream up under the pier where the flames were fiercest. Firemen from land companies floated a raft and towing a hose saddled their way out into the river in an effort to gain a position from which they could fight the fire to some effect.

On shore the commotion and congestion occasioned as thousands of Jersey commuters arrived to take the Fort Lee ferry which leaves from the same pier used by the Day Line. Persons from three stations co-operated with traffic policemen from all available posts in an attempt to keep lines open for fire apparatus and ambulances.

The most serious injury reported in early announcements from hospitals was that of Robert Meehan, 32, of 393 Edgecombe avenue, who was standing on a man hole cover when an explosion threw him many feet in the air. He landed on his head and suffered a fracture of the skull.

MRS. BERTHA K. LANDES BECOMES MAYOR OF SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., June 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Bertha K. Landes, who, in her campaign promised a clean and moral city, became mayor of Seattle today. Her first official act was to make Captain W. H. Searing police chief, and Searing then issued a general order reorganizing his department.

The mayor later appeared before the city council of which she was president until she resigned to become mayor, and outlined her reform program.

"I am not promising you 100 per cent law enforcement, nor a model town in 60 days," stated Mrs. Landes. "I am promising you that Chief Searing will make an honest and vigorous effort to enforce law in this city."

YOUTHFUL SLAYER NOEL SENT TO INSANE ASYLUM

NEWARK, N. J., June 7.—(AP)—Confinement in an insane asylum for life or until such time as he recovers from his ailment, was the fate decided upon today for Harrison W. Noel, youthful slayer and kidnapper, whose death sentence was reversed by the court of errors and appeals. The decision was reached at a conference between Prosecutors Bigelow and Barnitt of Passaic.

Noel was sentenced to die for the slaying of Raymond Pierce, Negro taxicab driver, last September, in connection with the kidnapping and killing of six-year-old Mary Daly. Pierce was murdered in Essex county and the Daly girl in Passaic county.

His conviction was reversed on the grounds of insanity.

TO HASTEN TRIAL OF YOUTHFUL NEGRO BANDITS

HARTFORD, June 7.—(AP)—The cases against five Negro youths accused of a series of attacks and robberies in Wethersfield which culminated in a hold-up of state police on the Berlin turnpike the night of May 28, will be taken to the present term of the Hartford county superior court on bench warrants according to a statement made today by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

DIED OF HEART DISEASE AT WETHERSFIED STATE PRISON

HARTFORD, June 7.—(AP)—Joseph Carella, 24, died at the hospital at the state prison in Wethersfield tonight of heart disease. He had been ill for some time, prison officials said. Carella was sentenced to from three to five years in prison in the New Haven county superior court on April 19, 1926 after he had been found guilty of assault with criminal intent.

SPAIN AND BRAZIL NOT OBEDIENT TO THE L. OF N.

GENEVA, June 7.—(AP)—Internal strife continues to threaten the existence of the league of nations. Both Spain and Brazil today cast an affront on the prestige of the general organization, in the opinion of a majority of the delegates, Spain by sending a boyish secretary of legation to side beside statesmen like Chamberlain, Briand and Benes on the council, and Brazil by refusing to send anybody to the session.

League leaders were much wrought up tonight, and there is no attempt to conceal the view that if Spain and Brazil hope to force the great powers into according them permanent seats in the council of the league, as the governments of Rio Janeiro and Madrid demand, their action is likely to have a reverse effect.

"It is better to jettison both of them," a diplomat from one leading European country said tonight, alluding to his belief that it would be preferable to lose Spain and Brazil as league members than risk losing Germany.

Germany is still insistent that only Germany shall have a permanent chair in the council this time, and European statesmen realize that if Spain and Brazil are to be placated and raised from the rank of temporary members to permanent members, the increased importance which Germany's accession is expected to bring to the league will have to be abandoned. This was therefore an unfavorable day for the league.

MOVE TO SAVE AMERICAN SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—International diplomacy was invoked today by Secretary Kellogg's orders, to save the life of Benuet J. Doty, youthful American soldier of fortune, serving in Syria with the French Foreign Legion as Gilbert Clare.

Secretary Kellogg responded promptly to the request made by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, for diplomatic intercession and instructions soon afterwards were on their way by cable to Ambassador Herrick, in Paris, for him to intercede in Doty's behalf. Meanwhile, Lemuel Doty, of Memphis, Tenn., the boy's father, appealed to French officials in New Orleans and Senator Tyson democrat, Tennessee, sought out French embassy officials here to solicit their help, and also called on Secretary Kellogg.

Cables from Damascus where Doty is held a prisoner by French military authorities on charges of desertion from and rebellion against the Legion, said his case still was under investigation. Advices said Doty deserted with five Legionnaires and when surrounded by French troops resisted arrest.

DEAD TAX COLLECTOR HAD SHORTAGE OF ABOUT $84,000

BOSTON, June 7.—(AP)—State auditors today reported a shortage of $73,-356.59 in the accounts of Robert L. Carter, former Leominster tax collector who committed suicide last January 11. The auditors also discovered $10,265.94 in outstanding uncollected taxes making a total shortage of almost $84,000, the largest in the history of the State Department of Corporations and Taxation.

The audit was begun on the day that Carter ended his life by drowning and had been in progress since. The examination covered the period from 1913 to 1925 inclusive, and in each of these years cash discrepancies ranging from $57 to $19,716.03 were revealed. The largest shortage was in 1921.

Edward H Fenton, state chief examiner in charge of the audit, expressed the opinion that the city could recover from two bond companies because the shortage in any year did not exceed $25,000.

PRESIDENT HINDENBURG OPPOSED TO PLEBISCITE

BERLIN, June 7.—(AP)—For the first time since he assumed office, President Von Hindenburg has publicely taken sides in a political issue by authorizing the publication of a personal letter in which he unequivocally denounces the impending plebiscite, fixed for June 20, on confiscation of ex-rulers' properties as "an attack on the constitutional foundations of the state and in violation of the fundamental laws of morals and justice."

The president's letter is addressed to Count Friedrich Von Loebell, monarchical leader and chairman of the campaign organization which elected Von Hindenburg. It came as a bolt out of the blue, and is frankly interpreted as indicating that President Von Hinderburg will refuse to authorize such confiscation in the event the plebiscite so ordains.

PREFERENCE FOR ALIENS WHO FOUGHT IN U. S. ARMY

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Aliens who fought in the American army during the World war and whose entry to this country was authorized in a bill recently enacted, would be given preferential rates on shipping board steamships for the journey under a measure introduced today by Representative Tilson, the republican house leader.

Five Persons Killed In Shooting Affray

In a Bungalow Near the Water Front in Houston, Tex.—Man Crazed by Jealousy.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 7.—(AP)—Five persons are dead, another is seriously wounded and a seventh is in a hospital with slight wounds as the outcome of a shooting affray in a bungalow near Houston's waterfront early today.

R. R. Tarter, 30, native of Kentucky and steward on the United States Shipping board Vesse Brush, apparently crazed by jealousy, shot Mrs. Edna Milam, 32, who lived in the house Johnny Domange, 29, sailor of Port Arthur, Texas who Tarter apparently believed was his rival for the affections of the woman; A. K. Latiolas, 21, of Houston, a chance inmate of the bungalo; Cora Robinson, negro maid, Bill Sonnier, 25, and Anderson Beckman, both sailors of Port Arthur. Three hours later Tarter shot and killed himself aboard his ship.

Mrs Milan, Domange and Latiolas died almost immediately. The negro maid who was shot in the thigh while she was running from the scene, died during the day. Sonnier's jugular vein was severed by a bullet but Beckman escaped with a bullet in the leg.

Tarter had known the woman for five years, the authorities learned. He recently returned to Houston after a long absence and found Domange and the woman apparently on every friendly terms. At a gathering at her home last night an argument ensued the nature of which has not been fully developed. At its climax Tarter whipped out a pistol and began firing.

Mrs. Milan was said to have a husband and three children in Galveston from whom she had separated.

REVUE "THE BUNK OF 1926" FOUND TO BE OBJECTIONABLE

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Found by one of four "play juries" which renrered verdicts today to be "objectionable as a whole to public decency," "The Bunk of 1926" a revue, will close immediately under an agreement between the Actors Equity association and the Managers' association, District Attorney Banton announced today.

A second jury found that "Great Temptations," was objectionable in part from the point of view of public morals and would have to be revised or taken off the stage.

Two other plays "Sex" and "Shanghai Gesture" were considered inoffensive by other play juries.

The play jury idea is about five years old, but has been little used. It was revived in the recent instance when the district attorney's office received complaints concerning the four plays. Juries for the play juries are selected from panels of citizens and their identities are not made known prior to their rendering a verdict. They visit the theatres without the knowledge of the management.

JUSTICE TAFT CONFINED TO HIS HOME BY ILLNESS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft is confined to his home here by illness which prevented him from presiding over the supreme court today at the closing of the present session.

Dr. Thomas A. Claytor, a heart specialist, who has attended the 68 year old chief justice and former president for some time, said Mr. Taft was not seriously ill. He added that unless there were unexpected developments, the chief justice would leave the last of this week or early next week for his summer home at Murray Bay, Canada.

LETTER THREAT TO KIDNAP THE DUCHESS OF YORK

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—The Daily Mirror understands that an anonymous letter has been received by the duchess of York, threatening to kidnap her when she goes to Sandwich shortly with her baby.

A similar letter threatening the king is said to have been received at the palace some days ago. Both letters were in illiterate handwriting and are believed to have been sent by an insane person.

The letter to the duchess, who is the king's daughter-in-law, was delivered at 17 Bruton street, the residence of her father, the earl of Strathmore, where the duchess is staying pending her departure for Sandwich. It was in this house that her baby was born April 21 last. While at Sandwich the duchess will stay in a house which Lady Astor has placed at her service.

Scotland Yard is making inquiries into the origin of the letters.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS FIRE LOSS AT GALESBURG, ILL.

GALESBURG, Ill., June 7.—(AP)—Fire broke out in the eastern section of Galesburg this afternoon, and fanned by a high wind, had within a short time swept away two foundries and seven residences. The flames soon neared the vicinity of the Burlington railroad depot and it became evident that the damage would amount to several hundred thousands of dollars.

The flames were apparently controlled late this afternoon. The houses on Cottage avenue where the fire jumped after destroying the mill and foundry, were scattered, making it possible to fight the flames more easily.

He rose from a humble position to a leader in the shipping industry of the Pacific coast and was associated with many interests in the state of California.

MILLIONAIRE SAVED FROM PAUPER'S BURIAL

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 7.—(AP)—Last moment identification today saved a millionaire from burial in a pauper's grave and ended a six months search for Albert J. Gleason, head of the chain of Drake Business schools. Police Inspector Underwood declared he was convinced Gleason was a suicide.

The body was being prepared for burial in Potter's field after lying unidentified in Higgins' morgue since Friday, when it was found floating in Hudson river. As it was being boxed a report that two water-soaked checks found on the corpse had dried sufficiently for the signature "A. J. Gleason" to be faintly discernible, was received from Police Lieutenant Mackie. William D. Spears, principal of the Drake school of law, was immediately notified and he made positive identification. Mr. Spears was intimately associated with Gleason for 17 years.

Gleason disappeared from his East Orange home last Thanksgiving day, after a break in his domestic affairs. A futile effort on the part of his wife, Mrs. Emma J. Gleason, to have him adjudged insane for the protection of his business interests and a suit for separate maintenance resulted in a property settlement between them. A jury found he was sane, but a dissenting opinion was given by a three-man lunacy commission appointed by chancery court. An appeal later taken was dismissed.

GENERAL LUDENDROF IS BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE

BERLIN, June 7.—(AP)—Frau Ludendorff, wife of General Erich Ludendorff, Germany's wartime quartermaster general and leader of the ultra nationalists, has brought suit for divorce. She gives as the ground for her action that the general's many political activities have caused him to neglect her.

The suit has been entered in the Munich courts and will be heard on Friday in camera, according to German custom.

Despite the official secrecy surrounding Frau Ludendorff's divorce suit, it is learned that she charges cruelty. General Ludendorff's activities as leader of the German Fascisti, her petition filed at Munich says, "made him extremely irritable and increasingly abusive, so as to make her life unbearable."

Frau Ludendorff is sick and receiving treatment at a sanitarium near Munich. General Ludendorff has refused to make a statement, saying: "It is no business of the press."

KOREANS PLOTTED TO BREAK FROM JAPAN

TOKYO, June 7.—(AP)—Dispatches to the Japanese language newspaper from Seoul say 300 Koreans who were plotting to obtain independence of Korea from Japan were arrested yesterday and today in efforts to frustrate any possible outbreak at the funeral June 10, of Prince Yi, deposed emperor of Koream.

Some apprehension is felt by Japanese authorities at Seoul and police and troops have been heavily reinforced.

In an effort to conciliate the Koreans, the Japanese government has ordered a state funeral for their old emperor, attended by high Japanese officials as a mark of respect

BOTTLE AND FISTS USED AT HOUSE COMMITTEE HEARING

Representative Rankin in Battle Against Commissioner Fenning of the District of Columbia and His Counsel, Frank J. Hogan of Washington—Spectators Became Excited and Rushed to the Doors—Rankin Was Acting as Prosecutor.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—A fight in which fists, ink bottles and a glass of water were used as weapons today threw a house committee hearing into an uproar. The combatants were Representative Rankin, democrat, Missouri, against Commissioner Frederick A. Fennig of the District of Columbia, and his counsel Frank J. Hogan, of Washington.

Spectators included members of the judiciary sub-committee which has been hearing evidence on impeachment charges, preferred against Fenning, by Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas in Blanton's absence today. Rankin was acting as prosecutor.

The Mississippi representative became angered at language addressed to him by Hogan and hurled an ink bottle at him. Hogan in turn threw a glass of water at Rankin. While the two were attempting to reach each other, Fenning made at Rankin with his fists.

Spectators, who nearly filled the room, became excited, some rushing for the doors. Chairs were upturned, and ink splashed on the plush carpet and committee papers. Chairman Graham, of the judiciary committee rushed from his adjoining private office and, with the aid of the sergeant-at-arms of the house and two capitol policemen, restored order.

When the confusion subsided, Mr. Graham ordered all spectators from the room and began an immediate inquiry into the row. Hogan called his attention to a bruise on his forehead, three versions being given of how he received it. One was that a crippled World war veteran struck him with a crutch. Another, that Rankin's aim with the ink bottle had been good. The third, that Hogan in dodging the bottle, had struck his head on a table.

Rankin explained that he, as prosecutor of charges brought against Fenning's administration as guardian of the affairs of insane war veterans, had understood Hogan to say that one of his statements was "unfounded and utterly false."

Hogan said these words were directed at the charge which had been made to the committee and not to Rankin's statement.

Rankin, however, contended Hogan looked directed at him while uttering the words.

Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, presiding over the sub-committee, asserted he considered Rankin had "treated this committee disgracefully," while Mr. Graham said that an attempt to redress wrongs by physical violence was "characteristic of barbarism."

Rankin apologized to the committee and said that if, as Hogan and committee members contended, Hogan's remarks did not refer to him personally, he also apologized to Hogan.

BILL FOR DEPORTATION OF CONVICTED ALIEN GUNMEN

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Immediate deportation of convicted alien gunmen and tightening of other provisions of the deportation law is provided in a bill passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Holaday, republican, Illinois was approved by a vote of 138 to 26. It provides for deportation of alien narcotic peddlers, as well as gunmen, and as sufficient funds become available, of prohibition law violators.

It was assailed by Representative La Guardia, progressive-socialist, New York, as a "protective tariff for native bootleggers," and by Representatives Sabath, of Illinois, and Dickstein, of New York, democrats, as failing to provide against the menace of gunmen except after conviction.

Mr. Sabath also assailed a provision for deportation of insane aliens on the contention that this clause could be too easily abused. This section, which enumerates the feeble minded, those with psychopathic inferiority and those found to have chronic alcoholism, he said, could be utilized to ban most members of congress if they were aliens.

The measure also provides for deportation of aliens who become public charges within seven years after entry, instead of five years as under the present law.

REV. VAN DYKE'S REASONS FOR CHANGE OF PASTORATE

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—A big city's demand for "religion with a jazz tempo" is responsible for the resignation of Rev. Tertius Van Dyke as pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian church to preach in the First Congregational church at Washington, Conn.

Rev. Van Dyke gave this explanation today of his acceptance of the country pastorate.

"The people of New York want religion with a jazz tempo," he said. "They have driven some preachers to shooting off fireworks and wearing red vests. A great deal of the preaching in New York is idiotically sensational and the clergy is trying too hard to get attention above the hubbub.

"If I were to announce some Sunday morning I was going to do a flying trapeze act the church would be crowded. Circus stuff does not make congregations religious and I do not think I am the right man to hold a job in the city."

In Washington, Rev. Van Dyke will preach in an ancient, white spired church, typical of New England, and a sharp contrast with the miniature Gothic cathedral he now occupies. He will remain at his present post until August 1, and take over the new pastorate September 1.

Referring to the change in denomination, he said that this was "nothing unusual," as "historically the Presbyterians and Congregationalists have interchanged preachers."

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, father of Rev. Tertius Van Dyke, widely known preacher, poet, author and diplomat, expressed satisfaction over his son's change. "I am glad he is going to church in Connecticut," he said. "He could not leave while storms threatened the Presbyterian church, but had to stand by the ship. But now the sky brightens with peace and common sense and he can go to Washington, an old New England parish, full of real Americans with a fine ancient church. My son will enjoy this."

LEAP FROM 25-FOOT TANK FATAL TO NEW HAVEN MAN

NEW HAVEN, June 7.— (AP) —A jump from the top of a 25-fout tank to escape fumes from a second nearby tank resulted in fatal injuries to Francesco Acamporo, 37, and less serious injuries to Carmen Moletino, 25, both of this city, at the plant of the New Haven Gas Light company here today. Three other men working on the tank fell upon their faces and were uninjured.

The men were re-filling a tank with charcoal to purify the ammonia, when fumes from a nearby tank began escaping. Acampora either jumped or fell from the top of the tank and died a few hours later from a fractured skull in the New Haven hospital Moletino, in his haste to climb down a ladder, fell part way, but upon treatment at the hospital was later discharged.

WARNING GIVEN AGAINST "BOOTLEG" THERMOMETERS

HARTFORD, June 7.—(AP)—A general warning against "bootleg" thermometers was issued to pharmacists, physicians, hospitals and the public today by the state department of health, which has begun investigation of a report that a large shipment of unregistered instruments has been sent into Connecticut from New York by way of the "underground" route.

These clinical thermometers provide a possible menace to health, says Commissioner Stanley H. Osborn, as they must be inaccurate or they would have been submitted for state testing and registration.

RESULT OF MEETING OF SUPERIOR COURT JUDGES

HARTFORD, June 7.—(AP)—As a result of a meeting of the judges of the superior court today in the conference room of the supreme court, it is understood that Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, as chairman of a committee of judges, will soon make a report on the findings of the judges in relation to the charges preferred against State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling of New Haven. The charges are that Mr. Alling was seen entering places where liquor was reputed to be sold and are preferred by a number of women of New Haven county.

Three state's attorneys were re-appointed at today's session, their appointments effective July 1, 1926. They were State's Attorneys Hugh M. Alcorn, of Hartford county, Howard C. Bradford for Windham county, and Walter Holcomb, for Litchfield county. Mr. Alcorn has been state's attorny of Hartford county since July 1, 1908.

There were no changes in the personnel of the clerks' offices throughout the state, those in office now having all been re-appointed. There were a few changes in other departments of the courts. In Windham county Oscar F. Atwood was named jury commissioner to succeed Charles G. Hyde deceased. Miss Nita S. Kellogg was appointed official stenographer of the Litchfield county superior court in succession to Charles F. Roberts, a practicing lawyer of New Haven, who said his professional engagements would prevent him from holding the position any longer.

Miss Nellie W. Annis, of Hartford was appointed official stenographer in Windham and Tolland counties. Benjamin Palmer was appointed messenger in New London county superior court to succeed Robert McBurney.

The judges named as members of the bar examining committee, Howard F. London, James E. Wheeler, William W. Gager, Judge John W. Banks and Frederick C. Taylor. Charles L. Torrey, of Putnam was named in succession to Justice George E. Hinman on the examining committee. Justice Hinman resigned when he became a member of the supreme court.

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED ON FIRST TRIP OF NEW LINE

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—Ill fortune and death rode with the intrepid mail carriers of the air who inaugurated the Chicago-St. Paul-Minneapolis air mail line today and tonight. One of the pilots was dead, his plane was a mass of wreckage, and another pilot who made a forced landing to escape possible death—but the mail was delivered.

Buffeted about in the clouds by a driving gale from the northwest, Elmer Partridge, Chicago pilot, flying a south-bound plane from the twin cities, fell to his death near St. Paul.

A few hours before one of the north-bound pilots had been forced to make a landing in Wisconsin to escape the fury of the lashing wind. His mail cargo was picked up by another plane from Chicago and carried to its destination.

The linking of the twin cities with Chicago by air mail placed them within 15 hours of New York by mail, but because of the heavy winds the planes from Chicago to the twin cities required more than twice the five hours allotted for the flight.

CARNIVAL RESOLUTION SEEMS TO SETTLE PROBLEM

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 7—Whether an entertainment is to remain in Willimantic for a week's stand or will have to pack up and move became the issue among city and police officials and interested citizens Monday. Last Thursday the manager went to Mayor John C. Tracy and asked his permission to bring his show here for this week. He represented it as an educational attraction combined with high class amusement features. He was sent to City Clerk James S. Donahue, Jr., who Saturday afternoon issued a license for the show to play here after being told that Mayor Tracy had sanctioned such permission. The show arrived in town Sunday and the little community of tents was erected Monday.

In the meantime, Acting Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady received information that some of the attractions at the show were of a gambling nature. The manager admitted this but was positive that the games were on the level and that there was full return for the money.

The hitch in the permit comes from a resolution adopted by the common council about four years ago, which prohibits carnivals from playing engagements in Willimantic. Mayor Tracy's attention was called to this resolution and after a conference with Chief Grady and City Clerk Donahue he announced that he would revoke the license. The manager is naturally much put out; claims it cost him $1,000 to move his show from New Haven to this city and it will cost him another $1,000 to move on to the next stand at Springfield, Mass. Asserting that a couple of $1,000 bills are not given away with every box of baking powder he hopes to establish his legal rights to remain in the city for the week. A study of the city charter seems to favor the show for it points out in Section 2 of the ordinance relating to licenses for public amusements that the common council alone has the power to revoke a license. The belief of the officials, however, is that the resolution already contained in the minutes of a city meeting against allowing a permit for carnivals in the city is legal; therefore it would not be necessary to hold a meeting of the common council to take action in the present case.

W. E. STORRS APPEALS FROM CITY COURT JUDGMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 7—William E. Storrs, 51, was charged with operating an automobile while his operator's license was suspended, by the state motor vehicle department, in police court Monday morning. He pleaded not guilty, but after Chief of Police Grady had read a communication from the state department showing that the license had been suspended from May 23, last until further notice the court adjudged the accused guilty. With a reprimand to Storrs, Judge Foss imposed a fine of $100 and costs, amounting to $107.15. Storrs gave notice of an appeal to the superior court and Eugene J. Dion furnished bonds of $300 for his release. Storrs claimed that he had not been notified of his suspension by the motor vehicle department until Thursday of last week. On the same day he and his wife had business in Worcester, Mass. They got someone to drive them there but could not get anyone to drive them back and he had to drive the car himself. Storrs was convicted for violation of the automobile laws May 8, last.

Mrs. Josephine Storrs, wife of the accused, was charged with intoxication. Chief Grady testified that the woman was very drunk. He displayed a bottle of liquor found in the car on the seat occupied by the woman. Mrs. Storrs said that she had had but one drink. She said that her stupid condition was caused from morphine prescribed by a local physician to relieve a pain in her side. Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria arrested the couple as they were driving into the city, Saturday afternoon. Original charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and without proper registration were consolidated into the one charge of driving under a suspended license against Storrs.

Mayor John C. Tracy was instituted a full-fledged "brave" of the Sioux tribe of Indians, by Chief Flying Hawk of the band of Indians connected with a circus which played here Monday. The ancient rites of conferring the honor on the chief executive were carried out in the common council chamber of the town buildign. Chief Flying Hawk and some dozen braves resplendent in tribal costume with their feather headdress made an artistic group as they gathered and sang an Indian song which they concluded with a war whoop. At the close of the pow-wow Mayor Tracy was pronounced honorary Chief of the Sioux, under the name of Chief Roon Eagle. Among the palefaces witnessing the ceremony were Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, City Clerk James S. Donahue, Jr., and Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte. Prominent redskins accompanying the band with Chief Flying Hawk were Sitting Bull, Chiefs Bluffing Bear, Eagle Trail, Iron Crow, Lone Heart, Run Chase to the Lodge, White Bear and Pretty Bird.

Paul Bartlewski, deacon and Rev. Charles M. Kelly, sub-deacon. The organ music was by Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance. As the body was borne into the church a quartet Miss L. Monica McKeon, Mrs. Henry Mathieu, William A. Costello and Arthur Roy, sang Nearer My God to Thee. Mrs. Mathieu sang Pie Jesu at the offertory and for a waiting hymn Mr. Roy rendered O Precious Love of Jesus. For a recession he sang Beautiful Land on High. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelly conducted the committal service. The bearers were Edward Fitzgerald, John M. Bransfield, John J. Sullivan, Timothy E. Day, Walter H. Woodhill and John F. Healy. Officers and members of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association attended the funeral.

A large audience attended the presentation of three one-act plays at St. Mary's hall Sunday night for the benefit of the camping fund of St. Mary's Choir boys. Theodore Rivard, Alfred Lambert and Miss Emma L'Heureux were the respective coaches of the plays, which were "The Prisoner." "Les Deux Pereux" and "Le Nom Bateme." Miss L'Heureux was also director of a beautiful tableau, "Mandana" which followed the plays. Music for the intermission concert was by fifteen members of the Euterpean orchestra under the direction of Miss Mary Rose Blanchette. Those who participated in the plays and tableau were: "The Prisoner." Theodore Rivard, Alfred Lambert, Armand Perreault, Roderick Beaulieu, George Sumner, Gerard St. Laurence; "Les Deux Pereux" Charles Martin, Hector Rivard, Eugene St. Laurence, Arthur Caisse, Ovide Bachand; "Le Non Bateme," Misses Louise Laramee, Blanche Caisse, Irene Gaudreau, Rita Bacon; "Mandana," Eileen Bachand, Louis Laramee, Claire Marrottee, Lorette Bachand, Claire Bacon and Therise Marcoux.

From the family home at 136 Jackson street the funeral of Miss Johannah Sullivan was held Monday morning. Requiem high mass was sung at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock by Rev. Paul Bartlewski. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ. For the processional Miss L. Monica McKean sang Abide With Me and she gave O Salutaris at the offertory. For a waiting hymn Farewell was sung. The bearers were George Adams, George Shook and Andrew Carey of this city and John Hussey of Baltic. The services were largely attended and there were beautiful floral pieces. At the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery Rev. Dennis F. Moran of South Coventry conducted the committal service. Killourey Bros. had charge of the arrangements.

CHILDREN LOOT DESKS IN RIVERSIDE SCHOOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 7—At the opening of the morning session on Monday the teachers in the several grades at Riverside grammar school discovered that every desk in the building had been ransacked.

Supt. F. H. P. Clement notified Officer Henry Veglard and they started investigation with the result that a small boy and girl brother and sister, 10 and 12 respectively, who belong to a family who have moved to town recently, admitted their guilt. These two children told of another small boy who was with them.

They mounted the fire escape, entering through a window in which they broke the glass.

At their home, behind a blind wall in the cellar, the stolen articles were found piled in a corner. These included 75 cents in money, a gold ring, a necklace, several fountain pens, ties worn by the teachers, erasers and other small desk articles. The school authorities are undecided what action may be taken as a corrective measure.

Some person from town can have a trip to the sesqui-centennial at Philadelphia as the guest of the Swarthmore Chautauqua association, but it would mean that the sale of tickets would have to go over the top. Dotted all over New England, as nowhere else in the whole United States, in cities, in villages, at cross roads, are businesses that are older than the memory of any living man. Businesses that despite the passing of their founders, that despite the style of modern methods, continue to thrive and prosper.

Often among these businesses competition has raised its head, flourished a while, then died, unable to stand the acid test of long periods of time, winning and holding trade.

Why is it that these old firms, many beyond the century mark, can carry on, generation after generation, slowly growing—surely prospering, while newer and apparently more modern companies often pass away with their founders?

The answer is simple. It is an axiom of trade that a business prospers as it sows. And these old businesses were inbred by their far seeing founders with the spirit of service—to serve "unselfishly, unfailingly, regardless of profits, but always sure in the knowledge that such service could not help but result in profits."

So that while the success of these old firms is seldom spectacular, it is the very bed rock of our present financial structure—the hope of our nation.

90 Years Following the Inspiration of a Great Merchant

Over 89 years ago, on the southeast corner of Central Wharf, Edward Chappell started the business that today carries on his name and ideals. Few men living today knew Mr. Chappell, but the record of his business is a commentary of the man.

The history of New London County also chronicles his wide-spread activities.

Until the early 70's the business dealt exclusively in coal. It then acquired the lumber business of Nash & Brewster that occupied the northeast corner of Central Wharf and from that time has been conducted as a coal and lumber business.

At Mr. Chappell's death in 1891 the business occupied two thirds of Central Wharf. And from that date ownership has always been vested in the Chappell family. First through Arthur H. Brewer, a nephew, and now through Willis Austin and Lucius Briggs, sons-in-law of A. H. Brewer.

Edward Chappell's Legacy to His Business

It is written in the records of the business that very early in Edward Chappell's career on Central Wharf he found himself in financial difficulties, called his creditors together and settled for a few cents on the dollar. Subsequently he gave a dinner to his creditors and under each plate was a check for the entire indebtedness plus interest from the time of the compromise. From that time on the unfaltering policy of the business became established—fair dealing and absolute integrity in every business practice—and its growth has been constant and assured.

A Business Policy that Cannot be Changed

Many years ago the company adopted the slogan Q-Q-Q meaning Quality, Quantity, Quickness. Coupled with courtesy to all customers, whether large or small, this slogan has been so instilled into every member of the organization that it has become an unfailing habit. It is, we feel, the greatest asset of the business. The property, the stock, all are measured in the value of dollars. Our integrity, our unfaltering service are measured in the good will and respect of our townsmen and neighbors, who with us have come to revere the memory of a great merchant, Edward Chappell.

DANIELSON

GEORGE E. THAYER PAYS TRIBUTE TO WORK OF FRENCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 7—Writing from France to a Hartford paper, George E. Thayer, well known here and father of Charles T. Thayer of Putnam, formerly of Danielson, furnished the following interesting information:

"If any or all of these American critics of France had been with me on th eautomobile trip through the devastated district in 1919 and had also walked with me on this last trip from Dunkirk to Verdun, some 400 miles the route I took, and had kept their eyes open and tried to learn what they could of the work France has done, they would forever after remain silent about what she has failed to do."

Such is the conclusion of the latest letter from George E. Thayer of West Hartford, 74-year-old globe trotter, now engaged in a walking tour of France, visiting the homes of 12 war orphans he has adopted.

"I could not allow the opportunity to be lost however," Mr. Thayer writes, "to make a first hand comparison between the conditions as I saw them in the summer of 1919 and those which now exist, so I walked over the district devastated during the war.

"In 1919 the automobile trip of two days included the cities of Albert, Arras, Lens, Ypres, Lille, Cambrai, St. Quentin, Laon, Soisson and several others. The trenches, the shell holes, the dugouts, the barbed wire entanglements, all were then to be seen as the armistice found them. Most of the cities were heaps of brick and broken stone, hardly a habitable building being left in many of them.

"On this walking trip I saw little if any barbed wire entanglement till I had gone beyond Rheims and nearly reached Verdun. The trenches and shell holes were practically filled in, though lines and spots could easily be seen showing white up through the growing crops.

"Occasionally lines of dugouts could even now be located and in places along the highways purposely were left small areas of all this evidence of what had been practically universal. Going through Lens the black smoke issuing from smoke stacks all about indicated the mines are dry again and the coal is coming up.

All the labor of restoring the land to crop producing conditions has been done by French muscle and paid for by French money or French credit and yet there are some Americans (may their number ever grow less) who point to the fact that France has not suffered, as England has, from unemployment.

"Then, again, some Americans express the opinion that France might have paid us. Why 'Hell and Maria' that has France been doing? Her labor has levelled off 3,000,000 acres of land so that she might raise food on it again, after its upheaval.

"That area is three times the area of Connecticut. Her wonderful canal system was rendered useless till 6,000 bridges blown up had been removed and rebuilt. Her cities have been rebuilt, which means that 900,000 buildings have been constructed. These figures are official."

The excellent care being taken of the graves of 900:000 British soldiers buried in France and the inability of the French to enclose and supply grass and flower beds for the graves of the French dead are cited in Mr. Thayer's letter as "striking evidence of the present poverty of the French."
